Publisher's Note

I have great pleasure in publishing this research work in the publication series of B. J. Institute of Learning and Research, Ahmadabad.

The Project dealing with the study of the unnoticed Jain image inscriptions of Ahmedabad was undertaken by the editors during 1989 to 1992, with the grant-in-aid sanctioned by Indian Council of Historical Research, New Delhi. Miss Sangita Phadia and Mss Krishna Pancholi were appointed as research assistants for this purpose. Dr. Balaji Ganorkar, the then administrative officer of the Bhāgavata Purāṇa project rendered his services to prepare the report.

Here about 1,000 image inscriptions from various Jain temples of the city area of Ahmadabad were surveyed and out of them about 850 inscriptions have been studied and incorporated in this publication.

The book contains Sanskrit text with critical notes in English and seven appendices related to the Tirthankaras, Sūris and Ācāryas, Gacchas, Gotras, Castes, places and the names of the donors.

I hope this publication would be useful to those who are interested in the Jain Studies at large.

INTRODUCTION

Among the various sources of information for the intensive study of the history of Gujarat, the epigraphic source is the most copious and the most valuable one. The inscriptions are mostly incised on stone, copper plates and marble as well as bronze images.

In this research work we have presented an intensive study of the Jain image inscriptions of Ahmadabad.

Being the headquarter of the Jain Community of Gujarat, Ahmadabad has more than 200 old temples belonging to this sect. Each temple contains images of marble as well as bronze. These images are artistic and most of them bear Sanskrit inscriptions. We undertook the project pertaining to the study of the image inscriptions of Ahmadabad with the grant-in-aid sanctioned by the Indian Council of Historical Research, New Delhi in 1989. Under this project we deciphered as many as 1000 image inscriptions and studied them from the view point of the religio-cultural history of Ahmadabad in general and Jainism in particular.

Among these images, most of them are bronze Pañcatirthis with parikara. very few are Ekathirthis, Tritirthis and Cauvisis. Quite a few are marble images also. In most of the images, the inscription is incised on the back side. On marble images, the inscription appears on the pithika of the image.

The image inscriptions are mainly of religious character. Most of them record particulars about the donors who got the images carved, the Sūris who installed them and the date of the installation. These inscriptions are also important for the study of different castes of Śrāvakas, Gacchas as well as paṭṭāvalis of the Sūris, Gotras, places etc.

The inscriptions published in this corpus number as many as 893. Many of the images, especially those of metals are movable and are preserved in renovated temples at the same sites or are shifted to new temples built nearby. These image inscriptions well reflect the prevalence of Jainism at particular places from 13th to 16th cent. A.D. Among these places, Ahmadabad also mentioned as Rājānagara,

Āsāpalli, Pattan, Vidyāpura-Vijāpura, Visalanagara, Stambhatirtha, Pethāpura, Salaṣaṇapura, Karpaṭavāṇijya, Pālhaṇapura, Āṇjuli, Bārejā, Gandhāra, Dhandhukā, Mahiśaṇaka-Mahisāṇā, Īladurga-Īḍara etc. were the centres of Jainism. Similarly from the available data about the Tirthaṅkaras mentioned in the inscriptions, it may be inferred that the worship of Ādinātha was the most popular, the next to him being Sumatinātha, Sambhavanātha, Śāntinātha, Kunthunātha, Pārśvanātha, Vāsūpūjya, Śīṭalanātha, Candraprabha, Dharmanātha, Śreyānsanātha, Suvratasvāmī, Vimalanātha, Neminātha, Suvidhinātha, Padmaprabha, Ajitanātha, Mahāvira, Abhinandanātha, Anantanātha, Supārśvanātha, Mallinātha and Aranātha, in a descending order. In addition to twenty-four Tirthaṅkaras, we come across inscribed images of Ambikā (ins. nos. 10, 688 and 839) and Padmāvati (ins. no. 565) also. A survey of the inscriptions suggests that the highest number of images were installed by Lakṣmisāgarasūri. Other Sūris who installed the images were Śrisūri, Somasundarasūri, Jayakesarisūri, Jayacandrasūri, Jinacandrasūri, Udayasāgarasūri, Kakkasūri etc. The Ācāryas referred to in the inscriptions are kakudācārya, Kālākācārya, Kundakundācārya, Bhavadevācārya and Siddhācārya. (see App. II.)

The highest number of inscriptions contains references to Tapā Gaccha. Other Gacchas referred to are Aṅcala, Āgama, Kharatara, Brahmāṇa, Pippala-Piṣpala, Nāgendra, Hārija, Bhāvaḍāra-Bhāvaḍaharā, Vrddha tapā, Maladhāri, Saṇḍera, Pūrṇimā, Nāṇakiya-Jñānakiya, Nāṇāvāla, Jirāpalliya, Caitra, Koranṭa etc. (see App. III.)

The Śrāvakas who got the images made belonged to various castes like Prāgvāṭa, Śrīmāla, Ukeśa, Usavāla, Gurjara, Disāvāla, Humḥaḍa etc. (see App. V.)

The inscriptions contain references to various Gotras, such as Āyacaṇā (ins. no. 307), Kāṇā (nos. 96,97), Kādamiyā (no. 165) Khīmaṇavi (no. 340), Gādhika (no. 23), Pāḷaḍecā (no. 111), Maghāla (no. 265), Meḍatavāla (no. 626), Vāḍhiyā (nos. 714-716), Śaṅkhavāla (no. 541), Surāṇā (nos. 359, 582) etc.

The names of the donors appear in the inscriptions are Dhīrapāla, Jesā, Nārada, Sūrāka, Bhīmaka, Sāladeva, Madana, Jhāṇjhāka, Dharaṇiga, Deḍaka, Saṇḍāka, Gajana, Dharmasimha,

Bhāyāka, Dhavala, Somaka, Gopāla, Samadhara, Kautigade, Āsalade, Kapūrāde, Karmāde, Kapūri, Jasamāde, Camakude, Dhani, Dhanāde, Nāsalade etc. (see. App. no. VII.)

The image inscriptions under study are usually dated in the Vikrama Era. The date generally contains the year, the month, the tithi and the week-day. Sometimes the tithi and/or the week-day are missing. From the examination of these dates, it is found that a majority of these dates tally according to the Kārttikādi Amānta system of years and months.

The language of these image inscriptions is Sanskrit with colloquial touch. The script is Nāgarī prevalent during 13th to 16th cent. A. D.

Among the Jains, the contribution of Jina-bimba was regarded meritorious. Its main object was the spiritual bliss of oneself or one's relatives. Sometimes the donors also contributed the images of the great Sūris.

We owe our sincere thanks to the authorities of Indian Council of Historical Research, New Delhi, for facilitating our intensive study of the Jain Image Inscriptions of Ahmadabad. We also express our thanks to the trustees of various Jain temples of different areas of the city for giving us facilities to read these inscriptions and granting us the permission to take photographs of some inscriptions. Our thanks are due to the members of the executive committee of B. J. Institute who granted the permission for the publication of this book. Lastly, We thank Shri Harajibhai Patel of Krishna Printery for printing work of this book.
