SINGHI JAIN SERIES

and

Late BABU SHRI BAHADUR SINGHJI SINGHI

My dear, sincere and noble friend, Babu Shri Bahadur Singhji Singhi, who, under my special inspiration, had founded this Singhi Jain Series in 1931, in sacred memory of his saintly father, Babu Shri Dalchandji Singhi and realizing whose uncommon devotion to the cause of learning as well as his ideal munificence, I also dedicated with my heart the dynamic and the precious portion of my remaining life to the Series, seeing whose fairly satisfactory and prompting progress since its inception and to find it in more advancing and comprehensive form in future, cherished an intense desire which resulted in associating the Series with the Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, according to a scheme outlined by me. Full five years have passed since the sad demise of that noble man. In his revered memory, I am penning a few lines here.

On the 7th of July, 1944, Babu Shri Bahadur Singhji Singhi left his mortal coils at the comparatively early age of fiftynine. His loss has been widely felt. His aged mother received this rude shock so ill that she did not long outlive him. His worthy sons have lost an affectionate and noble father, the industrialists and businessmen of the country one of their pioneers, the large number of his employees a benevolent master, scholarship one of its best patrons and the poor people of his native district a most generous donor. To me his loss has been personal. My contact with him was a turning point in my life. Whatever I have been able to achieve, during the past eighteen years, in the field of scholarship, is due directly to him. The financial assistance with which he backed my activities was the least of his contributions. But for his love of scholarship with which he inspired me, this chapter of my life would have been entirely different.

Babu Shri Bahadur Singhji Singhi was born in Azimganj, Murshidabad, in Vikram Sarnvat 1941, in the ancient family of the Singhis, who were of old the treasurers of the Mughal emperors. The family had passed through many vicissitudes of fortune and in the 17th century it migrated from Rajputana to Bengal, but thanks to the energy and enterprise of Singhiji's father, Babu Shri Dalchandji Singhi, the family firm became a very flourishing concern.

Babu Dalchandji Singhi was born in Azimganj (Murshidabad) in the Vikram Sarnvat 1921 (1865 A.D.), and died in Calcutta on the 30th December, 1927. Owing to financial difficulties, Dalchandji Singhi had abruptly to cut short his educational career and join the family business at the early age of 14. The family had been carrying on business in the name of Messrs Hurisingh Nehalchand for a long time though, in those days, it was not at all a prominent firm. But having taken the reins of the firm in his own hands, Babu Dalchandji developed it on a very large scale; and it was mainly through his business acumen, industry, perseverance and honesty that this comparatively unknown firm of "Hurisingh Nehalchand" came to be reckoned as the foremost jute concern with branches in almost all the important jute centres of Bengal. The fruits of Dalchandji Singhi's toils were immense, and the reputation of the firm in commercial circles was, indeed, unique.

Having thus brought his jute business to the most flourishing condition, Babu Dalchandji Singhi diverted his attention to the mineral resources of India and spent many lacs of rupees in prospecting the coal fields of Korea State (C.P.), limestone deposits of Sakti State and Akaltara, and the bauxite deposits of Belgaum and Sawantwadi and Ichalkaranji States. His scheme for the Hiranyakeshi Hydro-Electric Project and manufacture of aluminium from bauxite ores, the first of its kind in India, is yet to be developed. His mining firm, Messrs Dalchand Bahadur Singhi, is reputed to be one of the foremost colliery proprietors in India. While so engaged in manifold business, he also acquired and possessed vast Zamindari estates spreading over the districts of 24-Perganas, Rangpura, Purnea, Maldah, etc.

But the fame of Babu Dalchandji Singhi was not confined to his unique position in commercial circles. He was equally well-known for his liberality and large-heartedness, though he always fought shy of publicity attached to charitable acts and often remained anonymous while feeding the needy and patronizing the poor. A few instances of his liberality are given below.

When Mahatma Gandhi personally visited his place in 1926, for a contribution to the Chittaranjan Seva Sadan, Babu Dalchandji Singhi gladly handed over to him a purse of Rs. 10,000.

His War contribution in the first world-war consisted in his purchasing War Bonds to the value of Rs. 3,00,000; and his contribution at the Red Cross Sales, held in March 1917, under the patronage of H.E. Lord Carmichael on Government House grounds, Calcutta, amounted to approximately Rs. 21,000, in which he paid Rs. 10,000 for one bale of jute which he had himself contributed. His anonymous donations are stated to have amounted to many lacs.

In his private life Babu Dalchandji Singhi was a man of extremely simple and unostentatious habits. Plain living and high thinking was his ideal. Although he had been denied a long academic career, his knowledge, erudition and intellectual endowments were of a very high order, indeed. His private studies were vast and constant. His attitude towards life and the world was intensely religious, and yet he held very liberal views and had made a synthetic study of the teachings of all religions. He was also well-versed in the Yoga-darsana. During the latter part of his life he spent his days mostly in pilgrimage and meditation. Noted throughout the district and outside for his devoutness, kindness and piety, he is remembered even now as a pride of the Jaina community.

During the last days of his life, Babu Dalchandji Singhi cherished a strong desire to do something towards encouraging research in important branches of Jaina literature and publishing their editions scientifically and critically prepared by eminent scholars. But fate had decreed otherwise; and before this purpose of his could become a reality, he expired.

However, Babu Bahadur Singhji Singhi, worthy son of the worthy father, in order to fulfil the noble wish of the late Dalchandji Singhi, continued to help institutions like the Jaina Pustaka Pracāraka Maṇḍala, Agra; the Jaina Gurukula, Palitana; the Jaina Vidyābhavana, Udaipur, etc.; and also patronized many individual scholars engaged in the publication of Jaina literature. Besides, with a view to establishing an independent memorial foundation to perpetuate the memory of his father, he consulted our common friend, Pandit Shri Sukhlalji, (formerly a Professor of Jainism in the Benares Hindu University), an unrivalled scholar of Jaina Philosophy, who had also come in close contact with the late Babu Dalchandji Singhi, and whom the latter had always held in very high esteem. In the meanwhile, Babu Bahadur Singhji Singhi incidentally met the late Poet, Rabindranath Tagore, and learnt of his desire to get a chair of Jain studies established in the Viśva Bhāratī, Shantiniketan. Out of his respect for the Poet, Babu Śri Bahadur Singhji readily agreed to found the Chair (provisionally for three years) in revered memory of his dear father, and pressing and cordially invited me to organize and conduct the same. I accepted the task very willingly, and felt thankful for the opportunity of spending even a few years in the cultural and inspiring atmosphere of Viśva-Bhāratī, the grand creation of the great Poet, Rabindranath.

During the period of 10 years of my Principalship of the Gujarat Puratattva Mandir, Ahmedabad, and even before that period, I had begun collecting materials of historical and philological importance, and of folk-lore etc., which had been lying hidden in the great Jaina Bhandars of Patan, Ahmedabad, Baroda, Cambay, etc. I induced my noble friend Babu Bahadur Singhji Singhji, also to start a Series which would publish works dealing with the vast materials in my possession, and also with other allied important Jaina texts and studies prepared on the most modern scientific methods. Hence the inauguration of the present Singhi Jaina Series.

At an early age Babu Bahadur Singhji joined the family business by pushing ahead with his father's enterprises, and succeeded in making the firm the foremost in the mining industry of Bengal and Central India. Besides he also acquired vast zamindaries and had interests in many industrial and banking concerns. This early preoccupation with business affairs prevented his having a college education. But Singhji was studious and introspective by nature. He devoted all his spare time to study and cultural development. He acquired an excellent command over several languages. Art and literature were the subjects of his choice. He was very fond of collecting rare and invaluable specimens of ancient sculpture, paintings, coins, copper-plates and inscriptions. His manuscript-collection contained a large number of rare works of historical and cultural importance, among which mention must be made of a unique manuscript of the Koran which was handed down from Baber to Aurangzeb and bears the autographs of all of them. His numismatic collection, especially of Kushan and Gupta coins, is considered the third best in the world. He also had a good and large collection of works of art and historical importance. Singhji was a Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts (London), a member of the Royal Asiatic Society of Bengal, the Bangiya Sahitya Parishad, the Indian Research Institute and a Founder-Member of the Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan. He was also the President of the Jaina Swetambara Conference held in Bombay in 1926. Though he had made no special study of law he was well up in legal matters. On one occasion in the Calcutta High Court when he found that even his distinguished lawyers were not properly representing his case he himself pleaded out the case successfully, much to the surprise of the opposite party who was a manager of a big European firm.

Though a highly religious and leading figure in the Jain Community he had an outlook which was far from sectarian. More than three-fourths of the six lakhs and over of his donations were for non-Jain causes. More often than not he preferred to give his assistance anonymously and he did not keep a list of his donations even when they were made in his name.

At the Singhi Park Mela held in December, 1941, at his Ballyganj residence in which Viscount Wavell, then Commander-in-Chief and Lord John Herbert, Governor of Bengal, and Lady Herbert participated, he donated Rs. 41,000/- for the Red Cross Fund.

Really speaking, he did not in the least hanker after name and fame even though he was a multi-millionaire and a big Zamindar, and even though he was a man of superior intellect and energy. He was by nature taciturn and a lover of solitude. Art and literature were the pursuits of his choice. He was very fond of seeing and collecting rare and invaluable specimens of ancient sculpture, painting, coins, copper-plates, inscriptions, manuscripts, etc. He spent all his spare time in seeing and examining the rarities which he had collected in his room, as well as in reading. He was seldom seen outside and he rarely mixed with society and friendly circles. Wealthy persons like himself usually have a number of fads and hobbies such as seeing the games and races, visiting clubs, undertaking pleasure trips etc., and they spend enormously over them, but Singhiji had none of these habits. Instead of wasting money on such things, he spent large sums on collecting ancient things and valuable curios and on the preservation and publication of important literature. Donations to institutions and charities to individuals were, for the most part, given by him anonymously. I know it from my own experience that these gifts, donations and charities reach a very high figure at the end of every year. But he was so modest that on his being requested so often by me he did not show the least inclination to part with the names and whereabouts of the individuals and institutions that were the recipients of such financial aid from him. By chance I came to know of a very recent example, just now, indicative of this characteristic of his nature. In the year 1941 he shifted, like other innumerable inhabitants of Calcutta, his headquarters to Azimganj (Dist. Murshidabad) when the fear of the Japanese invasion was looming large, and decided to stay there with his whole family during war time. Taking into consideration the then grievous condition of the country as well as the excessive scarcity of grains in Bengal, he had stocked grains in large quantities with a view to distributing them gratis according to his capacity. Thereafter the problem of food became rather more serious and the prices had risen inconceivably high. Babu Bahadur Singhiji Singhi could have earned four to five lacs of rupees if he had, like many other miserly merchants, sold off the hoarded lot of grains, taking undue advantage of the prevailing conditions. But he resisted the temptations, and had been daily distributing freely the grains among thousands of poor people who showered blessings on him; and he enjoyed a deep self-satisfaction. This is the most recent example that puts us in adequate knowledge of his silent munificence.

Really he was a very silent and solid worker and he had no desire to take active part in any controversies, social or political, though he had sufficient fitness and energy to do so. Still, however, he was skilful enough to do what was proper at the particular time. The following incident will best illustrate this statement. It was in the fitness of things that a wealthy multimillionaire like him should give an appropriate contribution to the war funds. With this end in view he arranged in the second week of December, 1941, an attractive show, styled Singhi Park Mela in the garden of his residential place at Calcutta in which all the local people and officers of name and fame, including the Governor of Bengal, Sir John Arthur Herbert and lady Herbert as well as the Commander-in-chief (later the Governor-General) Viscount Wavell, had also taken part with enthusiasm. This show fetched thousands of rupees which were considered substantial financial help to the war funds.

As mentioned above, the Series was started, in 1931, A.D. when I worked as a Founder-Director of the Singhi Jain Chair in Viśvabhāratī Shantiniketan, at Singhiji's request. It was, then, our aspiration to put the Singhi Jain Chair and the Singhi Jain Series on a permanent basis and to create a centre at Viśvabhāratī for the studies of Jain cult in difference to the wishes of the late Poet Rabindranath Tagore. But unforunately I was forced to leave this very inspiring and holy place on account of unfavourable climatic conditions etc. which I had to face during my stay of about four years there. I shifted, therefore, from Viśvabhāratī to Ahmedabad where I had formerly resided and worked in those glorious days when the Gujarat Vidyāpīṭha and the Purātattva Mandira had been established as a part of the movement for national awakening and cultural regeneration. I went there in the hope that the reminiscences of those days and the proximity of those places would serve as sources of inspiration in my literary pursuits.

During this period of my aim of life had centred round the Singhi Jain Series and I devoted every iota of my energy to its development and progress.

*

In June, 1938, I received, to my agreeable surprise, a letter from my esteemed friend Śrī K. M. Munshi who was, then, the Home Minister of the Congress Ministry of the Bombay Presidency. In that letter he had mentioned that Sheth Śrī Mungalal Goenka had placed a liberal sum of two lakhs of rupees at his disposal for the establishment of a good academic institution for Indological studies and he had asked me to come down to Bombay to discuss and prepare a scheme for that. Accordingly, I came here and saw Munshiji. Knowing that he had a fervent desire of founding at Bombay an institution of the type of the Purātattva Mandira, I was extremely delighted and I showed my eagerness to offer for that such services as might be possible for me. We, then, began to draft out a scheme and after some deliberations and exchange of ideas the outline of the Bhāratīya Vidyā Bhavana was settled. Accordingly, on the auspicious full-moon day of the Kārtika of 1995 (V.S.) the opening ceremony of the Bhāratīya Vidyā Bhavana took place amidst the clappings and rejoicings of a magnificent party which was arranged at the residence of Munshiji. The brilliant achievement and the wide publicity which the Bhavan has been able to secure during its short career of the last few years bear eloquent testimony to the inexhaustible fund of energy and unsurpassed skill of Munshiji. As I am inseparably linked up with it from its very beginning, I also feel the same amount of joy and interest at the Bhavan's progress as Śrī Munshiji, its Founder-President, and therefore I have been always offering my humble services in its various undertakings and activities.

On the other hand, the Singhi Jain Series is the principal aim of my remaining life and the results of my thinking, meditation, researches and writings have all been devoted to the development of the Series. As life passes on, the time of activity is also naturally shortened and therefore it was quite appropriate, now, for me to chalk out lines of its future programme and permanence.

As Babu Bahadur Singhji Singhi, the noble founder and the sole patron of the Series, had placed the whole responsibility of the Series on me from its inception, he had also the right to expect that more and more works might more speedily and splendidly be published. I have neither seen nor come across any other gentleman who can match with him as regards generosity and unbounded zeal for the revival of ancient literature. On the works of the Series he had spent through me more than 75,000 rupees during his life-time. But he had not even once asked me, during this long period of a dozen years, as to how and for what works the amount was spent. Whenever the account was submitted to him, he did not ask for even the least information but sanctioned it casting merely a formal glance on the account sheets. He, however, discussed very minutely the details regarding things such as the paper, types, printing, binding, get-up, etc. as well as internal subjects like Preface and others, and occasionally gave very useful suggestions thereon with deep interest. His only desire being to see the publication of as many works as possible in his life-time, he was always ready to spend as much after it, as required. He did not labour under a delusion that the things should be done in this or that way when he was no more.

As these were his ideas and desires concerning the Series and as every day that passed left me all the more convinced of the fickleness of my advanced life too, it was imperative for us to draw out a scheme for its future programme and management. Just at this time a desire dawned in the heart of Shri Munshiji, to the effect that if the Singhi Jain Series be associated with the Bhāratīya Vidyā Bhavana, both the institutions would not only be admirably progressing but the Series would get permanence and the Bhavan, unique honour and fame by its hereby becoming an important centre for the studies of Jain culture and the publication of Jain literature. This wellintentioned desire of Munshiji was much liked by me and I conveyed it in a proper form to Singhji who was, besides being a Founder-Member of the Bhavan, also an intimate friend of Munshiji since long. Eventually he welcomed this idea. I also came to a final decision of associating the Series with the Bhavan, having consulted my most sincere friend, life-long companion and co-worker, Pt. Sukhlalji, who is a well-wisher and an active inspirer of the Series, and who is also an esteemed friend of Babu Bahadur Singhji. Luckily we all four met in Bombay in the bright half of Vaiśākha (V.S. 1999) and on one auspicious day we all sat together and unanimously resolved, at the residence of Munshiji, to entrust the Series to the Bhavan.

According to that resolution, the publication of the Series thereafter began under the management of the Bhāratīya Vidyā Bhavan under my sole supervision and direction.

*

In addition to transferring all sorts of copyright of the Series, Singhji also donated a liberal sum of Rs. 10,000 which will be spent on erecting a hall, to be named after him, in a prominent place in the Bhavan. In appreciation of this generous donation of Singhji, the Bhavan has also resolved to style permanently the Department of Jain Studies as the "Singhī Jain Śāstra Śikṣāpīṭha".

*

In the mean time we considered to purchase for the Bhavan a well-equipped library of a retired professor living in Calcutta, and consequently I was entrusted with the work of making a proper move in the matter. I then went to Calcutta for this very purpose and started negotiations through Singhji with the professor whose demand was somewhere about Rs. 50,000. Singhji asked me just casually as to what arrangement had been made for meeting with the costs. I promptly replied that there was no cause for worry so long as donors like himself were there. He smiled at it with a suppressed sense of satisfaction and also remarked that he had to assume the role of a negotiator for a buyer who he himself was eventually to be. He considered seriously my candid utterance and made up his mind from that moment, luckily of course for the Bhavan, to donate the Library to the Bhavan. He invited the professor concerned to his residence and talked in my presence about the approximate cost of the whole collection which appearing rather more to him and to me, the bargain could not be struck. He himself thereafter suggested to me to go in for the Nahar collection and promised with his usual preparedness to make complete arrangements in due course of time for the same. As was natural with him, he disallowed me at the same time from making known his intentions to any one. From close association with him I very well knew this aspect of his sober mind. This taciturnity of his mind was so much developed that even his sons who are equally able and worthy did not get a clue to his intentions till they were put into practice. But to our great mishap he did not live long enough to present this literary treasure to the Bhavan himself; but his eldest son and my beloved friend, Babu Shri Rajendra Singh has fulfilled his father's wish though he was totally ignorant of it and has got this unique collection for the Bhavan and spent Rs. 50,000 for the purpose.

Singhiji began to take keen interest in the progress and development of the Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan, seeing that it had at last become the centre of research and literary activities of Shri Munshiji and mine. In his last visit to Bombay he had also expressed to me his sincere desire to come and stay occasionally with us in the building of the Bhavan at Andheri when it is made over to us after the war.

At this time he also expressed with great enthusiasm his generous desire in clear terms as to how increasing progress of the Series can be achieved and how more works can be brought out with added speed. He also told me to make an arrangement, as I wished, regarding as much publication as possible of the works in the Series till I and he were alive, wishing me not to worry at all concerning the expenses. He mentioned that he would not feel satisfied even if the present rate of the publication which three to four works annually be raised to two works per month. What a noble zeal and a domineering passion for the advancement of learning and literature!

Having been fully reinvigorated by this unequalled enthusiasm and liberality I came to Bombay and was immersed in making plans of a large-scale production of the works in the Series and its extension in pursuance of his eager desire.

By the end of 1943 his health began to decline. In the first week of January, 1944, when I went to him at Calcutta in connection with the work of the Bharatiya Itihasa Samiti I found him extremely unwell. Notwithstanding his ill-health he talked to me for more than a couple of hours on the day of my arrival there. The first thing he did in the course of this lengthy, though very sweet talk, was to give me a mild reproof for undertaking the long and tedious journeys to Calcutta, Benares and Cawnpore in spite of my ill health. He discussed with absorbing interest the details of the Samiti's proposed History of India, a subject of great interest to him. I could see that he was at that time quite forgetful of his physical ailments. Our talks then drifted to the subject of the History of Jainism in which connection also he expressed his opinion about the material to be utilised for such a work. At the termination of our talks, which this time lasted for over three hours, I found him much exhausted and drooping in spirits.

On the 7th January his health took a turn for the worse. On the 11th January I went to take leave of him, which he, full of emotions, gave with a heavy heart, exclaiming "Who knows whether we shall meet again or not?" I requested him to take heart and remain buoyant and assured him that he would be soon restored to normal health. But while I was stepping out of his room, my eyes were full of tears and his last words began to eat into my heart. Ill-luck prevented our second meeting. That lofty and generous soul finally left its mortal habitat at mid-day on 7th July, 1944. May his soul rest in peace!

SINGHJI'S WORTHY SONS

Though the heavy loss caused by his sad demise is irreparable for me and the Jain community at large, still it is indeed, a matter of real consolation that he has left behind him equally illustrious and worthy sons. His sons, Babu Rajendra Singhji and Babu Narendra Singhji are treading the foot-steps of their revered father. It gives me great pleasure to record here that during the past five years on the Series alone they have spent more than Rs. 50,000. They also handed over a sum of Rs. 5,000 to the Indian Research Institute of Calcutta for the publication of the Jain works in Bengali language.

*

I have already mentioned how Babu Rajendra Singhji made a generous donation of Rs. 50,000 for the purchase of the famous Nahar Collection of Indological works which now forms a most precious part of the Bhavan's library. Babu Narendra Singhji has donated Rs. 30,000 for the foundation of a Jaina Bhavan at Calcutta for which Babu Bahadur Singhji had already contributed Rs. 15,000. He liberally gave Rs. 5,000 on the occasion of the celebration of 'Viraśāsana Mahotsava' in November 1944 which was held by the Digambar Jain Samaj. Further he has shouldered the responsibility of continuing now under his patronage to help the work of social and religious upliftment among the Sarak tribe of Bengal which was started by his illustrious father and for which the latter had spent thousands of Rupees. Babu Rajendra Singhji and Babu Narendra Singhji have also very generously promised to continue to meet all the expenses of the Singhi Jain Series and requested me to bring out as many works as possible, at whatever cost, so that this unique Series founded and cherished by their late lamented father may continue to bring to light the invaluable treasures of Jain literatures and culture.

*

In recognition of his unique assistance the Bharatiya Vidya Bhavan has decided to perpetuate Singhji's memory by naming its Indological library as Babu Bahadur Singhji Singhji Library. Further, one of its main halls will bear his name as Babu Bahadur Singhji Singhji Hall. The Bhavan's Jain Department will also be known as the Singhi Jain Shastra Shikshapith.

GENERAL EDITORIAL

Ācārya Haribhadra (c. 750 A.D.), Uddyotanasūri (779 A.D.) and Siddharṣi (906 A.D.) were great Teachers and eminent Authors. Uddyotana was an immediate śiṣya and Siddharṣi, a paramparā-śiṣya of Haribhadra from whose works both of them derived inspiration. Their works Samarāiccakahā, Kuvalayamālā and Upamitibhava-prapañcā kathā are significant didactic tales, full of moral fervour. They aim at curbing, if not altogether eliminating, baser human instincts, so that men and women grow into balanced individuals, respect others as much as themselves, and contribute to building up a really cultured society. Their works have been my favourite subject of study. The eminent Indologist, the late H. Jacobi, wrote an original paper on the Upamitibhava-prapañcā kathā (Bonn 1891), and later, edited both the Upamitibhava-prapañcā kathā (in collaboration with P. Peterson) and Samarāiccakahā for the Bibliotheca Indica. The Upamiti is a remarkable allegory. The Samarāiccakahā is a classical piece rich in cultural data. The Kuvalayamālā contains abundant linguistic material for a researcher in Middle Indo-Aryan in addition to the wealth of cultural details.

I myself wanted to edit the Kuvalayamālā; and, had, in fact, got one forme of it even printed, by way of specimen, as early as 1931. But, owing to my other literary preoccupations, I had to keep it aside for some time. As the General Editor of the Singhi Jain Series, I was very much impressed by the methodology and meticulous scholarship of Dr. A. N. Upadhye, Kolhapur. His editions of the Bṛhatkathākośa and the Līlāvāi were included in this Series. I had given the basic material of the Līlāvāi to him; and his superb edition of it with a scholarly Introduction won the praise of eminent scholars like L. Renou in Europe and Dr. V. Raghavan in India, as is obvious from their reviews. Impressed by his scholarship and painstaking habits, I felt like requesting him to edit the Kuvalayamālā. I placed at his disposal some rare material, especially the photographs of the Jaisalmer Mss.

Dr. A. N. Upadhye acceded to my request, rose to the occasion and has now fulfilled one of my great desires. I am quite aware of the trials through which he has passed while working on this edition which absorbed a major part of his time during the last fifteen years and more.

In my kiṃcit-prāstāvika to the First Part, I have already explained the circumstances under which this edition was undertaken. The late H. Jacobi was very keen that the Kuvalayamālā should be critically edited and published. The late H. Lüders and W. Schubring (who passed away on 13-4-69) showed keen interest in this work. The First Part containing the Prākṛit Text and Various Readings was published in 1959; and the Kuvalayamālā-kathā in Sanskrit by Ratnaprabhasūri was separately issued in a limited number of copies in 1961. For reasons beyond anybody's control, the publication of this Second Part, No 46 of the Singhi Jain Series, was delayed. It includes the Introduction by the Editor, A Cultural Note on the Kuvalayamālā by the late Dr. Vasudev Sharan Agrawala, the text of the Kuvalayamālā-kathā of Ratnaprabha, the Gāthāsūci, Notes by the Editor and the concordance of the printed text of the Kuvalayamālā with the two Mss., J and P, and Index etc.

The learned Introduction of Professor Upadhye is characterised by the thoroughness and meticulous scholarship, so usual with all his writings. After carefully studying both the Mss., he has evolved his discipline of text-constitution and followed it with great success. His Introduction is a substantial study of the various aspects of the Kuvalayamālā and of the personality of its gifted author. His Notes are a rich mine of information and testify to his wide reading both in Sanskrit and Prākṛit literatures and of the critical studies connected with them. Dr. Upadhye has earned the gratitude of scholars interested on Indic studies by critically editing both the Prākṛit and the Sanskrit works and by shedding a flood of light on them and on their authors in his scholarly Introduction and Notes. His is an all-sided study of the Kuvalayamālā. He has certainly added to the prestige of the Singhi Jain Series which has already received great praise.

My sincere thanks are due to late Dr. V. S. Agrawala who contributed to this volume a Cultural Note on the Kuvalayamālā and to my friend Dr. L. Alsdorf who kindly agreed to our request and wrote a Foreword to this publication. Dr. Alsdorf is the doyen of Prākṛit and Jaina studies in Europe, a worthy successor of the late Dr. W. Schubring.

The late Shriman Bahadur Singh Singhi was a great philanthropist and a patron of learning. It is due to his munificence and nobleheartedness that the Singhi Series could achieve so much distinction in the annals of Indian learning. On the eve of my life, I look upon it as a duty to remember him with gratitude by dedicating this Volume to him. My thanks are due to both Shri Rajendra Singh Singhi and the late Shri Narendra Singh Singhi who have been upholding the great traditions of their family. I feel sorry that Shri Narendra Singhaji did not live to see the publication of the Kuvalayamālā, Part II, in which he was keenly interested.

I cannot adequately express how happy I feel in seeing this work published in such a worthy form. The same Hṛidevī who inspired Uddyotanasūri to compose this work has perhaps stood by Professor Upadhye who completed this edition with arduous labour and great patience. This is my humble pūrnāhuti in the cause of Indian learning.

In conclusion, I should only quote a few lines from the Kuvalayamālā of Uddyotana himself:

उज्जुय-पय-गमणित्ता सरलुत्तावा य भूषण-विहूणा ।
 दुग्गय-वाल व्व मए दिण्णा तुह सुयण णेहेण ॥
 णेहं देज्ज इमीए खलियं छाएज्ज वयणयं पुलए ।
 अहवा कुलस्स सरिसं करेज्ज हो तुज्ज जं सुयणा ॥
 दंसिय-कला-कलावा धम्म-कहा णेय-दिक्खिय-णरिदा ।
 इह लोए होइ थिरा एसा उसभस्त कित्ति व्व ॥

MUNI JINA VIJAYA

FOREWORD

It is for me a matter of satisfaction and joy to congratulate my friend Dr. Upadhye on the successful completion of an arduous task which has engaged his attention and absorbed a major portion of his working power for the last sixteen years. The history of the present critical edition of Uddyotana's Kuvalayamālā does indeed go back even much further: it was first planned by Munimahārāja Jinavijayaji shortly after the turn of the century, and actually started by him in 1931. When other activities and duties eventually compelled him to abandon this most exacting and difficult undertaking, he was fortunate indeed in being able to hand it over to the present editor, who succeeded in bringing out the first volume, containing the Prākṛit text, exactly ten years ago. Every friend of Prākṛit literature, and of Indian literature in general, is sure to welcome with gladness and gratitude the long-awaited second volume, with Dr. Upadhye's comprehensive introduction and the Sanskrit digest by Ratnaprabhasūri, which, after many unexpected vicissitudes and delays, is now being laid before us.

Of the numerous Prākṛit works which Dr. Upadhye's indefatigable zeal and critical scholarship have rescued from oblivion and made accessible to modern research, the Kuvalayamālā is in several respects the most important and interesting. The unusual linguistic inclinations of its author, presenting us with valuable specimens of a number of Prākṛit and Apabhraṃśa dialects and even of "the mysterious Paisāci", were noticed long ago and have given rise to several investigations, all duly recorded by Dr. Upadhye; it is to be hoped that the full text now available in a critical restitution will provide the solid basis for further linguistic studies. If Dr. Jacobi in the preface to the edition of Haribhadra's Samarāiccakahā wrote that it gives "a picture of Indian Life in the 8th century which the antiquarian may study with profit", this might be said with even greater force of the work of Haribhadra's disciple Uddyotana; the wealth of cultural data to be gleaned from it is duly emphasized by the editor. From the purely literary point of view, we are presented with one of the great masterpieces of that voluminous Kathā literature which is perhaps the most famous contribution of Jainism to Indian literature in general.

The possible sources and literary connexions of the Kuvalayamālā have been fully and ably discussed in Dr. Upadhye's introduction. The nearest, and very natural, kinship seems to me to exist between it and the just mentioned Samarāiccakahā. The latter, as is well known, is centred round the motif of karman and transmigration, used as a literary device in a characteristically Jaina fashion: the story follows the fates of two jīvas, connected by a nidāna, through nine births. Uddyotana would seem to have deliberately outdone his Guru by increasing the number of jīvas, whom we accompany through the vicissitudes of a number of bhavas, to five. As their histories are not connected to begin with but interlace only at a later stage; and as, moreover, they are not told in a tedious systematic or chronological order but—by a device common also in modern literatures—are often put into the mouths of different characters of the story who tell them in retrospect, the plot of the novel becomes involved to a degree and is so difficult to follow that the editor has deemed it expedient to have the detailed analysis of contents followed by a second survey (“The story retold broadly”) arranged systematically according to the five jīvas; I am sure every reader will find this as helpful as I did myself.

I wish and hope that Prākṛit studies, happily on the up-grade in India after long times of neglect, will receive a fresh impetus and derive rich benefit from this edition of the Kuvalayamālā, by which Dr. Upadhye has rendered one more signal service to the cause of Prākṛit literature and Indian Literature in general.

PREFACE

The Kuvalayamālā, Part I, containing the Prākṛit Text accompanied by Various Readings, was published in 1959 as No. 45 of the Singhi Jaina Series. Subsequently the Kuvalayamālā-Kathā-Saṃkṣepa of Ratnaprabha-sūri was issued separately as well, in 1961, with a short Preface. In this Part II are now included an English Introduction, the late Dr. V. S. Agrawala's 'A Cultural Note on the Kuvalayamālā,' the Kuvalayamālā-Kathā-Saṃkṣepa noted above, the Index of Gāthās, Notes and other accompaniments at the end. By way of specimen, to illustrate the paleographic discussion in the Introduction, charts of letters from the two manuscripts and photographs of some palm-leaves are also given here.

None regrets more than the Editor himself the delay in issuing this Second Part for reasons beyond his control. In his weaker moments, the Editor even wondered, now and then, whether the Introduction would be published at all; and some portions of it were contributed by him as independent papers to some Journals. The patience of readers is more than tried for which the Editor expresses his apology. His only relief is that at last this Volume is being published in a manner matching the earlier volume.

It is some satisfaction for me that this work, so important from the point of view of the basic ethical values (with a view to removing individual imbalances and bettering human relations), linguistic material and cultural data, which occupied my major time for more than fifteen years, has seen the light of day. I am sure, those who are accustomed to the exacting work involved in editing Prākṛit texts from rare Mss, will certainly appreciate my humble labours on this important, classical religious romance of our country. In a self-imposed undertaking which extended over such a long time and on which I was working almost single handed all these years, there are bound to be shortcomings of which none can be more aware than myself. I shall be very happy to receive suggestions from my active colleagues in the field.

It is a pleasure for me to record my sense of gratitude to numerous scholars and friends who have obliged me in various ways in accomplishing this arduous duty. I cannot adequately express my sense of gratitude to Muni Shri Jinavijayaji who kindly entrusted this work to me which he himself had undertaken some years' back. He stood by me all these years and encouraged me in various ways to fulfil this difficult job. I am thankful to the authorities of the Bhāratiya Vidyā Bhavana for publishing this work in the Singhi Jaina Series. My thanks are due to Prof. S. A. Upadhyaya who is keenly interested in the progress of this Series. It has been extremely kind of Prof. L. Alsdorf, University of Hamburg, Hamburg (W. Germany), to have contributed a Foreword to this volume for which both the General Editor and myself are very thankful to him. As the work lingered on for many years, now and then some of my post-graduate students helped me in checking the collations; and I should specially mention the name of Prof. M. S. Ranadive, Satara. My friend, the late lamented Dr. V. S. Agrawala contributed a Cultural Note on the Kuvalayamālā with his usual academic zeal. What pains me most is that he did not live to see the note printed. Muni Shri Punyavijayaji has been helpful and keenly interested in my studies all along. He read the whole of the Kuvalayamālā, along with his younger colleagues, and made a number of suggestions on the readings; and most of them are included by me in the Notes. I am so grateful to him. I also record my sincere thanks to the Manager, Nirnaya Sagar Press, Bombay, and to the Manager, Sharada Press, Mangalore, but for whose cooperation I would not have been able to present this volume in the present form.

The Singhi Jain Series has carved a name for itself in the records of Sanskrit and Prākṛit publications. My thanks are due to Shri Rajendra Singh Singhi and the late Shri Narendra Singh Singhi who have been very keenly interested in the publication of the Kuvalayamālā. What pains me is that Shri Narendra Singhiji did not live to see in print this Second Part.

Lastly, I would be failing in my duty, if I did not record my sincere gratitude to the University Grants Commission, New Delhi, for having so graciously made me the Grant intended for Retired Teachers. It is this timely aid that has enabled me, even after retirement from service, to pursue my researches in my specialised branches of Indology with the peace of mind all such work needs.

DRAWING OF THE SELECT AKSARAS OF THE MS. P OF the Prākṛit Kuvalayamālā

Portions of the palm-leaf Ms. (No. 58 of 1880-81, Bhandarkar O. R. Institute, Poona), folios Nos. 44a (half) and 43b (half), of the Viśeṣāvāśyakabhūṣayvṛtti, see the Intro. p. 6, footnote 1.

INTRODUCTION

1. CRITICAL APPARATUS

The Prākṛit text of the Kuvalayamālā, critically edited here for the first time, is based on the material from the following Mss.

P - This paper Ms., written in Devanāgarī characters, belongs to the Deccan College Collection, and is now deposited at the Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, Poona, No. 154 of 1881-82. It has 133 folios, the first being written on only one side. It measures 32.5 by 12.5 cms. The mode of writing is uniform, but it changes on page 80*a*, line 8. There onwards, the letters are slender, the ink is more thick, and the writing point a little more broad. To begin with, there are 18 lines on each page for some 8 pages and then 17 lines on each page, and then again 18 lines from p. 81*a* onwards where, as noted above, the writing is more compact with smaller letters. In full lines there are some 72-77 letters in the earlier part, but they rise to 76-80 in some lines where the writing is more close.

This Ms. is well preserved on the whole. The paper is good, though turned brownish now. Some corner portions are exposed to moisture with the result that there is darker appearance, and the ink also is rubbed in some places. Here and there the white ants have eaten the edges of some folios and bored holes too in the middle. The edges of some folios are lately mended with paper pasted along the border. The first folio, which was damaged in the corner, has a back-sheet lately pasted; while the last folio is more thick originally. Folio 2 is torn but mended with transparent paper, and some of its letters are rubbed away. The written portion on a page measures about 9.5 by 27 cms. On the right and left sides there are two marginal lines (in black ink) sometimes single and sometimes double. There is a decorative blank space (sometimes written ornamentally with some letters from the running line as on folios 25-7, 115-6, 119-21, 125-27) in the centre of a page; and this space was necessary for the string-hole in the palm-leaf Mss. This Ms. is written in black ink. Here and there the numbers of Gāthās (wherever they are put), the double or single Daṇḍa, beginnings of fresh topics, terms like ahavā, avi ya, tattha vi, cha, tañ jahā, kiñ etc. are spotted with red chalk (gairuka). The top left-hand corner of the margin bears the name Kuvalayamālā (sometimes contracted as kuvalayamā, kuva o mālā etc.) in Devanāgarī and the right-hand corner of the page below has the page number, this being the back-side of the folio. Taking the folio No. 25, one side say 25*a* has no title and page-number which are put on 25*b*. The letters which the copyist could not read from his exemplar are left blank by him only with the head-lines or serifs. The traces of the use of modern black, red and green pencil and of red or blue ink are also seen here and there to mark some references of geographical, historical, cultural and literary interest. There are a few marginal additions and corrections: those on pp. 26*a*, 39*b*, and 51*b* are modern, while that on p. 80*b* is perhaps of the copyist himself.

The Ms. has the following beginning after the symbol of bhale (with two Daṇḍas on both the sides) which looks like Devanāgarī sixty (see the chart of its akṣaras):

ॐ नमो वीतरागाय ॥ पदमं नमह etc.

It ends thus:

समाप्तैयं कुवलयमाला नाम कथा ॥ छ ॥ प्रथसंख्या सहस्र ॥ १०००० ॥ कृति [ः] श्रीभेत-
पटनाधमुनेर्दाक्षिण्यलांछनस्य उद्योतनसूरे [ः] ॥ छ ॥ छ ॥

The above number of the granthāgra is written after covering the original writing with yellow paste.

There is no record here of the age of the Ms., but according to expert opinion this Ms. may be assigned to the 15th century A.D. and is thus slightly more than four hundred years old. The copyist of this Ms. has often confused between v and dh, ṇ and l: perhaps he or his predecessor has not carefully read the ādarsa-prati. He numbers serially only a few verses at the beginning. He consistently uses paḍimātrā or prṣṭhamātrā, though here and there e and o show the top-strokes. His jja looks like dya and is read by some as jya. The letters ch and cch are not duly distinguished by him. Though there are many scribal slips and usual lapses, the copyist has a neat hand throughout. He distinguishes his u and o, with a dot or stroke on the top of the latter.

In orthography, this Ms. is more inclined to the use of ya-sruti, though there are cases where it is not used (printed text p. 4, line 8: raiā, but in the next line raiṃyā). It has some cases of inorganic t as well. On the whole very often it uses n initially and in a conjunct group, though there are cases of initial ṇ and of ṇṇ. It uses anusvāra almost as a rule and not parasavarna. In a few cases, m is used generally at the end of a line or so. Conjunct groups like cch, jjh and tth are written even after an anusvāra. In Sanskrit passages, in the conjunct groups with r as the second member, the other consonant is written double (the developing partner unaspirated with the aspirated remnant). In this volume are included the drawing of the select akṣaras of this Ms. as well as the block-prints of the photographs of its two pages Nos. 1*b* and 133*b*. The page 35*a* is reproduced by F.B.J. KUIPER in his paper 'The Paiśācī fragment of the Kuvalayamālā', Indo-Iranian Journal, vol. 1-1957-NR 3.

J - This is a palm-leaf Ms. of the Kuvalayamālā belonging to the Big Bhaṇḍāra at Jaisalmer.¹ It contains 254 leaves, each leaf measuring 58.5 by 6.4 cms. The breadth noted is obviously at the centre of the widest leaf, because it decreases at some corner or the other and varies from leaf to leaf. Muni Śrī JINAVIJAYAJI placed at my disposal 54 photographs each measuring 29.3 by 24.2 cms. put on mounts 39.4 by 31.8 cms. and containing some ten pages (of one side of the leaf or the other) of the palm-leaves.² While arranging the leaves for photographing, a few pages are repeated in different plates. In this lot are included the photographs of the wooden boards of the Candra-prajñapti and Bhagavatīvr̥tti and of some of the leaves of the Vilāsavatī-kathā. The palm-leaves Nos. 1 and 254 are written on one side only. Muniji also gave me a transcript prepared from the palm-leaves directly; and a copy of this, got prepared by me, I repeatedly used while preparing my press-copy. Though I have not handled the palm-leaves directly, every reading recorded by me is checked in the light of the photographs in which the leaves are of reduced size, a little less than half. As it was difficult to read them with naked eyes, a few photographs I got enlarged to 51 by 40.7 cms.; and therein the letters were easily readable, though due to not-very-sharp focus some leaves gave a blurred appearance. The original Ms., I imagine, must be an admirable piece of calligraphic workmanship.

The number of lines varies from 4 to 7 on different pages depending on the breadth of suitable writing space available on each side of the leaf. Each full-length line contains letters (including dandās etc.) ranging from 135 to 140. Excepting the first and the last, all the folios are written on both sides in black ink. The written portion on each page gets divided into three parts with space and a hole (for the string) in between them. There is margin left at both the ends. Some leaves are broken at the ends here and there; and as the photographs indicate, on a few pages the ink is rubbed. Perhaps the letters could be read easily in the original palm-leaves, because what is apparently blurred is duly copied in the transcript prepared directly from the palm-leaves.

The leaves bear page-numbers on one side only; on the left-side margin (generally at the centre) in symbolic syllables, standing vertically, i.e., one below the other, the lowest syllable forming the first place; and on the right-side margin (also at the centre) in numerals written horizontally. A careful study of these symbolic syllables discloses that they are practically covered by the excellent table drawn up by Muni Śrī PUNYAVIJAYAJI.¹ Some of the symbolic syllables in the photographs of J are covered by the strings. One or two deviations I could mark, but they may be looked upon as scribal slips. Some of the syllables have a wavy crest on the serif or a couple of dots on the head: all this may be either decorative or just a flourish of the pen. The zero is also given sometimes a decorative figuration: it is faced, on four sides, by four round brackets with inward or outward curve; or its place is taken by a cross, or the sign of multiplication, the angles being filled by round brackets of outward curve.

In this Ms. every letter is separate, or a unit by itself, and the serif or headline of one is not connected with that of the other. The paḍi-mātrā or pr̥ṣṭha-mātrā is used here and there; but it is less frequent, if not altogether absent, in the first line which has ample blank space for the top-strokes for the vowels e and o. Both para-savarṇa and anusvāra are used. There are instances of ya-śruti, but it is not uniformly used. Almost uniformly ṇ is used everywhere: the instances of initial n and conjunct nn are scarce. There is plenty of use of inorganic t, or what is often called ta-śruti.

The Ms. J perhaps makes no distinction between v and b; and it uses the same letter for both of them. There are certain letters which look very much alike in some places, for instance, c and v, t̥ṭha and ḍḍha, y and v, bh and h etc. Many of the letters have such a peculiar and old style that a novice might confuse one for the other; some pairs may be noted here by way of illustration: a & jh, u & o, ū & j, e & p, gh & pp, gh & vv & pp, tth & ddh, ḍ & r, t & n, ṇ & l, th & vv, ph (second variety) & d, bh & ru, m & s, y & p etc. With regard to u and o, one feels that there is a slight difference in their shape; but it is not always definitive. Very often cch is written for ch, and cch, jjh and tth follow an anusvāra, the first two even a long vowel. At times initial doubling as in tthio is seen. The sign of avagraha is used here and there, of course rarely; and a somewhat peculiar symbol (a round bracket with a stroke below) is used for m.

In this Ms. J, verses are not numbered; separation of words is sometimes indicated by very small strokes or dots on the head of a line; very often danḍas are helpful, but they are not put always at the required place, especially in prose. In verses, however, single or double danḍa is used regularly and correctly. At times some letters are rubbed out and stand faint: they are to be treated as cancelled. Sometimes dots are put on letters which are to be omitted; and a stroke below them means striking off of that portion. Portions within round brackets are also to be left out. There are some marginal additions and corrections, often in a different hand of the later style. Big sections in stories are concluded with a symbol which looks like cha,¹ put between single or double danḍa. The Ms. J opens thus:

६० ओं णमो वीतरागाय ॥ पढमं णमह जिणिंदं etc.

and ends thus:

॥ इति कुवलयमाला नाम संकीर्णकथा परिसमाप्ता ॥ (०) ॥ मंगलं महा श्रीः ॥ छ ॥ संवत् ११३९
फाल्गु वदि १ रविदिने लिखितमिदं पुस्तकमिति ॥

Thus this Ms. is written in Sainvat 1139, i.e., (-56), A.D. 1083; and so it is nearly 900 years old. The concluding sentence, mentioning the date, shows a slightly different hand; but I think, it is written by the same writer.

A paleographic study of this Ms. by duly handling the original palm-leaves would bring to light many interesting details. As already observed by Prof. F. B. J. KUIPER², 'J is written in a hand which closely resembles that of pl. VI, col. XV of BÜHLER (taken from a Ms. that is only two years older than J), except for the akṣara ṇa.' The serif or the head or top line of many letters in J is not just a short line above the akṣara, but often it looks like a wedge (with thick ink) and resembles the serif of certain letters in pl. V, col. iii and pl. VI, col. xiv of BÜHLER.³ What is seen as hollow triangle of the serif in the Banswara plates of Bhoja of Dhārā (11th century A.D.) is thickened with ink in J.

It is interesting to study the akṣaras in J in more details. a and ā structurally resemble those in BÜHLER VI. xv-xvii, but may also be compared with those in

² Indo-Iranian Journal I. No. 3, p. 231.

³ These references to BÜHLER are to his Indische Palaeographie in the Grundriss, 1896, with plates; its English translation by J. F. FLEET in the Indian Antiquary, XXXIII, 1904; lately issued, along with plates, in Indian Studies: Past and Present, Calcutta 1959.

V. viii and VI. xiv: what deserves to be noted is the graded thickness of the vertical line with a pointed tip. For i cf. BÜHLER V. viii, ix & xxi; VI. vi; it is clearly different from that in VI. xv. This letter ṛ in J is peculiar and unlike those noted by BÜHLER in plates V & VI, the nearest in shape being that at VI. vii. 4; but it resembles the Pratihāra (9th c. A.D.) type noted by C. SIVARAMAMURTI.¹ In its second variety (see the aksara-valikā block at the beginning) the top mark is not the usual curvy or wavy line but a half-bracket-like hook resembling the upper roundish mark as in BÜHLER VI. xv. 4 or V. xxi. 4, very much like the present-day hook on the top of Devanāgarī i to show that it is ṛ. For u of J, cf. BÜHLER V. iii & VI. xv-xvi, its lower hook being more sharp pointed. For ū cf. BÜHLER V. xv & VI. xv-xvi: its wedge-shaped serif is very striking, and it looks very much like ja of J. For e, cf. Ibidem V. vi & VI. xv-xvii: the sharp point at the bottom is striking. For o of J, cf. BÜHLER VI. xv-xvi. 13, the symbols in which are sufficiently similar to those for u. J writes u and o apparently alike. There seems to have been some difference, but it is not definitive. The forms of these akṣaras in our chart are taken from a context where the values are definite. The letters u and o in OJHA's, plate xix, the varṇa-mālā from the palm-leaf Ms. Uṣṇīsa-Vijayadhārinī, deserve comparison.² In later corrections which are made in a squarish hand, o is represented by u with a top-stroke as in later Devanāgarī found in Mss. like our P.

For k of J, cf. BÜHLER VI. v, xiv & xv; the flourish of it agrees more with that in xiv than that in xv. For kh, cf. Ibidem V. xvi and VI. xiv. For g, cf. Ibid. VI. xv, but its shape in J is more curvy. For gh, cf. Ibid. VI. xv-xvi; at times it is similar to that in V. xi etc.

For c of J, cf. BÜHLER V. iii and also VI. xv; its shape is more acute angled in J; and when the interior space is covered by ink, it often looks like r. For ch, cf. Ibidem V. xvi and VI. xv; it is very much similar to th in the conjunct group; and often cch stands for ch. For j, cf. Ibid. V. xvi, and also VI. xiv-xvi. For jh, cf. Ibid. VI. xvi; it is often difficult to distinguish it from jjh: and it very much resembles the aksara in paragraph 2, Plate XXVI of OJHA.

For t and th of J, cf. BÜHLER VI. xv. For d, Ibid. VI. xvi; at times it looks like r when the ink column of the letter is less thick. For dh cf. V. xiv. For ṇ, cf. VI. xv; it has roundish arms, one of which has a fine point; and by later scribes it is sometimes misread as l.

For ṭ of J, cf. BÜHLER VI. xvii-xvi; the top wedge of our ṭ is very thick. For th cf. Ibidem V. xxi; but often it resembles tth. For d cf. VI. xv, but its style is very much like that in V. iii-xi. For dh cf. VI. xv, but the style as in V. iii-x. The structure of ddh is somewhat ticklish. For n, cf. VI. xv, but for its style V. xi.

For p of J, cf. BÜHLER VI. xv. For ph cf. VI. xv, but in some places its shape is different (both the types being shown in the chart) and resembles that in V. viii. (c. 993 A.D. or the Sena type (p. 125) noted by C. SIVARAMAMURTI.³ For b cf. VI. xii; b and v are similar; and perhaps the same symbol served the purpose of both in early days. The Nāgarī form of both of them was the same for a pretty long time; and the cross line in the belly of the letter, to mark out b, came much later, say by the 13th and 15th century A.D. For bh cf. VI. xv, but often it gets closed at the lower point. For m cf. VI. xv.

For y of J, cf. BÜHLER VI. xv, but note the parallel bend on both the sides. For r, cf. VI. xiv-xv, and also V. vi etc.; the thick line and dagger-like shape of our r are striking. For l cf. VI. xv, but the shape of its serif is somewhat different. For v, cf. VI. xv; its longish and angular shape deserves attention. For ś cf. VI. xv; it occurs in J only in a few Sanskrit verses, and at times it is written like s. For ṣ cf. VI. xv; but the style is more similar to those at V. xvi, and VI. x-xi. For s cf. VI. xv, but some difference in the shape; cf. also VI. xiii. For h cf. VI. xv, but for its style cf. V. iii and VI. xiii. For kṣ cf. VI. xv. For jñ cf. V. x. 44; our symbol is more roundish.

From the above detailed observations it is seen that most of the akṣaras of the Ms. J have a close resemblance with those recorded by BÜHLER in plate VI, column xv. He has drawn them from a palm-leaf Ms. of the Sanskrit commentary of Kōṭyācārya on the Viśeṣāvāsyaka of Jinabhadragaṇi (together with some supplements from the Royal Asiatic Society's Gaṇaratnamahodadhi, of A.D. 1229), now deposited in the Bhandarkar O. R. Institute, Poona.¹ I have personally inspected this Ms. with a view to have precise palaeographic comparison of it (V) with J. Both V and J contain Jaina works; they belong originally to Jaina Bhaṇḍāras; and possibly hail from nearly the same area. V is written in saṁ. 1138 Pauṣa and J in Sam. 1139 Phālguna; that is V is older than J by a year and two months. The writing of V is strikingly clear, though some of its leaves are damaged and even broken to pieces: possibly, for its age, it is adversely exposed to weather and repeatedly handled. J has its leaves, however, quite intact; and my impression is that it is not much handled. The akṣaras of J, in most cases, have a close structural resemblance with those of V. Some letters in these have clearly different patterns, for instance, i, ī, ṇ, ph (second variety), and even ḍ and dh. Despite this structural resemblances between many letters in V and J, the appearance and impression of the written matter that one gets are different. Some of the apparent reasons are as below: In V letters are squarish but in J, longish, angular and slanting. In V serifs or headlines are flat, straight and mutually not very much detached; but in J, their shape, in most of the letters, is peculiar and different: they are wedge-shaped, often show a pool of ink at the head, stand mutually detached, and do not generally extend beyond the body of the letter, especially on the right side, as in V. In V lower point of the letters is often blunt, but in J generally slanting and as a rule pointed. The pool of ink at the top, slanting lines and pointed ends of akṣaras raise a suspicion whether J is written with a fine brush. This is not unlikely; but these, according to expert opinion, can develop even when written by a wooden quill, with a graded point.

¹ See A catalogue of the Govt. Collection of Mss. Deposited in the Deccan College, XII, Collection of 1880-81, p. 169, No. 57. Luckily I could spot the concluding leaf. The Ms. ends thus:

Syllabic numbering of pages seems to be original; numeral pagination is perhaps put later. The first folio is pasted on paper by Prof. E. LEUMANN; and he has left a note on the sheet like this: 'pasted by Ernst Leumann of Strassburg Alsatia'.

Though V and J come from nearly the same locality and are of the same age, they illustrate two styles of writing though structurally majority of akṣaras is of the same pattern. The squarish handwriting in V can be favourably compared with that found in some old palm-leaf Mss. at Jaisalmer and other places in Western India.¹ The writing of J, as seen above, is a little angular and cursive, with wedge-shaped serif, the line of writing showing different thickness occasioned by the point of the quill (or brush?) and the quantity of the ink at different places. This style has close resemblance with the one found in the palm-leaf Mss. of Nepal and Eastern India, from which specimens are drawn by BÜHLER in plate VI, columns xiii-xiv. It is not unlikely that the copyist of J comes from Eastern India or is more accustomed to the style of writing seen in palm-leaf Mss. like the Aṣṭasahasrikā prajñā-pāramitā of the late 12th century A.D., belonging to the Prince of Wales Museum, Bombay;² or the Ñī palm-leaf Ms. of the Rāmāyaṇa, dated c. A.D. 1020, belonging to the Bir Library, Kathmandu, Nepal;³ or in the Ms. of the Ārya-gaṇḍavyūha-mahāyāna-sūtra-ratna-rājah.⁴ A palm-leaf Ms. of the Upadesamālā, with the Heyopādeyavṛtti, was an interesting item for me in the exhibition of Mss. arranged at the time of the session of the All-India Oriental Conference, Ahmedabad 1953. Its writing very closely resembles that of the Ms. J of the Kuvalayamālā. On an inquiry, Muni Śrī PUNYAVIJAYAJI told me that the Ms. belongs to his collection and can be assigned to the 12th century (of the Vikrama era?). One can have a fairly correct idea of the script of J from the chart of select akṣaras carefully traced and given in this volume and also from the photograph of a few leaves reproduced here and elsewhere.

⁴ Two folios of this in photographic print were shown to me by my Professor, Dr. P. L. VAIDYA, Poona. This Ms. of Gaṇḍavyūha belongs to the Library of Oriental Institute, Baroda and bears No. 13208. The size is 61.5 cm. by 27.2 cm. with 9 lines to a page and about 98 letters to a line. It is a paper Ms. white on one side and yellow on the other in the fashion of Nepalese Mss. It was procured by the Institute from Vajracārya monastery in Kathmandu. The folios are 218.

two available Mss., P. and J, on the basis of which the critical text of the Kuvalayamālā is presented in this edition, constitute an interesting study by themselves.

J is written on palm-leaves and is dated sarvat 1139, i.e., A.D. 1083, while P is written on paper and may be assigned to the 15th century A.D. Some of the readings of P confusing v and dh, ṇ and l, c and v etc. clearly indicate that it is a descendant of a palm-leaf Ms. of sufficient antiquity. J is preserved in Jaisalmer (Rajasthan); and P, though now in Poona, also hails from Gujarat. The text of P gives 13,000 granthas as the extent of the work, but the copyist puts it at 10,000 only. On the whole the copyist of J is more efficient, apart from his calligraphic superiority; while that of P has committed many a lapse in copying from his exemplar; often he has wrongly read some of the syllables from his ādarsa, and some of his haplographical omissions are quite obvious. These copyists wrote in terms of words with which alone, more than the sense of a sentence in a particular context, they were conversant; naturally they preferred māṅgala to māṅḍala, puṅṅa to paṅṅa etc. Both the Mss. show this tendency.

The text of the Kuvalayamālā found in the two available Mss. is not exactly identical, and there are differences of various types between them: they are all recorded in the first forme (pp. 1-8) as exhaustively as possible. There is a large number of variations in syllables in these Mss. Some of them belong to the category of orthographical conventions. For instance, J presents a larger number of cases of inorganic t (or what has come to be called ta-sruti); and it is more partial for ṇ initial, medial and conjunct. It also retains Sanskrit t in some words. It has plenty of instances of ya-sruti, but its general tendency is to leave the udvṛtta vowel as it is. There are in it a few cases of changing k to g and t to d and of retaining d: some of these are Śaurasenī tendencies. P, on the other hand, has a very few inorganic t, is more partial towards initial n and conjunct nm and prefers more consistent use of ya-sruti (with the constituent vowel a or ā), and also ya for ca after a vowel. Then there are syllabic variations arising out of incorrect auditory or visual reception on the part of the copyist. He may not have heard a syllable correctly, if the text is dictated to him from an exemplar by some one else; or he may not have read correctly the script from his ādarsa. To this category belong the variations between i, o and ya and between u and o as case termination, and also between i and e and u and o before a conjunct group (J ṇevvāṇa P ṇivvāṇa 5. 14). Grammatical rules are optional, and the Devanāgarī script has no symbol for short e and o, for which i and u are often used. In the early medieval Devanāgarī script, there are some symbols which are likely to be misread by one who is not skilled in the earlier form of the script but tries to read it as if it is the modern form to which he is more accustomed: for instance, J via P cia 5. 23, J mokkhaü P sokkahü 2. 28, J tu P nu 5. 4, J Daḍhavammo P Daḍhadhammo 9. 13 etc. Then some words are apparently mis-understood and some closely resembling forms of them are written instead; for instance: J pavittiya P pavattiya 1. 8, J ṇarae P nīrae 2. 7, J ruddammi P rumḍm̐mi 2. 12, J viviha P vihava 3. 5, J pāyayaṃ P pāiyayaṃ 3. 27, J tasai P hasai, J gavviya P gaddiya etc. The initial consonant of a non-initial word in a compound expression may remain unchanged, get elided leaving behind the constituent vowel, or be softened; or may stand single or double, if it is a conjunct: this option also gives rise to many a syllabic variation. This holds good in the case of enclitics and some of them like puṇa, kiṃci etc. give alternative forms (so puṇa or so uṇa, ṇa kiṃci or ṇa-iṃci). Besides these, certain variations arise out of optional grammatical forms, such as aṇṇā or aṇṇāo, ṇavari or ṇavaram, taha or tahā, buddhiṃ or buddhī; and there are others due to scribal lapses arising out of confusions and attempts to improve on them.

Then J and P show a pretty large number of variations in vocables; and a study of all such cases shows that they are voluntary substitutions for which one cannot hold mechanical copyists responsible. Some instances are of synonyms, sometimes with identical or closely approximate meaning; for illustration:

1.18	P भक्तीए	J भावेण

These variants cannot go back to a common focus. There is, obviously, a conscious improvement or substitution in one or the other Ms.

These two Mss. show some different lines, or portions of lines, or sentences and even verses here and there; for instance:

In some places J seems to add more matter (see for instance 26.10, 91.1, 147.2 etc.), but at times it could even be said that P omits it. In certain contexts J seems to add something and P something (see 24.12, 230.19, etc.). There are some places in which the alternative portions of P and J cannot go together (for instance, 151.20-25; see also, 204.19 and 204.23 etc.). The concluding maṅgala passages (§ 431) also belong to this last category.

Judged by themselves J is more efficiently copied than P. P is full of lapses by way of omissions of portions here and there; in many cases these omissions are haplographical. The eyes of the copyist have wandered to a common word little later wherefrom he goes on copying omitting a portion in the middle (for instance, 96.21, 105.2, 139.1, 179.31, 182.14, 197.6, 210.9, etc.) J also has missed some portions haplographically (for instance 61.17, 72.26, 156.15, etc.), but such instances are comparatively a few on the whole. There are some two significant contexts in which innocent references to flesh etc. appear to have been skipped over in P at 248.14 and 254.7; in the latter case P looks like improving on J. Then in another context, āsīsiyā in J stands as dhammā(b)hiyā etc. in P (99.25,31).

Then one is attracted by some longer and significant passages in J which are not present in P. Sometimes they are amplificatory or add fresh matter. The colloquial passage in J (151.20-26) is special to it, and the corresponding passage in P (reproduced in the footnotes: 151.24) is different. Then a pretty long passage, covering a page and a half (172.4 to 173.17) is found only in J. It is a romantic situation very well depicted, but somehow it is absent in P. Further the author's praśasti (§ 430) stands differently in J and P; as far as I understand it, there is no contradiction in the two drafts, but what J gives is more than what is found in P. As already noted above, the concluding maṅgala (§431) is as good as different in the two Mss., though some contents are common. Paragraph 432 is special to P only.

Even this sample study of the variations in the text of the Kuvalayamālā, as found in the only two available Mss., raises a number of questions: Why are there so many variations? Who is responsible for them? Which Ms. is more authentic or earlier, P or J? And what is the relation between them? etc.

Our answers to the above questions can be only tentative, because we have only two Mss. at our disposal. If and when a third independent Ms. is discovered, the above questions can be answered more satisfactorily. Uddyotanasūri, as he himself tells us, went on composing about one hundred granthas, say roughly eighty gāthās, in a prahara or a period of three hours (281.27.) He hints that he went on writing. To me, however, it appears highly probable that, to begin with, some two copyists might have taken down the dictation and thus prepared two drafts; and these must have been subjected to revision by the author himself in due course. Presuming, in the light of the available evidence, that two copies were prepared in this manner, and revised independently, J represents a successor of one draft and P the successor, a bit more remote, of another. As noted above, there are such differences in syllables, words, lines and paragraphs that one cannot be a copy of the other: such variations cannot emerge from a common focus. Some of the various readings might be called scribal lapses due to various reasons, usual in the transmission of texts through copying or dictation, such as, confusion of syllables due to similar sound or shape (in writing); omission or transposition of syllables and words; substitution of familiar words for the unfamiliar ones; improving on the spelling or orthography; trying to mould a prose line into metrical form or vice versa; slips and haplographic omissions; repetitions and conflated readings; additions from marginal glosses; etc.

The Prākṛit dialects were not fully standardised (in the sense in which we understand them to-day); and copyists' imperfect knowledge of them might have added certain irregularities in the Mss. Hemacandra's Prākṛit grammar supplied a standard as it were for the regularisation of dialectal features of Prākṛit texts composed or copied after him in Gujarat and the roundabout area. Though the Ms. P is based on some old palm-leaf Ms., its version of the text of Kuvalayamālā has, no doubt, come under the influence of Hemacandra's grammar. This explains the scarce use of inorganic t, more regular elision or softening of intervocalic consonants, abundant use of n initially or as a double consonant and more regularised use of ya-śruti. The Ms. J (1083 A.D.), however, is older than the Prākṛit grammar of Hemacandra (1088-1172 A.D.) and is not consequently subjected, like P, to its influence. The copyists have not always been successful in detecting metrical lines in the body of prose; and as they were conversant more with words only, it did not make material difference for them whether they wrote navara or navari, jaha or jahā, and so on. In the Paisācī and Apabhraṁśa passages and in colloquial conversations, the syllabic variations are too many, partly because the grammatical standards were nebulous and the copyists took liberty with the readings sometimes due to their ignorance, preconceived notions or their understanding of a particular word.

Studying the variations in words and changes in lines, verses or prose passages, in most of the cases J presents a better version than P; and it is quite likely that the author himself improved on the first draft at a second thought. The basic exemplars of J and P have been independently revised: that alone can explain certain alternative passages and what look like additions in one or omissions in the other. Some longer additions must have been made when the basic exemplar of J was revised, and these revisions did not find place in the basic exemplar of P. In the context of philosophical discussion (pp. 230 f.) the author seems to have revised his earlier draft possibly to improve on or supplement the text. It would not be very wrong to presume that many Mss. of the Kuvalayamālā were not prepared and circulated, and the text also does not seem to have been as widely studied as the Samarāiccakahā of Haribhadra.

The Ms. P is not an efficient copy. It is full of scribal omissions. But even there some omissions have significance, for instance, the omission of references to flesh etc., revision of a general term āsīsā into a conventional phrase dharmalābha. Possibility of a revisionist's hand, even other than that of the author himself, is not altogether ruled out in such contexts, because the text in P has passed through more transcriptions at the hands of copyists than J. And, as shown below, it is the text of P that lies at the basis of its stylistic Sanskrit digest by Ratna-prabha-sūri.

As to the praśasti of the author, the one in P is the first draft and that in J is a revised draft, because the latter gives supplementary details. The concluding Maṅgala is something conventional or just a ritual; and it might have been added at the time of the consecration of a Ms. when it was completed.

3. BROAD PRINCIPLES OF TEXT CONSTITUTION

In view of the variations in the readings of J and P and the possible authenticity of the basic exemplars of J and P, one has to be very cautious in adopting a particular reading and relegating the other to the footnotes. There are only two Mss. available, and their authority (going back perhaps to the author himself) is often very well balanced. Under such a peculiar circumstance an eclectic method had to be adopted to present a readable text. It may often be felt that the readings of both J and P are equally good, authentic and acceptable; but practical necessity demands that one has to go to the footnotes. Then there is a dialectal aspect of the readings; and if they differ chaotically, between the two Mss. as well as in the same Ms., some standard orthography had to be adopted, as a part of editorial discipline, in presenting the text uniformly throughout the work.

As already noted above, the inorganic t (or ta-śruti, as it has come to be called) is profusely used in this Ms. J and sparingly in P. It is quite possible that in the earlier stages when the Prākṛits gradually evolved into standardised literary speeches, the t in Sanskrit words might have been retained here and there; but the abundant use of inorganic t in place of elided consonants, almost to the extent of obscuring the sense, is a strange phenomenon. It has no linguistic justification; it is not sanctioned by any early Prākṛit grammarian; it is understood on reliable authority that it finds no place in the canonical and other passages which constitute the daily recitation of Jaina monks; and the modern critical editors, to begin with hesitatingly and later on even without any explanation, have ignored it. A small minority of scholars¹ has looked upon it as a characteristic of the Ārṣa Prākṛta or Ardhamāgadhī; and the authority for its usage is sought from the following verse of the Nāṭyasāstra of Bharata (xxii):

चर्मण्वतीनदीपारे ये चार्बुदसमाश्रिताः ।
तकारबहुलां नित्यं तेषु भाषां प्रयोजयेत् ॥

And implicitly they defend its retention while editing the early Jaina works in Prākṛit. This approach is not quite sound. Hemacandra, who has noted a number of peculiarities of the Ārṣa Prākṛta, makes no mention of ta-śruti. As to Bharata's sanction, it is very much weakened by the fact that o-kāra-bahulām is an alternative reading for ta-kāra-bahulām; the former reading is not only preferred to but the total description also is taken to cover the Śaurasenī by critical scholars.² Ultimately this minority has the support of Mss. where too the usage is anything but consistent.

What then is the source of this ta-śruti and how can we explain its usage in Mss. on such a large scale? It is profusely used in the Mss. of Chedasūtras and Cūrṇīs; and it is from them possibly, it affected the Jaina Mss. especially in Gujarat and round about for a pretty long time. My humble surmise in the matter is that it is an orthographical convention, perhaps intentionally popularised to keep the contents of the Chedasūtras guarded from common readers, who were not entitled to their study.³ There is not the least doubt that these texts have been obscured by this ta-śruti; it takes some moments for one to realize that nātamātā=nāyamātmā. Due to favourable factors like common authorship, study in groups of monks and the same set of copyists, this convention of ta-śruti spread to canonical texts, post-canonical works of various categories and even other works in Prākṛit. Though the text of the Samarāiccakahā edited by H. JACOBI (who has not discussed anything about it in his introduction, possibly due to his original notes having been lost in the war) is quite clean of this ta-śruti, it is seen from the observations of Śrī RAMANIK VIJAYAJI MAHARAJ⁴ that a palm-leaf Ms. of the Samarāiccakahā (from the Jaisalmer Bhaṇḍāra) dated saṃvat 1250, i.e., A.D. 1193, contains plenty of ta-śruti.

In the critical text of the Kuvalayamālā, presented here, the inorganic t is not admitted; the actual readings of both the Mss. are fully noted in the first forme but sparingly in the subsequent formes. The presence of ta-śruti is more conspicuous in dogmatical passages: may be that it is inherited from some canonical texts and their commentaries like the Cūrṇī. As isolated cases, the retention of t is admitted in stray words like citi, chītaṃ, ruṭaṃ etc. written alike in both the Mss. Difference of opinion is possible about these cases.

About the use of n or ṇ, the earlier discussions need not be repeated here.¹ It has been noted that earlier palm-leaf Mss. are inclined more towards ṇ (everywhere, initially, medially and in a conjunct group). The basis of pronunciation about n or ṇ is uncertain in Prākṛit dialects; the Mss., obviously, wavered erratically, according to the prejudice, aptitude and whim of the copyist; the early Prākṛit grammarians, like Vararuci, preferred ṇ; but Hemacandra, possibly in view of the vagaries of Mss. in his part of the country, made the use of n initially optional with the result that the orthographical conventions of Jaina Mss. in Gujarat and round about inclined to use n initially, ṇ medially and nn or ṇṇ in a conjunct group. This explains, to a very large extent, the difference seen in this respect between the pre-Hemacandra and post-Hemacandra Mss. from Pattan and round about. This is borne out, in general, by the variants about n or ṇ (fully recorded in the first eight pages) in the Mss. J and P.

As to the usage in Prākṛit Inscriptions Dr. MEHENDALE'S observations may be taken into account.² A scrutiny of the Ghaṭayāla Inscription³ of the Pratihāra Kakkuka for the usage of n or ṇ has a special relevancy for our purpose. It belongs to a place near Jodhpur in Rajasthan: its object is to record that a chief named Kakkuka founded a Jaina temple and made it over to a Jaina community which belonged to the gaccha of Dhaneśvara; it is dated saṃvat 918, i.e., roughly middle of the 9th century A.D.; and some twenty lines of it are in Prākṛit, the rest being in Sanskrit. Even though the Sanskrit influence is legitimate in this record, it is found that it uses throughout ṇ only, initially, medially and in a conjunct group. This is a valuable pointer to the convention about the use of ṇ in Prākṛit writing in Rajasthan in the middle of the ninth century A.D., not in any way far distant from the place and age of Uddyotana, the author of the Kuvalayamālā.

As a healthy rule, ṇ is used uniformly in this edition, the readings of n or nn (in subsequent formes) being noted only if both the Mss. write n. Of course in the Paisācī passages and in certain words for which grammarians have special rules, n is allowed to remain according to the agreement of Mss.

The back-ground of ya-śruti is already discussed by me.⁴ It is found in some early Prākṛit inscriptions as well.⁵ To begin with, its use appears to have been sporadic, but gradually it became a question of orthographic standardisation in Jaina Mss. Hemacandra's rule is more rigorous: ya-śruti can stand with a or ā and when preceded by a or ā. The Ms. P uses ya-śruti more regularly, but J rather sparingly. In this edition ya-śruti is uniformly used with the constituent vowel a or ā, irrespective of the preceding vowel. All the readings, in this respect, from both the Mss. are recorded in the first forme and in the context of the Paisācī dialect; but elsewhere only some significant readings are noted.

When the Mss. P and J waver between e or i and o or *u*¹ I have written [˘] and [˙] with a consonant and elsewhere [˘] and [˙]. But if both the Mss. write e and o and if they are metrically short, a curve is put on them to indicate their short metrical value. Very often P writes -ya for *-e*² as the termination of the Inst. sing. of the Fem. type. In J it is very difficult to distinguish between u and o, and it is interpreted in the light of the reading of P. But much uncertainty remains especially in Apabhraṃśa passages which are scattered all over the text in the midst of other Prākṛit passages. Whenever the author passes from one dialect to the other, there results a good deal of uncertainty of readings.

About the elision (more regular in Māhārāṣṭrī) of intervocalic consonants like k, g, c, j, t and d, or of softening k, t and th or of retaining g, d, dh and bh; and of changing th, dh and bh to h—there is a large number of variants between the two Mss. As a rule, the reading of J is adopted, noting duly that of P in almost all cases. The Ms. J makes no distinction between v and b; but, in this edition, it is spelt in the light of its Sanskrit counterpart current in Western India.

Both the Mss. use anusvāra almost as a rule, but there are some instances of parasavarṇa here and there: in this edition only anusvāra is used. In terminations where anusvāra is optionally used J is followed; but, if both the Mss. use anusvāra and the accompanying vowel is metrically short, the sign of nasalisation or the candrabindu is used instead. The locative singular termination is necessarily written as mmi and not ṃmi. J often writes kinṇa, but here it is written kiṃ ṇa. In the Sanskrit passages, however, parasavarṇa is used; and the consonant, in the conjunct group with r as the first number, is written single (i.e., varga, and not vargga) irrespective of the spelling in the Mss.

Grammatical standard of Hemacandra is always kept in view, but nowhere is it forced against the readings agreed upon by both the Mss.

Once it was realized that it is highly probable that the revisionist is the author himself in most of the cases, it was felt that the readings from both

221-24, Bangalore 1956. He observes thus: 'The epigraph may be palaeographically assigned to a date about the close of the First Century B.C.' 'The language of the inscription is Prākṛit. Interesting from the orthographical point of view is the ya-śruti in the names Payāvati for Prajāvati and Bhāradāyī for Bhāradvājī. But there is no case in which a surd has been modified into a sonant.'

¹ 'As a corollary of the rule that a long vowel before a conjunct is necessarily shortened, it is found that often e and o become i and u before a conjunct. In the absence of orthographic symbols in Devanāgarī for ē and ō, which being their phonetic value before a conjunct, i and u (respectively) are used instead. Pāṇini (I. 1. 48) has recognised the symbols i and u for ē and ō.'—Vide my intro. to the Kārttikeyānuprekṣā, p. 73, Bombay 1960.

² This may be even -a with the glide y.

J and P should be recorded as exhaustively as it is necessary and possible. In the first forme (pp. 1-8) all syllabic variations are noted meticulously; but in subsequent formes variants arising out of va-sruti, inorganic t, u or o, i or e, n or n and others of this type are not fully recorded, excepting in crucial contexts. In some cases obvious corruptions are noted, because they go to confirm what the basic reading might have been. If the readings given are felt to be more than necessary, it is pleaded that the editor has erred on the safer side. And there are valid reasons for this erring as well: we have only two Mss. of the Kuvalayamālā, and they show such variations as need preservation. Obvious scribal errors, of course, are skipped over. The Prākṛit phonology has such potent possibilities that what is a wrong form to us, and according to our grammatical standards, may show its counter-part in some dialect or the other of the New-Indo-Aryan, which is being so zealously studied now-a-days. This meticulous recording of variants has a special value in the Paisācī and Apabhraṁśa passages and in the contexts of the colloquial conversations and illustrations of regional dialects which are a speciality of this work. Lastly, almost single handed as I have worked, I am quite conscious of my limitations as well as possible lapses in handling the material of this great Prākṛit Campū which is being edited and published for the first time; and hence, I must leave the maximum evidence for a subsequent rigorous and searching connoisseur who would like to improve on my text. In a few places, where the readings are improved upon or emended, the requisite data are given in the foot-notes. All the additions, in one or the other Ms., are included in the critical text. If the passages in P and J are obviously alternatives, one is adopted in the text and the other is relegated to the foot-notes.

Further both the Mss., J and P, are so closely and compactly written that it is hard to distinguish prose and verse. In the prose matter, the placing of daṇḍas is not uniform in both: in short, it is highly irregular in P. I have adjusted them to suit the meaning and context. Wherever a shorter pause was needed, enumeration was to be indicated, a vocative was to be separated (after the last vocative, if there are many words in that case), I have put a comma. The object is to help a clearer understanding and bring better force in conversation. Single or double inverted commas are used to mark out direct statements or thoughts. Hyphens are used to separate words in a compound expression, but if there is uncertainty or sleṣa in any expression, they are not introduced. If the initial consonant of the following word is phonetically changed, the hyphen is hesitatingly used in such cases. The verses are not numbered, but for referential purposes the lines are numbered (1, 3, 6 etc.) on each page; and the foot-notes have a reference to these lines. Going from line to line, one can easily detect for what portion there is a variant reading. Whenever both the Mss. put numbers for enumerated topics, they are retained in the constituted text. The whole text is continuous, and there are no chapters or prakaraṇas. For referential convenience and for neat presentation (rather than necessarily at appropriate contexts), the matter is divided into paragraphs in somewhat an arbitrary manner.

4. THE KUALAYAMĀLĀ AND MODERN SCHOLARSHIP

It is necessary and interesting to review the studies of modern scholars in connection with the Kuvalayamālā mainly with reference to some of its significant passages. The attention of modern scholars was attracted towards this work only after the Ms. P (No. 154 of 1881-82) was secured for the collection of Mss. of the Government of Bombay, then belonging to the Deccan College, Poona, and now in the Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, Poona.¹

In the *Jaina Granthāvalī*² there are references to the Prākṛit Kuvalayamālā of Uddyotanasūri and Sanskrit Kuvalayamālā of Ratnaprabha, the sources being the Brhatṭippaṇikā and the Deccan College lists. The Ms. of the former in the Deccan College (KANTIVIJAYAJI?) and of the latter in Cambay and Ahmedabad are mentioned. The attribution of the Kuvalayamālā to Indrasūri is based on a wrong reading in an extract given by P. PETERSON from the Śāntināthacarita of Devacandra.³

The Kuvalayamālā-kathā, a stylistic Sanskrit digest of the Prākṛit work of Uddyotana by Ratnaprabhasūri (c. middle of the 13th century A. D.), was edited by Muni CHATURVIJAYA from three Mss. and was published in 1916.⁴ The prastāvanā (in Sanskrit) of this volume introduces most exhaustively, for the first time, the earlier Prākṛit work of Uddyotana quoting its significant extracts from the Poona Ms. which correspond to the following passages in this edition; p. 282, l. 6 to the end of § 432 omitting a few verses vamḍāmi savva-siddhe to [paṇi] vayāmi; p. 173, l. 31 to p. 174, l. 6; p. 1, ll. 2 to 8; and p. 3, l. 14 to p. 4, l. 14. A bare outline of the story is indicated; and significantly enough it is stated that Haribhadra, who is styled as bhava-viraha, is earlier than Uddyotana and not at all a contemporary of Siddharṣi, the author of the Upamitibhava-prapañcā-kathā. The extracts given in this Introduction attracted the attention of various scholars who used some of these references in their studies.

It was in 1916, the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā of Rājasekhara,⁵ edited by C. D. DALAL and R. A. SHASTRY was published; and in its notes were given some extracts from the Kuvalayamālā, based on the Ms. P and corresponding to our text, p. 3, l. 18 to p. 4, l. 2, which attracted the attention of some other scholars,⁶ towards the Kuvalayamālā.

¹ H. D. VELANKAR: Jinaratnakośa p. 94, (Poona 1944) gives reference to KIELHORN III, A list of the third collection of Dr. KIELHORN known as Collection of 1881-1882. Dr. P. K. GODÉ kindly informs me that the entry regarding Ms. No. 154 of 1881-82 stands thus (p. 207): “[Name] Kuvalayamālā (in Prākṛit) [Author] Uddyotanasūri, leaves 183, śloka 10,000, No. 154 of 1881-82.”

MUNIRAJ SHRI JINAVIJAYA read a paper (in Sanskrit) at the First [All-India] Oriental Conference (Poona 1919) on 'The Date of Haribhadrasūri'.¹ It is an exhaustive paper which scrutinises the views of earlier scholars, lists the works attributed to Haribhadra, enumerates the traditional sources for his biography, and takes up for discussion the traditional date, A.D. 529, assigned to him, Siddharṣi's (A.D. 906) reference to him as me dharmā-prabodha-karo guruḥ and consequent conclusion of H. JACOBI that Haribhadra was a senior contemporary and guru of Siddharṣi. JINAVIJAYA shows that Gargarṣi was the guru of Siddharṣi and correctly interprets the latter's reference to Haribhadra. It is in this context that he quotes the Kuvalayamālā (p. 4, l. 2) and reaches the conclusion that Haribhadra, the author of Samarāditya-kathā could not be later than A. D. 778. Then he studies the various references from Haribhadra's works, quotes an extract from the Kuvalayamālā (corresponding to p. 282, l. 6 to l. 20) from the Ms. P, and assigns Haribhadra to A. D. 700-770. In the appendix, the chronological relation of Haribhadra with Śāntarakṣita, Dharmottara, Mallavādi and Śaṅkara are indicated.

The Bṛhatṭippanikā is an old valuable list of Jaina works prepared in Saṁ. 1440 (-57), i.e., A. D. 1383 by some Jaina monk acquainted with the Mss.-collections at Pattan, Cambay and Broach etc. (but not Jaisalmer). It was used by the compilers of the Jaina Granthāvali, noted above. It is published (based on the Ms., three to four hundred years old, belonging to the collection of Śrī Kāntivijayajī Jaina Jñānamandira, Baroda) by MUNI JINAVIJAYA.² Therein the references to the Kuvalayamālā (p. 10) stand thus:

320. कुवलयमाला प्रा. सु. [सं (?)] ८३५ वर्षे उद्योतनसूरिया १३००० ।

321. कुवलयमाला सं. रत्नप्रभसूरिया ३८९४ ।

A Catalogue of Manuscripts in the Jain Bhandars at Jesalmere, compiled by C. D. DALAL and edited with Introduction, Indexes and notes on Unpublished Works and their Authors by L. B. GANDHI was published in 1923.³ It presents the entry of the Ms. of the Kuvalayamālā in this manner (p. 27):

229. कुवलयमाला of दक्षिणभद्र (उज्जयिण) सूरि 254 leaves. 23 x 2½.

Col:—इति कुवलयमाला नाम संकीर्णकथा . संवत् ११३९ दातु (आसु) वदि १ रविदिनि लिखितमिदं पुस्तकम् ।

In his Sanskrit Intro. and its notes (pp. 42-43) Pt. GANDHI gives some bits of information about this work (possibly based on the extracts from the Poona Ms. quoted by the Editor in the Introduction to the edition of its Sanskrit digest by Ratnaprabha published from Bhavanagar and noted above), especially quoting references to Uddyotana by Ratnaprabha and Devacandra.⁴

⁴ PETERSON, in his Fifth Report, already noted above, gave an extract from the Śāntināthacarita of Devacandra (Saṁ. 1160, i.e., A.D. 1103) दक्षिणभद्रसूरिं नमामि वरवर्णभासिया सगुणा ।

H. JACOBI completed his edition of Haribhadra's Samarāiccakahā, Vol. I, Text and Introduction, in 1926;¹ and in his Introduction (pp. ii & iii), while reviewing the earlier discussion and accepting the revised date of Haribhadra (c. 750 A.D.) as proposed by MUNI JINAVIJAYA in his paper presented to the First Oriental Conference, Poona (1919), he discusses the exact date of the completion of the Kuvalayamālā as specified by its author, ascertaining it as 21st March, 779 A.D.

There is an exhaustive essay in Gujarati on the Kuvalayamālā by JINAVIJAYAJI.² Giving an outline of the Jaina narrative literature with pointed reference to certain works of which the Taraṅgavaī of Pādalipta and Samarāiccakahā of Haribhadra are introduced in details. The controversy about the date of Haribhadra and the latest conclusion are reviewed. Then follows an account of the Kuvalayamālā based on the study of relevant sections from the Mss. from Jaisalmer³ and Poona, especially the Praśasti portion (§ 430, with variants of P noted in the foot-notes) which is translated into Gujarati with valuable explanatory comments on some of its references to Toramāna, Pavvaiyā, Jābālipura, Gupta etc.⁴

Pt. L. B. GANDHI edited three Apabhraṁśa works of Jinadattasūri,⁵ a senior contemporary of Hemacandra, in the G. O. S. in 1927. As an appendage to his Introduction (in Sanskrit), he has added a well-documented essay (in Sanskrit) on the Apabhraṁśa language. He explains incidentally the background of Prākṛit, its relation with Sanskrit and the nature of Ardhamāgadhī. In the context of the discussion about Deśībhāṣās, he has introduced in details the Prākṛit Kuvalayamālā and has quoted a number of passages from it, from the Jaisalmer Ms.⁶ (giving reference to its palm-leaves) corresponding in the order they are quoted to our text: [p. 89, f. n.]: p. 282, l. 19 to p. 283, l. 6; [p. 90, कुवलयमाल व्व महा कुवलयमाला कहा जस्त ॥ Pt. GANDHI reads imḍha for imda and suggests suhā for mahā, Prabhācandra (A. D. 1277) refers to the Kuvalayamālā thus: सुरिर्दक्षिण्य-चन्द्राख्यो गुरुभ्रातास्तित्तस्य सः । कथां कुवलयमालां चक्रे शृङ्गारनिर्भराम् ॥, XIV 89. That only shows how the original reading dakḥhiṇya-imḍha was not correctly understood.

Eight leaves are included in the first photograph and 10 in the last one. The photographs were taken in 1927 at Ahmedabad. It is he who published, beside the praśasti verses (already published by MUNI CHATURVIJAYA and MUNI JINAVIJAYA) a number of extracts from the Jaisalmer Ms. of the Kuvalayamālā. Some of these passages are really important, and as such they have attracted the attention of some scholars.

The Paisācī dialect has been of great interest for scholars;¹ and A. MASTER, who wrote a paper 'The Mysterious Paisācī'² was obviously attracted by the Paisācī passages in the Kuvalayamālā a detailed acquaintance with which he came to have from Pt. GANDHI'S Introduction noted above. In his paper 'An Unpublished Fragment of Paisācī'³ he gives not only a critical text (based on J and P) of the Paisācī passage (along with the photo-prints of the relevant leaves of J) corresponding to our text, p. 71, ll. 7-26, but also presents a tentative translation accompanied by grammatical and other notes. He continued his studies on the Kuvalayamālā, in two more papers 'Gleanings from the Kuvalayamālā Kahā',⁴ Nos. I and II. In the first he has presented his critical observations on three fragments (corresponding to the printed text, p. 63, ll. 16-26; p. 47, l. 6; p. 59, l. 5.) and specimens of Eighteen Deśa-bhāṣās. His linguistic notes are interesting. In the second he has critically studied (adding grammatical notes) the specimens of prose Apabhraṁśa and contemporary Middle Indian mixed with Sanskrit, especially the passages corresponding to the printed text, p. 55, ll. 10-21: p. 151, l. 18 to p. 152, l. 17. This is prefaced with a few general remarks on the author etc. and concluded with an excursus on the Jaina Kathā.

Lately, F. B. J. KUIPER, Leiden, in his paper 'The Paisācī Fragment of the Kuvalayamālā',⁵ has re-edited and published at A. MASTER'S instance the Paisācī passage from the Kuvalayamālā (corresponding to the printed text, p. 71, ll. 10-26). It is prefaced with a thorough grammatical analysis of the dialect and followed by English translation and notes, both explanatory and textual, which are very helpful to understand certain knotty points in the text. He has given a block-print of the page from the Ms. P containing that passage.

5. THE KUALAYAMĀLĀ: A CRITICAL STUDY

1. CONTENTS OF THE KUALAYAMĀLĀ

[i. Author's Introduction]

INTRODUCTORY MAṄGALA; HUMAN LIFE AND ITS OBJECTIVES: In the opening maṅgala, to begin with, the author directs salutations to Rṣabha, the first Tīrthakara, with poetic references to some events in his career; secondly, to Mahāvīra who could not be shaken in his meditation even by the tempting appeals of the charming seasons prompted by (god) Saṅgama; thirdly, to the rest of the Jinas; and lastly, to the Tīrtha which enlightens the souls, which enables some of them to attain Liberation, and which is sacred even to the Jinas. The souls, under the pressure of passions and previous Karmas, plunge into hells; thence they pass through various species of sub-human beings; and then, through some puṇya, they are born as men with a perfect body and in a good family. With the acquisition of this rare human birth, one should pursue the human ends which are three: dharma, artha and kāma, and to these is added mokṣa as well by some. They could be graded thus: Kāma is adhama, Artha is madhyama and Dharma is uttama; and it is through dharma that all others, including mokṣa, are achieved. A wise person, therefore, should persist in the practice of dharma which is variously presented with different deities and by different teachers, but the one preached by Jinendra is the best Dharma which is constituted of dāna, śīla, tapas and bhāvanā. The first Tīrthakara himself practised these precepts, and is thus an example for others. Due to want of necessary wealth, moral rectitude and physical strength, the first three are not practicable for all; therefore, the words of Jina should be understood and bhāvanā should be cultivated. Even in the midst of the wicked, who are out for scandalising the meritorious and merits, we should make our life fruitful by glorifying the merits of Jina, Śramaṇa and supuruṣa: with this object in view, a narrative is being presented (Pages 1.1-3.15; *1.2-*2.15).

EARLIER AUTHORS; TYPES OF KATHĀS: The earlier great poets have presented many a narrative (for details, see below); but the range of subject-matter being infinite, this one also is being presented. There are five varieties of the Kathā: sakala-, khaṇḍa-, ullāpa-, parihāsa- and vara-kathā; and besides, there could be saṁkīrṇa-kathā as well which combines the characteristics of all these: this is being presented here. It is miscellaneous with varied poetic embellishments, metrical forms and compositional patterns. It is composed in Prākṛit, with marahaṭṭhayadesi descriptive pattern, almost a pure sakala-kathā, in which are introduced tāpasa, jina and sārthavāha; but just out of curiosity, in the mouth of various characters Sanskrit, Apabhraṁśa and Paisācī passages are introduced. Being endowed with the merits of various narratives, with amorous sentiment, with well-arranged sub-plots and with the exposition of various arts and branches of knowledge, it has become a saṁkīrṇa-kathā. Kathā is again of three types: dharma-, artha- and kāma-kathā. Though this is primarily a dharma-kathā, it has become saṁkīrṇa in-as-much as it has all the characteristics and has embraced the topics of artha and kāma. Here are narrated activities of worthy men; and here one can learn what is dharma and adharma, what is kārya and akārya, and what is hita and ahita. This dharma-kathā is of four facets: ākṣepiṇī, pleasant or catching; vikṣepiṇī, unpleasant or distracting; sarṇveda-janarī, leading to knowledge or enlightening; and nirveda-janarī, leading to detachment or renunciation. Minds of men should first be captivated by catching topics; secondly, they should be disillusioned; thirdly, they should be enlightened or made to know the real nature of things; and lastly, they should be made to renounce the world: that is the way how five hundred robbers were induced by that self-enlightened [Kapila] to accept the life of self-control and renunciation. Topics connected with love-matters are welcome to the extent to which they are conducive to the adoption of religious life (Pages 3.18-5.13; *2.16-*2.26).

AN OUTLINE OF THE STORY: Dākṣiṇyaciḥna composed this Narrative Structure (kathā-sarīra) which is great on account of the acquisition of Samyaktva and in which friends carry out their mutual obligations and attain Nirvāṇa. How Kuvalayacandra was born and was carried away by a god, his former associate; how he met the lion, the monk and the god in a lonely forest; how he heard the past lives of all the five from Kevalin; how they acquired samyaktva, practised austerities, and were consequently born in heaven; how, after enjoying heavenly pleasures, they were born in the Bhārata-varṣa; how they did not know one another but were enlightened by the omniscient Teacher; and lastly, how they adopted renunciation, practised penances and attained Liberation, being free from Karmas: all these topics are covered in this composition, which has been elaborated thus by the author through the grace of [Hrī-] devatā who supplied its clues to him (Pages 5.14-5.24; *2.26-34).

DISCOURSE ON DURJANA and SAJJANA: The author starts his narrative in a grandiose style, but halts to present a discourse on durjana and sajjana. The former's weaknesses are effectively sketched with various similes often with double meaning. A poet should go on with the work on hand despite the wicked and their scandals, like a lofty elephant ignoring the barking dogs. As contrasted with him the various merits of a sajjana are depicted; and it is the sajjana who is the hope and support of worthy poets (Pages 5.25-7.3; *2.36-39).

[ii. Prince Kuvalayacandra: his Horse Flies]

KING DṚDHAVARMAṆ AND QUEEN PRIYAṄGUŚYĀMĀ OF VINĪTĀ: In Jambūdvīpa, in Bharatavarṣa, to the south of Vaitāḍhya and in between Gaṅgā and Sindhū, there is the Madhya-deśa (described 7.7-12) at the centre of which stands the town Vinītā (described in details, §§ 14-7). There ruled a king, Dṛdhavarman by name (described, § 18); he had a loving queen (described, § 19) Priyaṅguśyāmā; and he spent in her company many happy years (Pages 7.4-9.17; *3.1-32).

THE MĀLAVA PRINCE MAHENDRA BROUGHT AS A CAPTIVE: One day, when the king was seated in the inner assembly along with the queen and a few chosen ministers etc., Suṣeṇa, the Śabara prince, just returned from a successful military operation against the Mālava king. Though wounded, he narrated in a triumphant mood how the army of the enemy was routed, how the war-spoils were captured, and how a gallant prince of five years was arrested and brought there. The king and queen affectionately welcomed that prince, Mahendrakumāra, who entered the hall with remarkable self-confidence; but soon he was overpowered with feelings, making all the dignitaries shed tears at the moment. Not satisfied with the various explanations of the ministers why the prince, though seated on the king's lap, started shedding tears, the king asked Mahendra himself the reason of his deep sorrow. The prince explained his sad plight that he should have been seated on the lap of an enemy. The king at once expressed to him that there was no more enmity and that the prince was his veritable son. He gave the prince his necklace and formal presents; and he also told the ministers to look after the prince in such a way that he would not remember his parents and that he would become a son to himself who had no issue. (Pages 9.18-11.14; * 3.33- *5.3).

THE QUEEN PINING FOR AN ISSUE: On getting a confidential report that the queen Priyaṅguśyāmā—apparently there being none of the five reasons (11.25-6) on account of which ladies get angry—was out of her mood and was not attending to her daily routine, the king went to her apartment and found her in the Anger-chamber (kopa-gr̥ha), quite out of temper. He inquired why she was angry; and he wanted to know from her the specific reason of her anger which even added a little charm to her face. The queen told him that the cause of her remorse was that, unlike the mother of Mahendrakumāra, she had no son; and consequently, she was angry with the king. She was told by the king that she was indiscreet and that the fulfilment of her desire was beyond human power. Then she appealed to him to solicit a boon from some deity. Quite lovingly he pacified her with the assurance that he would secure divine favour at any cost, by offering the oblation of his own flesh to Īśvara, by sacrificing his head to Kātyāyanī etc.; and she felt quite happy. In this context, he took into confidence his ministers who greeted his decision, stressed the need of a son in every respect, dissuaded him from taking any risk for his life, and advised him to solicit the favour of the Kula-devatā, Rājyalakṣmī, seeking her boon for a son, which idea the king approved (Pages 11.15-14.3; * 5.4- *6.14).

THE KING PROPITIATES AND GETS A BOON FROM KULA-DEVATĀ: Then on an auspicious day, the king offered oblations to the town-deities, gave gifts to mendicants, fulfilled the desires of the poor, and entered the devagr̥ha, in a proper form. He offered worship to gods and goddesses, spread a layer of flowers on the pavement, took his seat (now all alone), offered (with folded hands) lavish prayers to Rājyalakṣmī referring to the various aspects of her personality, and urged her either to give audience to him within three days or accept his head. He sat there for two days recounting her merits. On the third day, when he was about to sever his head for an offering, his hand (with the sword) was miraculously held back, and the goddess appeared before him in full womanly bloom and glory. He saluted her. She smiled at his rash impatience. When he appealed to her effectively and with self-respect, she blessed him with a boon that he would have an outstanding son and disappeared (Pages 14.4-15.14; * 6.15-38).

INTRODUCTION

ALL-ROUND SATISFACTION AND QUEEN'S DREAM INTERPRETED: Returning from the temple, the king took his meals in a happy atmosphere; and then he conveyed to his ministers the details of the boon received by him, to their great satisfaction. He went thereafter to the apartment of the queen who, on hearing about the boon, received it as a great blessing. The happy day passed, and there followed the evening and moonlit night (graphically described 15.26-16.5). Early in the morning, the queen woke up after seeing in her dream the Moon clung to by a garland of highly fragrant lilies (kuvalaya-mālā); and when she modestly conveyed the same to the king, he assured her that this was quite in consonance with the boon of the Deity and that she has conceived a son. She considered herself highly blessed. The king entered the assembly attended by many: mantrin, mahānarendra, mahāvīra, mahāvaidya, mahābrāhmaṇa, mahākavi, mahāsenāpati and mahāpurohita. There were courtezans, some reciting in Prākṛit, some in Sanskrit, some knowing Apabhraṃśa and many others skilled in different branches of knowledge (the list is interesting 16.23 f.): in that assembly all the kalā, kautuka and viññāna were represented. The expert decision on the interpretation of the dream was that the queen, as blessed by the divine boon, will have a great son and that the kuvalayamālā represents his beloved attached to him from an earlier life (Pages 15.15-17.7; * 6.39- * 7.25).

A PRINCE BORN and DULY NAMED KUALAYACANDRA: Carrying the child and living in a happy atmosphere, the queen grew in her grace more and more and her longings of pregnancy were more than fulfilled to her satisfaction. The effects of the growing child were apparent on her body (17.16 f.); and at a highly auspicious moment, she delivered a fine male child. The palace was flushed with manifold festive talks (described § 44). A blooming maiden broke the happy news to the king and received rich presents from him. There was a royal directive for the celebration of birth-festivities which were duly carried out with great eclat and entertainments (described 18.11-31). Ordered by the king, the Astrologer interpreted the planetary influence etc. at the moment of the prince's birth and prophesied (from the astronomical data) that the prince would become either an Emperor or an Emperor-like king. On a specific enquiry from the king, the astrologer enumerates the rāsīs (zodiac signs) and gives their guṇas (fruits, consequences) in the context of the birth (details given, 19.12 f.) on the authority of Vaṃgāla-jāyaga of Vaṃgāla-risi. The king duly honoured the astrologer, and enjoyed drinks (described 20.28 f.) and meals. So the days passed. On the 12th day he decided, in consultation with mahā-brāhmaṇas, that the prince should be significantly called Kūvalayacandra, and also by a second name Śrīdatta (Pages 17.8-21.6; * 7.25- * 8.28).

PRINCE'S EDUCATION: Fondled by five maids, the prince gradually grew making all happy by his activities of childhood. When he was eight years old, he was duly entrusted to a lekhācārya under whom he lived in a lonely place, not visited even by his parents, and mastered various arts till he was twelve. After finishing the course, the teacher led him to the king who heartily welcomed him, with all the more joy, on learning that the prince was so gifted by nature that hardly any instruction was necessary for him. The teacher enumerated the seventy-two kalās (22.1-10) already mastered by the prince and also those in which he had special proficiency. The prince had developed well, both in body and expression. Then he went to the apartment of his mother who heartily embraced him and kissed on the head; he called on other queens as well who all greeted him with good wishes (Pages 21.7-23.3; * 8.29- *9.6).

PRINCE ON THE HORSEBACK CHARMING TO ALL: As directed by the king, the prince, then, accompanied him to the horse-ground or race-course where horses were to be tested for different purposes; and there, the horse-keeper gave for riding different horses to different persons: Pavanāvarta to the king, Garuḍavāhana to Mahendrakumāra, Udadhikallola (described in details 23.12-19) to Kuvalayacandra, and so on. Inquired of by the king, the prince explained to him that there were eighteen breeds (23.22-4) of horses of which he would describe the colour, marks etc. of a few only (23.25 to 24.9). Saying that he would hear further details at leisure, the king rode his Pavanāvarta, the prince his Udadhikallola, and their feudatories started on their respective conveyances all of which crowded the palace-ground by their march (described 24.19 f.) and then gradually proceeded along the royal road. When the prince reached the heart of the town, ladies, in a disturbed state (described 24.30 f.) took their positions here and there (25.8-10), making various remarks (25.12-15) to have a glimpse of the prince whom they gazed at with eyes full of passionate affection (25.21-32) and about whom they discussed with complimentary references that he was superior even to Nārāyaṇa, the full moon, Puraṇḍara, Īśvara, the sun and Kumāra (26.1-14). They were captivated by the personality of the prince, and all their activities and demeanour (described 26.15-27) showed that their minds were out of gear. The prince passed through the bazaar and reached the race-course where stood the entire troop. The king drove his Pavanāvarta and the prince his Samudrakallola; well, the latter overtook the former to the jubilation of the entire gathering (Pages 23.4-27.1; * 9.7-31).

PRINCE (WHO ATTRACTED THE EYES OF MANY), FLOWN BY THE HORSE, MEETS A SIGNIFICANT TRIO, THE SAINT FROM WHICH PROMISES TO EXPLAIN THE MYSTERY OF THE HORSE AS WELL AS THEIR CAREER: As the prince was being greeted with victory, the horse flashed towards the south and flew up in the sky (description of the ground below etc. 27.7-9). Struck with wonder by its behaviour, he decided to test whether it was some god by striking it with a knife, before it reached the ocean. When he gave a heavy stroke on its belly, it fell dead; the prince too came down; and, while he stood still puzzled over the riddle whether it was a horse or a god, he heard an anonymous voice greeting him with his name and directing him to go towards the south to find something unprecedented. As he proceeded, he reached the great Viṇḍhya forest presenting manifold scenes and situations (described 27.28 to 28.19), one of which, which most surprised him, was that birds and beasts, well-known for their natural antipathy, played together (28.22-27). With a little thinking, he realized that in the vicinity there must be some great saint of benign influence. A little ahead, under a Vaṭa tree he saw a monk, emaciated with penances but ablaze with lustre, an embodiment of dharma and an incarnation of upaśama (described 29.7-9). To the left of the monk, he saw a great person of divine appearance (divyākāraṃ mahāpuruṣaṃ), an embodiment of all that could be handsome

(described 29.11-20); and to the right, he saw a Lion, terrific in appearance but quiet in temper (described 29.21-24). These three seemed to the prince as the veritable quintessence of dharmā, artha and kāma. As great saints are gifted with divine knowledge, the prince wanted to know from this great saint who the horse was and why he was carried away etc. The great monk welcomed him with dharmā-lābha; the divya-puruṣa stretched his right hand decked with jewelled bracelet to greet him; and the lion too received him suitably. The prince responded with all modesty. The great saint assured him to enlighten him on his questions. The prince sat there before the saint in a receptive mood, when the latter started his religious sermon: In this Samsāra the souls wander in a chaos of relations and reactions (details given § 66). The gale of sin whirls round this leaf of soul in this mountain-thicket of worldly existence. The souls alone are responsible for all that they have done; and all others are really others. Like children playing with sand-structures on the shore, the ignoramuses are deluded by various attachments in life: it is all hollow. Whatever is experienced by us on account of i) krodha, anger; ii) māna, vanity; iii) māyā, deceit; iv) lobha, greed; and v) moha, infatuation will be narrated ending with the episode of the prince being carried away by the horse (Pages 27.2-31.2; *9.31-*11.6).

[iii. Dharmanandana: Biographies of Five Souls]

MINISTER VĀSAVA TAKES KING PURANDARADATTA TO THE PARK, FULL OF VERNAL GLORY; THEY PAY RESPECTS TO DHARMANANDANA WHO DISCOURSES ON SĀMSĀRA etc.: In the Vatsa country (described 31.3-18), in the town of Kauśāmbī (described § 68), there ruled a king Purandaradatta by name (described 31.33-32.8); and he had an able minister in Vāsava who was endowed with Samyaktva (described 32.9-15). One day, on his way to the temple of Arhat for worship, the minister Vāsava was presented with a bunch of mango-blossoms by the gardener Sthāvara who reported to him, first, the advent of spring, and secondly, the arrival of the preceptor Dharmanandana (with his disciples) in the garden; but received in return, firstly rebuke from his master for his unjustified sequence in reporting the events, and secondly, a good reward. Afterwards, Vāsava called on Purandaradatta, presented him with the same bunch of mango-blossoms, and requested him that they might personally witness the vernal glory of the park in the forest (described 33.5-13). In the park, they enjoyed the charming sight of trees, creepers and flowers attended by swarms of bees—all bathed in vernal beauty. Intending to pay respects to Dharmanandana, who was halting on a dry spot in the garden, the minister led the king there under the pretext of seeing the Aśoka tree planted by the latter as a prince. There they saw a multitude of monks some of whom were studying different Aṅgas (enumerated by names), logic with five or ten limbed syllogism (34.20) nimitta, Joṇī-pāhuḍa etc., and some were very much emaciated on account of penances. In the midst sat the preceptor Dharmanandana gifted with fourfold knowledge (§ 73). On being inquired of, the minister duly introduced the monks and the Preceptor to the king, and as proposed by the minister, who offers a prayer (35.9.12), the king joined him in offering obeisance to them: both of them were blessed with dharmalābha. The Preceptor welcomed them along with others who arrived there and saluted him. The king wondered why the preceptor, so gifted as he was, had taken to renunciation. The preceptor started his discourse on the nature of saṃsāra which itself is an enough cause for renunciation. He continued how himsā of various types committed through passions and different pretexts leads to hells where the doer himself has to suffer (35.24 to 36.6). The hells are full of tortures (described §§ 75-78) as preached by the omniscient; even in the various subhuman species there are many miseries (described §§ 79-80); the human birth, with its advantages, is not without its pitfalls and pangs (described §§ 81-82); and the birth in heavens too has its limitations (described §§ 83-84). This was in reply to the thoughts in the mind of Purandaradatta who received some instructions on virtues and their cultivation (43.23 f.) and was taught how the words of Jina would rescue one from the misery of Saṃsāra and lead to eternal bliss. The minister Vāsava was told that the cause of wanderings in this miserable Saṃsāra consists of krodha, māna, māyā and lobha (and also moha) which are defined (44.17-21) and the four grades (anantānubandhī, apratyākhyānāvaraṇa, pratyākhyānāvaraṇa and saṃjvalana) of which (44.22 to 45.37) are illustrated (Pages 31.3-45.5; * 11.6-* 13.4).

1. ANGER—BIOGRAPHY OF CAṆḌASOMA: Anger leads to mental unbalance whereby one kills even one's brother and sister, as seen from the career of this angry-looking man seated here, Dharmanandana continued, which deserves to be heard.

In the settlement Ragaḍā by name (described 45.17-20), close to Kāñcī, the capital of the country of Kāñcī of Draviḍas, there lived a poor twice-born Suśarmadeva. His eldest son was Bhadraśarmā, who, due to his naughtiness in childhood and illtreatment of other boys, came to be called significantly Caṇḍasoma, the one seated here. The parents married him to a suitable girl and, leaving to him the responsibility of the house, went on a pilgrimage to the Ganges. His beloved Nandinī reached the bloom of youth and thus attracted the eyes of the village youths. Caṇḍasoma grew jealous of her, though she was chaste of character; with the advent of the autumn (described 46.5-8), a party of actors reached that village; and Haradatta, the leading mayahara, arranged a show for which the whole village was invited. When people started going thither, Caṇḍasoma, equally eager to attend the show (to which his brother too had already gone), started worrying about the safety of his blooming beloved, whom he entrusted to his sister Śrīsomā, and went to the show. Despite Nandinī's warning, Śrīsomā also went to the show. There in the audience (raṅga), Caṇḍasoma heard amorous whisperings of a couple; and from an indirect mention of the word caṇḍa, he suspected that his beloved had come with her lover to the show. He got a timely hint from a song; and, burning with anger, he went home and waited hidden behind the door with a stick to strike his wife on her return. As the show was over by this time, both his brother and sister returned home; and mistaking them for the suspected couple, he hit them both who fell dead. Hearing the noise, Nandinī came from inside and pointed out to him what havoc he had made. He was full of remorse, started lamenting over the past, and decided to immolate himself on their funeral pyre (§ 93).

Next morning he took their bodies to the cremation ground. When he was about to jump into the flames, people held him back. The learned Brāhmaṇas assured him with inconsistent diagnosis and prescriptions that there was prāyaścitta for purification from such sins. He was asked, at last, to quit the house, distribute the property among Brāhmaṇas, and go clean-shaved and abegging to various tīrthas. He was thus being misguided. He came here full of Vairāgya and wanted to know further how he could be free from sin. Dharmanandana told him that one must reap the fruits of one's Karmas: any way, he was advised to practise penance and adopt the code of virtues (49.15-18). When Caṇḍasoma's Karmas were sufficiently quieted, he was duly given dikṣā by the preceptor (Pages 45.6-49.21; *13.5-*15.2).

2. VANITY—BIOGRAPHY OF MĀNABHAṬA: Dharmanandana continued that māna (pride or vanity) brings mental torture and leads to all sorts of ruin. A vain person loses all sense of discrimination, and cannot save his parents and beloved from dying. This is seen from the career of this vain-looking person, seated here, which deserves to be heard.

To the north-east of the beautiful town of Ujjainī (described, 50.10-19), right in the heart of Mālava-deśa, in the Avanti-janapada (described 50.3-7), there is a rich village Kūpavandra by name. There lived an old royal Ṭhākura Kṣetrabhaṭa by name, who had fallen on evil days; and his son was Vīrabhaṭa whom he loved more than his life. For their service, the king of Ujjainī, gave them the above village. Due to old age and exacting active war service Kṣetrabhaṭa remained at home; Vīrabhaṭa attended the king; and in due course Śaktibhaṭa (the son of Vīrabhaṭa) continued the service. Śaktibhaṭa was highly vain, haughty and given to luxuries; so he came to be known as Mānabhaṭa in the princely order. One day, Mānabhaṭa found that his seat in the Durbar of king Avantivardhana was occupied by a Pulinda prince, who apologetically explained that this would not be repeated. He took offence, gave wrecklessly a fatal stroke of his sword on the prince's chest, and ran from the Durbar to his village. His father advised him to quit the country for safety. He sent his father bag and baggage to the bank of Narmadā; and staying behind with vanity, he faced the Pulinda forces which he defeated. Though heavily wounded in the battle, he joined his father, camped in a fortified village and spent his time comfortably (described 51.29-34). One day, as a part of the spring sports, the village youths agreed among themselves to sing about one's beloved while playing on the swing. Mānabhaṭa happened to praise a darkish beloved (52.13-15) wherefore his fair wife, who was present there, felt offended; and she was so much humiliated and irritated by her friends that she dashed homewards in the dark evening (described 52.27-30) with a decision to die. She entered her bed-room, prepared a noose for her neck, appealed to the Lokapālas (53.6-9) that her husband behaved like this despite her faithfulness to him, and hanged herself. In the meanwhile, Mānabhaṭa came there and could rescue her before the breath was gone. After a little conversation with her, he realized that he was misunderstood by her. He tried to convince her about his innocence and, holding his vanity in abeyance, even fell at her feet, but without any effect on her who remained quite silent. His vanity surged up; and in sheer disgust of her frailty, he left home to see how she reacts. Then she felt repentant, and, telling her mother-in-law about it, she rushed after him. His mother, and after her, his father followed them. Seeing his beloved behind him, he decided to test her attachment for him. Reaching the village well, he dropped a big stone in it and hid himself behind a tree. The noise of the falling stone gave her the impression that he had jumped into the well, and she followed suit as a true wife should do; the mother-in-law also followed her; and even the warrior, Vīrabhaṭa, saw no other alternative than to jump into the well. Mānabhaṭa saw the whole episode; but repentance came on him too late, and he started lamenting (§ 106) over his cruelty and ungratefulness. Finishing their obsequial ceremonies, he started on a tour with a view to meeting by chance some preceptor who would purify him of that sin. At Mathurā he heard a colloquial conversation in the camp of disabled and diseased destitutes, and got the clue that a dip in the confluence of the Ganges would wash him of his specific sins. He has arrived in Kauśāmbī with that idea. The purity of mind accompanied by penance and rules of good behaviour would wash the sins and not a dip into the Ganges etc. Hearing this, Mānabhaṭa sought further light and guidance from Dharmanandana who preached to him the fourfold steps (samyaktva, jñāna, tapas and saṁyama) and finally initiated him duly in the order (Pages 49.22-56.10; *15.4- *18-3).

3. DECEIT—BIOGRAPHY OF MĀYĀDITYA: Dharmanandana continued that māyā (deceit) is abominable, and a deceitful person behaves crookedly to the ruin of his reputation, wealth and friends. This is illustrated by the career of this treacherous looking person, seated here, which is worth hearing.

There is a village, Śāligrāma, to the south-west of Vārāṇasī (described 56.26-30) in the territory of Kāśī (described 56.21-25). In it lived a Vaiśya, Gaṅgāditya, who was poor, ugly, socially abominable, morally heinous and full of treachery wherefore he was unanimously nicknamed and addressed by all as Māyāditya (: here he is). He developed friendship once with a rich local businessman Sthāṇu who, being essentially of good nature, and despite warnings from others, responded affectionately. Somehow their contacts grew, though hypocritical on the one side and sincere on the other. Though they basically differed on the ways of earning wealth (57.16-17 and 24-26), they decided to go to Dakṣiṇāpatha for suitable business, and duly reached the town of Pratiṣṭhāna. By trying their hands at various trades, each one could earn, to his satisfaction, five thousand; and they decided to convert each one's cash into five precious stones for the safety of a distant journey. They packed those ten pieces in a dirty rag, dressed themselves as friars (58.2-3) on a pilgrimage, and travelled on abegging. One day Sthāṇu, when he went to the market for provisions, entrusted the package of ten precious stones to Māyāditya, who, however, prepared a similar package of ordinary stones with a view to running away with the former. Later, when Māyāditya ran away, giving one package to Sthāṇu, he found, after covering a long distance, that he had duped himself by bringing with him the package of ordinary stones. He decided to meet his friend and mend matters to his advantage. Sthāṇu with all his innocence and goodness started searching for his friend in sorrow. One day, being quite tired, he halted for the night in a temple where the song of a Gūrjara (59.3) way-farer gave him some consolation and courage. He proceeded homewards deciding to give half of the jewels to his friend's successors in the family. Just then, to his joy, there arrived Māyāditya who, in all hypocrisy, narrated a fictitious tale of his lonely adventures how he was arrested as a thief and detained there, how, under the guidance of a maid servant, he escaped the fatal ordeal of being offered as bali to a goddess, and how he came over here, ever yearning to meet him. Both of them crossed the river Narmadā, but missed the way and entered a thick forest (described 60.15-24). In the terrific heat of summer (described 60.26 to 61.1) this straying through that awful jungle was a torture for them. As the package of jewels was slipping down from the loins, Sthāṇu requested Māyāditya, to the latter's satisfaction, to take it. They reached an ancient Vaṭa tree, and close by there was a deep well with no means in the vicinity to take out water. Māyāditya thought that there was an opportunity for his wicked plans. He requested Sthāṇu to see at what depth the water was there in the well that he might prepare a suitable creeper-rope. While he was doing it, Māyāditya pushed him into the well: luckily he fell into the water, with little hurt to his body. On account of his innate goodness, he could not convince himself that his friend Māyāditya had pushed him into the well. While Māyāditya was, on the other hand, feeling joyful at the prospect of having all the ten jewels for himself, a party of robbers headed by Śabarāsena overpowered him, took the jewels, and threw him bound-alive in a thicket. On their way, one of the robbers wanting to take out water from that well saw Sthāṇu inside, and, under orders from his master, took him out safely. They all wondered at his goodness, credulity and respect for his treacherous friend, and handed over to him the five jewels of his share, warning him, however, to be at a distance from a friend like that. Sthāṇu searched out his friend, bandaged his wounds, and shared equally those five jewels. Māyāditya felt remorse now, and decided to enter fire to expiate his sin of treachery towards a friend. The village elders in their colloquial language (63.18-26) analysed his sin; and the chief among them asked him to dip in the Ganges and die there fasting for washing the stain of his sin. On his way he has come here. When he sought further light and guidance, Dharmanandana advised him to seek shelter in the words of Jina, and finally gave him dīkṣā seeing that his Karmas were sufficiently quieted (Pages 56.10-64.13; * 18.5- *21.15).

4. GREED--BIOGRAPHY OF LOBHADEVA: In the village Uccasthala (described 65.1-2), situated to the south-west of Takṣaśilā (described 64.28-35) in Uttarāpatha (in the Madhyama-khaṇḍa to the south of Vaitāḍhya, in Bhārata Varṣa, in Jambūdvīpa), there lived a sārthavāha's son, Dhanadeva, sūdra by birth, who spent his time with other sārthavāha youths. As he was highly greedy, deceitful and avaricious of other's wealth, he was nicknamed Lobhadeva by which he became well-known. Lobhadeva told his father that after all the family wealth was there, but he wanted to increase it by trading in Dakṣiṇāpatha. The horses, conveyances etc. of the caravan were ready. His father indicated to him the possible dangers and instructed him in tactful behaviour to suit an emergency (65.15-19). He reached Dakṣiṇāpatha and camped at Sopāraka with an old Śreṣṭhin (guild-head, banker). In due course, he sold horses and earned enormous wealth. As it was the custom in the Native Traders' Club (desiya-vāṇiya-melī), he went there with his host to narrate his experience and receive the formal presents (gandha, mālya and tāmbūla). Local traders started talking about their respective adventures: how different commodities brought them great profits. It was disclosed that neem-leaves could secure precious stones in the Ratnadvīpa, but the journey to it was full of risks; of course, risks and gains go together. The gains of Ratnadvīpa captivated the mind of Lobhadeva who proposed to Bhadraśreṣṭhin that they might sail thither for trade. The latter advised contentment to him, but he was firm in his adventure with which alone goes Lakṣmī (66.18-24). Bhadraśreṣṭhin narrated to him his past experiences, but at last agreed just to accompany him who alone would be the bhāṇḍa-pati, the master of the merchandise. They arranged their fleet, and duly started on an auspicious day (described 67.1-7). After a rough sea journey, they reached the Ratnadvīpa. After trading profitably there, on their return journey, when their ship, full of exchange-commodities, reached the mid-sea, that avaricious Lobhadeva, fearing that Bhadraśreṣṭhin would be his partner on reaching the shore, took him to the ante-room under some pretext, cruelly pushed him into the sea, and raised a cry of accident, rather too late. He pretended to jump into the sea to meet his friend; but the sailors dissuaded him, and that suited him well. Dying there under the waves, Bhadraśreṣṭhin was reborn as a Rākṣasa in the Vyantara region; and, when he reviewed his death, he realized how wicked it was on the part of Lobhadeva to have pushed him into the sea like that. His anger flared up, and he decided to ruin the fortunes of Lobhadeva: there he developed a fatal gale which made all the inmates of the ship nervous, and they began to seek divine grace. The Rākṣasa reminded Lobhadeva of his wickedness and tossed that ship up and down (described 69.1-7) till it was smashed to pieces. Lobhadeva, however, floating precariously with a plank touched Tāradvīpa almost unconscious. The cool breeze refreshed him. But he found himself in the hands of some fierce-looking persons whose apparent hospitality he could not understand. They fed him fat, chopped his flesh and took his blood; and then they healed his wounds with special medicine. This was repeated every six months; and his blood and flesh were used for alchemical experiment (69.24-28). After twelve years like this what remained of him was a skeleton. One day while he was yearning for death with his body chopped like that, he was picked up by a giant bhāraṇḍa bird which was attacked in the sky by another for this prey, with the result that he slipped down from its beak, fell in the ocean, and, suffering a good deal, reached eventually the shore covered with forest (described 70.16-18). When he was comfortable in that forest, a lovely spot reminded him of gods and their previous merits, of hell and sins leading thereto, and of his ingratitude to Bhadraśreṣṭhin. He was overcome by remorse for his sin of having killed his friend, and wanted to purify himself: with these thoughts, he fell asleep. When he woke up, he heard a catching conversation which was neither in Sanskrit (described 71.1-3), nor in Prākṛit (described 71.3-5), nor in Apabhraṁśa (described 73.5-7) but in Paiśācī in which the Piśācas were discussing as to what was a fine spot. Their decision was that the stream of the river Ganges was attractive; and the sin of a friend's murder could be washed off there.

He proceeded towards the Ganges. On his way he has come here, and is now eager to know what to do further. It is only the practice of austerities and the cultivation of religious virtues that can remove the sin. In due course, with the pressure of his passions subsiding, he was given dīkṣā by Dharmanandana (Pages 64.14-72.17; *21.17-*24.30).

5. INFATUATION—BIOGRAPHY OF MOHADATTA: Dharmanandana continued that moha (infatuation) unbalances the mind, dislodges the sense of discrimination, and leads to all-round ruin. This is obvious from the career of this handsome person, seated here, who never understood what is right or wrong; and it is worth hearing.

A stern king Kośala by name ruled in Kośala (described 72.34-73.2) the capital of Kośala (described 73.30-34). Prince Tosala was his worthy son who moved freely in the town. One day he saw a beautiful girl behind the latticed window of the Banker's palace; he gazed at her with passionate affection; and she responded favourably. When it grew dark (described 73.16-18), he equipped himself properly and managed to get into her private apartment where she was all alone (73.22-24). With stealthy steps he closed her eyes from behind; his touch thrilled her; and she could identify who he was. The gallant prince was about to leave her, respecting her fidelity to chastity; but she detained him on account of her surging passion. She was, she disclosed, Suvarṇadevā (-devī), beloved daughter of the local banker Nanda and his wife Ratnarekhā. She was married to Haridatta, son of Viṣṇudatta. Her husband went to Laṅkāpurī for trade, some twelve years back, and nothing was heard of him. This unfortunate separation had made her restless, and the passion of youth was surging up beyond restraint. In a despondent mood, when she wanted to commit suicide, she saw the prince from the window; and their eyes responded favourably. She wanted him to behave in such a way that she suffered no humiliation in the family for her immorality. Either he should be her nātha (whom she would follow), or she would die; saying this, she embraced him. They spent many happy nights together thus, and she became pregnant. The scandal was whispered all round and reached the ears of Nandaśreṣṭhin who reported the matter to king Kośala for investigation that his daughter, though guarded, was being molested by somebody. The king ordered his minister to behead prince Tosala who was found guilty of this crime. The minister, accordingly, led the prince to the cremation ground; but, hesitating to kill him, asked him to disappear anonymously to an unknown place. The prince ran for safety and began to serve as a common man under king Jayavarman at Pāṭaliputra. Suvarṇadevā came to know, while she was spending her time in humiliation and anxiety, that the prince was beheaded by the minister on account of her. She managed to leave home and flew from the town, and could join a caravan bound for Pāṭaliputra. Due to her physical disability, she lagged behind, missed the track, and started treading her way, full of suffering and fear. She wept and wailed; and she fell unconscious, when it was night-fall (described 75.21-28). Coming back to her senses, she was at the end of her wits in that dead of night. The period of pregnancy was full; and in that hopeless and helpless condition, she gave birth to twins, a girl and a boy on whom now she looked for support and shelter (76.7-10). She decided to live looking after these children somewhere. Round the boy's neck she tied a coin with prince Tosali's name, and round the girl's neck another with her own name. She wrapped up the babies with the two ends of her upper garment, left them there, and went to a nearby stream for a wash. In the meanwhile, a hungry tigress, just delivered, came in search of prey and picked up that garment with packings of children dangling at both the ends. As it crossed the road, Ujjainī to Pāṭaliputra, the girl dropped down on the road unnoticed by it. She was picked up by a messenger of Jayavarman who entrusted her to his issueless wife to her joy; and she was named Vanadattā and grew at Pāṭaliputra. The tigress, carrying the boy on the way to its den, was hit dead with an arrow by prince Śabarasiṃha (attached to king Jayavarman) who had come for hunting. He picked up the lovely-looking boy, and his wife consecrated him as her regular son naming him significantly Vyāghradatta. They came to Pāṭaliputra where the boy, as he grew, was nicknamed by his companions as Mohadatta. The disappearance of the babies shocked the mother who burst into lamentation. The steps of the tigress gave her a little clue; following them she reached the house of an ābhīrī (a cowherd's wife) who sheltered her like a daughter; and then, going from village to village, she soon reached Pāṭaliputra, where, as luck would have it, she was employed in that messenger's house, as a maid servant, to nurse Vanadattā, her own daughter whom she did not recognise. Vanadattā grew into a lovely maiden easily captivating with her glances the youths of the town. During spring, on the day of Madana-trayodaśī, when she had gone for the festival in the park with her mother etc., she was seen by Mohadatta who significantly hinted his passion for her; and she also responded quite favourably (77.22-26). Suvarṇadevā also grasped the situation, but asked her to come there again to meet him after the festival. Vanadattā went home, and remained plunged in the pangs of separation. One day, on her way to the park, Vanadattā was seen by Prince Tosala whom Suvarṇadevā (who was escorting Vanadattā) could not recognise, nor did he recognise her, for obvious reasons. Tosala fell in passionate love with Vanadattā, and resolved to win her hand at any cost. He followed her to the park, and, finding an opportunity, asked her, with naked sword in hand, either to accept him or be a prey to his sword. Suvarṇadevā and others on the spot were terrified, and raised a hue and cry. Hearing that, Vyāghradatta (i.e., Mohadatta) rushed on the scene and encountered Tosala. There was a duel between the two in which Tosala met his end. When Mohadatta took nervous Vanadattā aside for love-sports, some unseen voice announced to him that it was unworthy of him to enjoy his own sister, in the presence of his mother, and that, too, after killing his father. He could find out that a monk of divine knowledge, who was there in the vicinity, had announced this. On inquiry, the monk explained to Mohadatta that Tosala was his father, Suvarṇadevā his mother, and Vanadattā, his sister. Mohadatta felt remorse for his ajñāna, ignorance, and consequent sin for which he wanted expiation. The monk preached to him religious virtues and austerities which would duly lead him to liberation. Mohadatta wanted to accept dīkṣā; but the monk, being a cāraṇa-śramaṇa, could not give it to him. As directed by him Mohadatta came to,

Dharmanandana, and with his Moha quieted now, received dīkṣā from him (Pages 72.17-80.32; *24.32- *29.40: in this context the Sk.text glorifies the mount Śatruñjaya).

A DISCOURSE ON FIVE PASSIONS: Dharmanandana continued his discourse to minister Vāsava that these five passions (krodha etc.) delude the soul which, then, is driven round in samsāra: they should be kept under control, or, if in operation, made ineffective (a detailed discourse 81.4 to 82.7). Purandaradatta and Vāsava took leave of the monks and entered the town (Pages 81.1-82.7; *30.1-3).

PURANDARADATTA'S EXPERIENCES ON THE ROYAL ROAD AND HIS CURIOSITY ABOUT MONKS' ROUTINE AT NIGHT: It was sun-set (described § 156) followed by the usual movements and activities in different places (described, especially the talks and behaviour of courtezans in their apartments, §§ 157-58). After covering the evening routine, King Purandaradatta, whose mind was already affected by Vairāgya, was curious to see anonymously what really the monks did at this time. He changed his dress suitably (84.8-25), and started at a time when the activities of monks and courtezans were diametrically opposite (§ 160). As he proceeded he learnt on the way how an irritated beloved was tricked by her companions into heightened love towards her husband whereby his passion was tickled (85.3 to 86.2). He came across a monk on the road practising penance and standing undisturbed like a statue, and he felt great respect for his hidden glory (86.3-21). He escorted a daring and devoted woman rushing in the dead of night to her lover whom she meets on the way, to the joy of both (86.21 to 87.10). He crossed the city-wall with a miraculous flight (vidyut-kṣiptam karanam) and reached the spot in the park occupied by Dharmanandana whose ascetic pupils were occupied, as professed, with a variety of religious routine, especially study and meditation (87.20-27). He heard Dharmanandana discoursing to the newly ordained five monks (Caṇḍasoma etc.) on the rarity of human birth and of the adoption of the religion of Jina therein (§ 165); and it occurred to him to practise this religion after enjoying worldly benefits which are equally rare. Reading his mind, Dharmanandana denounced the worldly benefits as worthless, by narrating the parable of Kāumbarī fruits. (Pages 82.8-88.29; *30.7-33).

THE PARABLE OF KĀUMBARĪ FRUITS: Three ship-wrecked persons (corresponding to three kinds of souls (abhavya, kāla-bhavya and tat-kṣaṇa-bhavya) reached by chance a lonely island (= human birth) where they could find three thickets (=houses) with kāumbarī plants (= women, wives) to the fruits of which they were very much attached. When some sailors (=religious preceptors) came to their rescue, one would not leave the place at all, the second said that he would go later, and the third immediately accompanied them. The first was irrevocably entangled in the worldly temptations; the second lingered a little as a householder; and the third immediately renounced the world for attaining eternal bliss (Pages 88.30-90.20; *30.34- *31-39).

[Here the Sanskrit text adds the Vrata-drṣṭānta (*31.40-*33.30): A merchant wants to test the ability of his four daughters-in-law in managing the household. Publicly he gives them each five grains of rice with instructions to return them when he wants them. The first daughter-in-law throws them away thinking that the granary is full and five grains can be picked up and given any day. The second one thinks alike but eats them. The third one preserves them in her ornament-casket. The fourth one plants and reaps the harvest over and over again for five years. The Merchant gives the meanest task to the first two in the house; the third one is made a treasurer, and the fourth, the Manager of the family affairs. The best disciple is he who not only preserves the Five Mahāvratas (which correspond to five rice-particles) but also propagates them for the benefit of others.]

[The Sanskrit text adds further the story of Vinīta (*33.40-*39.3) along with a discourse on Vinaya (*33.32-9): Vinīta, lying as a child in a field, was found by Viṣavākya, of bad speech; he grew up worthily; and he was recognised as a Śreṣṭhin by king Harṣa. Once, during the famine, an old man, an old woman and a youth became his dependants. In a battle against Jitāri of Campā, he had to run for life. On the way, he saved a deer being hunted to death by king Pṛthvīcandra of Kṣmātilaka who was pleased to appoint him as a minister. His earlier dependants also joined him. Viṣavākya, who had accepted dīkṣā, went to Vinīta's place, but could not accept food there. Vinīta was advised by Teachers that he should be above attachment and was thus enlightened on the path of religion by a detailed discourse (*36.1-*38.7). When he wanted his father to stay on, the Teachers enlightened him that Viṣavākya was only his guardian; and his father, mother and brother were working as attendants in his house. He went home and duly respected them: he became famous for his vinaya. Once he wanted to give some specific medicine to a monk, but as his wedding was at hand, it was forgotten. He remembered it at the moment of wedding. He felt sorry and repentant for it. He left the bride to be wedded and rushed to the monk to give the medicine. By virtue of this superior bhāvarā, he attained omniscience.]

REPENTANCE AND RENUNCIATION PANACEA AGAINST SINS: Caṇḍasoma and others were ready to practise all that, but their sin was pricking in their heart, against which the sovereign remedy was, they were advised, repentance with renunciation. The king was much impressed by the integrity of the monks; his mind became very much inclined to religious life; and, quietly offering salutations to Dharmanandana from a distance, he returned to his palace by midnight for rest (Pages 90.21-91.8; *39.4-9).

PURANDARADATTA BECAME A ŚRĀVAKA: With the dawn (described 91.9-13) announced by bards, the king woke up, finished his morning duties, came, along with his minister, to the park, and paid respects to Dharmanandana, who, he could realize, was aware of his arrival earlier night and of his thoughts. He accepted, as he was not able to renounce worldly attachment, the śrāvaka-dharma consisting of twelve vows founded on samyaktva (91.21-22). The king and the minister learnt that the monks were to go away that day; they paid respects to and hoped to meet them again; and they returned to the town (Pages 91.8-30; *39.9-20).

MUTUAL AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE FIVE: The five monks (Caṇḍasoma etc.) were very much attached to each other; and they started leading a rigorous religious life. Once Caṇḍasoma, the eldest of them, was requested by others to bestow samyaktva on the rest, if circumstances were favourable, in the next birth; and they agreed to enlighten one another subsequently (Pages 91.30-92.9; *39.21-27).

LOBHADEVA'S CAREER IN SAUDHARMAKALPA: Lobhadeva died a pious death, and was born in the Saudharmakalpa (described § 171) in the Padma-vimāna (described, the details of birth etc. § 172) where he was looked after by heavenly attendants (described 93.14-8) and possessed celestial prosperity. He is called Padmaprabha there; and on reflection, he recollected his past and how he was born as a god. He saluted Jina and the religion preached by him. As a part of the routine, he reached the bathing pool (described 94.15-24); and enjoyed water-sports with nymphs there (described 94.24-32); he wore a pair of celestial garments and reached the temple of Padmaprabha; there were many images of precious stones (described 95.6-10). He offered worship there and solicited for samyaktva. He opened the book and read therein prayers to the Pañca-parameṣṭhin and the religious duties prescribed for laymen and monks (§ 177). Thus he lived happily there (Pages 92.9-96.3; *39.27-30).

FOUR OTHERS TOO REACH SAUDHARMAKALPA: Likewise, after some time, Mānabhaṭa also was born as Padmasāra, Māyāditya as Padmavara, Caṇḍasoma as Padmacandra, and Mohadatta as Padmakesara in the same Vimāna. They were friendly to each other and recollected their earlier agreement (Pages 96.3-10; *39.30-36).

DHARMANĀTHA'S SAMAVASARAṆA: Consequent on Dharmajinendra developing omniscience, there was a gay rustle (96.10-15) in the heaven; and the seats of gods suffered a tremor. Along with Indra, all the gods reached with respect and joy and in a great pomp (96.21-25) his samavasaraṇa in the town of Campā. With the assent of Indra, Padmasāra constructed the Samavasaraṇa, the audience-hall of Dharmanātha, with its walls, gates, wells, prātihāryas etc. (§ 178). Various beings, with no antipathy between them and in a peaceful order, took their seats; and Dharmanātha, from his prominent position, began to preach to all of them, who clearly understood him in their respective medium of expression (sva-bhāṣayā): the seven Tattvas, the nature of Jīva, its relation with the body and Karmic matter, its liberation from them, the samsāra and the causes of it, mokṣa and the means of it, etc. (§ 179). On an inquiry from the Gaṇadhara, Dharmanātha disclosed that the tiny wild Mouse (which attracted the attention of all on a reference being made to it), seated there, would be the first in the audience to reach Liberation. He narrated its biography to satisfy the curiosity of the gathering (Pages 96.10-99.13; *39.37-41.40).

THE BIOGRAPHY OF THE WILD MOUSE: King Kosala attacked the encampment, Vindhya-vāsa; its ruler Mahendra being killed in the fray, the queen Tārā ran for life taking with her the eight-year boy, Tārācandra, and reached the town of Bhṛgukaccha where she knew nobody. She met on the road two nuns who kindly led her to the pravartinī in the monastery who, struck by her dignified demeanour and knowing her tale, sheltered her as a daughter, and, in due course, as a remedy against her plight, advised her to submit the boy to the Ācārya, Śunanda, and accept renunciation in their midst, whereby the misery of samsāra would be terminated. Tārācandra, who was duly initiated in the order, could not reconcile his mood with the intensely rigorous discipline of the monastery (§ 182) but envied the free life of the wild rats; he was born as a god after an accidental death; and then he was reborn as a wild rat on account of the earlier nidāna for which there was no due atonement. As a rat, he enjoyed various pleasures in the company of his mates, has now arrived in this samavasaraṇa and recollected his past, and, therefore, is all remorse about his earlier behaviour. A soul with right faith never incurs fresh bondage of tiryag-āyus, but just experiences the earlier one. In due course, the rat will die a pious death with mental resignation, be born as prince Mitrakumāra (son of Mihilla = Maithila and his queen Citrā), be enlightened by a clairvoyant monk, and then soon be liberated as anta-kṛt Kevalin. All of them fondled the rat in appreciation of its happy prospects (Pages 99.14-102.12; *41.40- *44.24).

FIVE CONFER AND SET UP MEMORY-CLUE: At this stage, on an inquiry from [Lobhadeva >] Padmaprabha, the revered one explained that they all (five) were bhavya, would easily attain enlightenment, and get liberated in the fourth birth (their next births being duly indicated). They consulted together, realized the difficulty of mutual enlightenment, requested [Mohadatta >] Padmakesara (who was the last to leave heaven) to enlighten them; by way of memory-clue, they all prepared their counter-parts (i. e., images resembling them) in precious stone, buried them at the spot where the [Caṇḍasoma > Padmacandra >] Lion was to be born in the forest, and put a stone on it to mark out the spot. They all returned to heaven (Pages 102.13-103.2; *44.25- *45.5).

SĀGARADATTA AND HIS ADVENTURE: [Lobhadeva >] Padmaprabha was reborn at Campā as Sāgaradatta, son of the banker Dhanadatta and Lakṣmī, and, in due course, was wedded to Śrī. One day, on the autumnal full-moon night, Sāgaradatta gave a gift of one lakh to an actor for his subhāṣita. He took a hint from the taunt that his munificence was based on ancestral wealth; he determined to earn seven crores within a year, and failing this to enter fire; he left on the door of his house a record to that effect; and he started from home towards the prosperous South. He reached the town Jayaśrī, on the southern shore (described 104.8-12). When, tired with long journey, he sat brooding under a tree on the various alternatives of earning wealth, he observed a mālūra tree, having secondary pāda or trunks (spread round) which indicated, as studied by him in the lore of mining (khanya-vāda, details given), that there was wealth below. By digging, as advised by the voice of deities prayed to, he took a handful of silver pieces (and the rest of the treasure disappeared) which would bring seven crores for him. He entered the town. An old merchant was very much pleased with his efficient salesmanship, welcomed him at his place, and offered his lovely daughter to him in marriage. Sāgaradatta explained to him his objective, and taking necessary merchandise, started to a distant port in Yavana-dvīpa, where he earned more than seven crores. While returning, on account of a mighty gale, the ship went to the bottom of the sea. Somehow he reached Candradvīpa (described 106.21); and he satisfied his hunger with various fruits. As he moved about, he heard a voice which he ascertained to be that of a lovely girl who was about to hang herself to death. He loosened the creeper-noose on her neck; she came back to consciousness; and, on an earnest inquiry by him, she started narrating her tale to him (Pages 103.3-107.15; *45.5- *47.11).

THE GIRL IN DESPAIR INTRODUCES HERSELF TO SĀGARADATTA: 'I am the daughter, freely grown up, of a wealthy banker, Mahādhana, from Śrītuṅga, situated on the southern shore. While sleeping on the terrace, I was kidnapped by a Vidyādhara to find myself awake in the forest. Captivated by his form, I offered myself to him. Even before he accepted me, another Vidyādhara, with sword in hand, appeared on the scene; both of them attacked each other and fell dead in the encounter. I was aghast and plunged in sorrow; and in that helpless mood, I attempted suicide' (Pages 107.16-108.14; *47.12-38).

SĀGARADATTA REBUKED, REMINDED OF HIS DUTY AND REACHES HOME: Sāgaradatta told her about his ship-wreck and the consequent breach of his solemn resolution. Both of them decided to seek grave in fire and duly jumped into the flames of a burning bamboo-thicket. Lo! the flames were turned into lotus-flowers, and there came a god in his Vimāna. The god (Padmakesara) rebuked Sāgaradatta for his cowardly act, reminded him of his glories in heaven, and requested him to possess seven crores (in the form of jñāna, samyaktva and five mahāvratas), enjoy pleasures (as the Karmas would have it) and then accept renunciation. He took Sāgaradatta and the girl into the Vimāna, put twentyone crores there, led him to the town of Jayatuṅga where he married both the girls, and then finally took them all to Campā (Pages 108.15-109.28; *47.38- *48.19).

SAINT SĀGARADATTA REVIEWS THE CAREER OF THE REST; KUVALAYACANDRA ENLIGHTENED, AND THE LION BORN AS GOD: The god reminded Sāgaradatta of the rest of his duties and returned to heaven. Then I (= Lobhadeva > Padmaprabha > Sāgaradatta > now Saint), in due course, accepted renunciation under Dhanadatta. I developed clairvoyance. I could visualize the career of my four colleagues: Caṇḍasoma > Padmacandra is born as a Lion in the Vindhya; Mānabhaṭa > Padmasāra is born as prince Kuvalayacandra, son of king Dṛḍhavarman in Ayodhyā; Māyāditya > Padmavara is born as Princess Kuvalayamālā, the daughter of king Mahāsena of Vijayā in the South. Our mutual promise to bestow samyaktva was recollected. God Padmakesara conferred with me, and we planned to enlighten the rest. It is adversity that makes one receptive of Religious enlightenment. So I reached the spot where Caṇḍasoma > Lion dwelt. God Padmakesara possessed your horse and brought and left you here in a mood of frustration. That is how you (= Kuvalayacandra) happened to be here; and you can see here the counterparts of the four in precious stones which should serve as mementos. Hearing all this, Kuvalayacandra developed right faith and was prescribed the duties of a householder, as his Karmas would have it: he resolved to respect only the Jina and the Śādhu, and not to kill even an enemy who is unarmed, running away and meek in words. Attending to all this, the Lion too was enlightened. It accepted fasting and remained intent on religious virtues. You (= Kuvalayacandra) will marry Kuvalayamālā by completing the verse hung publicly, and (Mohadatta > Padmakesara) will be born as your son. As it was a fit moment, Kuvalayacandra whispered sacred syllables into the ear of the dying Lion, which, after death, became a god (Pages 109.29-112.1; *48.19- *50.12).

[iv. Kuvalayacandra's Journey to the South]

KUALAYACANDRA WORSHIPS JINA IN THE VINDHYA FOREST: Then Kuvalayacandra proceeded to the South crossing the Vindhyan peaks, spotted with camps of wild tribes and presenting various scenes (described 112.3-25). By the time he reached the Vindhyan forest, the summer set in, and its effects on the forest, on the animals, on the town ladies were obvious (described § 197). The mid-day heat was oppressing to one and all. He was very thirsty, and from the appearance of elephants arriving there he could infer the presence of a lake which he soon reached to his great joy. Being aware of dietetic rules (reference to Āyuhśāstra, 114.22-8), he did not drink water at once. He rested for a while, and then enjoyed a hearty bath there. Thereafter, he had his thirst and hunger quenched with water and lotus fibres and stalks. While in search of fruits and flowers, he saw in a bower an image of Yakṣa crested with a pearl-statue of Arhat or Jina, to his great dismay and heightened reverence. He bathed, worshipped the Jina, offered prayers, and prostrated himself in salutation (Pages 112.2-115.15; *50.12-40), KUALAYACANDRA MEETS KANAKAPRABHĀ IN THE TEMPLE: At this juncture there was an upheaval in the lake, and there emerged from it a lovely maiden, attended by a little girl. To save them from embarrassment, Kuvalayacandra hid behind the statue. They were surprised to see the Jina lately worshipped by somebody; and it was inferred with justification that the worshipper must be a great man. They duly offered their worship, and started singing dvipadī lines, attracted by which Kuvalayacandra disclosed himself complimenting them for the fine recitation. The prince and the Yakṣa-kanyā greeted each other as co-religionists, and were very much eager to know mutually. The prince introduced himself; and then she narrated her biography to satisfy her curiosity (Pages 115.16-116.33; *50.41- *51-18).

RATNA- OR JINA-ŚEKHARA'S BIOGRAPHY AND KANAKAPRABHĀ'S GIFT OF MEDICAL COIL TO KUALAYACANDRA: In the town of Mākandī (described 117.1-5), there lived a Brāhmaṇa couple, Yajñadatta and his wife Sāvitrī, quite ugly in appearance. They had thirteen issues of which the last was (Yajña-) Soma, on whose birth there occurred a terrific famine extending over twelve years and with devastating results (described 117.13-21). The town of Mākandī was in utter desolation. The Brāhmaṇa family became extinct; but Soma, however, survived as a destitute, in utter misery. He was a Brāhmaṇa in name only and was about sixteen, when the famine was over. Remorseful about his fruitless life and miserable plight, Soma decided to leave Mākandī and migrate to some other territory. He reached the Vindhyan forest by summer (described 118.16-24). Losing the track, and wandering nervously all alone, oppressed by thirst and hunger, he reached a lake (118.28-30). There he took bath, drank water, and chewed lotus-stalks. While in search of fruits, he saw in a bower the pearl-image of Ādinātha, the like of which, he remembered, he had seen in Mākand, and felt great respect for it. Full of devotion, he surrendered himself to Jina and resolved to remain there ever worshipping Ādinātha's feet. In course of time, he died of colic; and, as he breathed his last with his eyes devotedly intent on the face Rsabha-iina, he was born in the region of Ratnaprabhā as a glorious Yakṣa, Ratnaśekhara by name, among the Vyantaras who are of eight classes: Yakṣa, Rākṣasa, Bhūta, Piśāca, Kīrnara, Kīmpuruṣa, Mahoraga and Gandharva. He recollected his past and the way he died. He developed all the more reverence for Rṣabha; he offered eloquent prayers; and he prostrated himself before Jina. He explained to his people how he got the fruit of namaskāra to Jina. He miraculously projected a pearl-image of himself with Jina on his crest; and the Yakṣas called him Jinaśekhara. He directed me, Kanakaprabhā, to worship this image daily; and I have been doing it.' Though the prince was content with all that he had seen and experienced, Kanakaprabhā insisted on his receiving something from her, and gave him a specific coil of medical herb (auṣadhī-valaya-viśeṣa), an antidote against all adversities in the journey. He thanked her for the gift (Pages 117.1-120.31; *51.19- *52.35).

KUVALAYACANDRA MEETS ENĪKĀ AND ROYAL PARROT IN THE HERMITAGE: The prince Kuvalayacandra travelled on in the Vindhyan ranges and reached the river Narmadā or Revā (described § 206). He crossed it and reached a hermitage, rich in fruit and flower trees. As he inferred, it was the residence of a female ascetic, Enīkā by name, who, with her dignified appearance, arrived on the scene followed by her retinue of domesticated beasts and birds, among which was prominent a Rāja-kīra (Royal-Parrot). She ran with dismay at the presence of this biped (i.e., prince Kuvalayacandra) into the hermitage; but on receiving some explanation from the Parrot, she duly welcomed him. He introduced himself to her; and, as she was a bit bashful, the Parrot started narrating their biography to him to satisfy his curiosity (Pages 120.31-122.30; *52-36- *53.18).

THE ROYAL PARROT INTRODUCES ITSELF: 'On the bank of Narmadā, in the forest Mahātavī, there lived a couple of Royal Parrots, Maṇimān and his beloved, in the hollow of a banyan tree. They gave birth to a Royal Parrot (i.e., myself) which, during childhood, fell into the hands of a young hunter who gave it to the Pallīpati from whom it passed on to Bhṛgu, the ruler of Bhṛgukaccha, who entrusted it to Madanamañjarī directing her to train it in all the fine arts. Soon I, i. e., the Royal Parrot, mastered everything (including conviction in the words of Jina) and became a Paṇḍita. During summer, a saint (formerly the father of Bhṛgu), plunged in religious meditation, came touring to Bhṛgukaccha and attained Kevala-jñāna. On getting the information, Bhṛgu and his harem etc. attended on the Kevalin and offered respects. I, the parrot, too went there along with the princess and offered prayers. At that time, there arrived two Vidyādhara, one dressed in blue and the other in yellow. Once they went from Vaitāḍhya to Sammata-śikhara, and thence to Śatruñjaya. On the way, they saw a lovely and dignified maiden, in the forest. She did not reply to them, but ran away, almost scared, with the pack of deer. And now they wanted to know from the Kevalin all about her. King Bhṛghu, too, was equally curious, and so the Kevalin started narrating her biography (Pages 122.31-124.26; *53.19- *54.9).

ENĪKĀ'S BIOGRAPHY: Śrīvatsa ruled at Ujjayinī (described 124.28-31). He had a son, Śrīvardhana, and a daughter, Śrīmatī. Śrīmatī was given in marriage to Siṃha, the son of king Vijaya of Vijayapura. Siṃha was turbulent by temper; so, being banished by his father, he resided with his wife in a village on the frontier. Once Śrīvardhana, who entered the order under Dharmaruci's instructions, came to that village, touring all alone, to receive food and terminate his one month's fast. He happened to reach his sister's house. She had heard about his renunciation. She recognised him; and, overflowing with affection for the brother, she embraced him with tears in her eyes. Just then Sīmha came there; and suspecting something foul in all this, he hit that monk to death on the spot. In anger she hit Sīmha fatally with a stick; and before he died, he cut her into two with his sword. Sīmha and his wife were reborn in the first hell. The monk, however, went to Saudharma-vimāna, and thence, was reborn as a king in Bhrgukaccha, the same as this (myself) Kevalin. Sīmha was reborn as a Brāhmaṇa in Nandipura; later, he accepted Eka-daṇḍin vow; and he was consequently born as a Jyotiṣka god. Knowing his earlier life from a Kevalin, he decided to take revenge on his wife who, he saw, was just born as a daughter to king Padma and his queen Śrīkāntā at Padmanagara. He picked up that female child, rushed to the South, and dropped the child from the sky. Luckily, the child fell in soft thicket and was thus saved from death. Just on that spot, by that time, a wild deer had delivered and seeing its young one and this female child, it felt convinced that these were its twins. It suckled and nourished both of them. The female child grew into a fine girl under this sylvan atmosphere and in the company of forest birds and beasts; but she ran away scared at the sight of human beings. She is my (i. e., Kevalin's) sister of the previous life. She is a bhavya, and would get samyaktva in this very life being instructed by this Rājakīra. The princess released me (i. e., the Rājakīra), as advised by the Kevalin. I paid respects to the Kevalin, and came to her in the forest. I gradually trained her in the various arts, in worthy acts and in the words of Jina. I gave her an idea of her past life, and requested her to come to human society; but she abhorred it and preferred to lead a life of self-restraint and austerities, as she is seen doing now, (Pages 124.27-127.26; *54.10- *55.14).

HAPPY TIME IN THE HERMITAGE AND MEETING WITH VIDYĀDHARAS: Hearing this, prince Kuvalayacandra greeted Eṇikā as a co-religionist. As it was mid-day, they had their bath in a stream in the vicinity and changed their clothes. Then they came to a spot with a crystal image of Rṣabha which they duly worshipped and to which they offered devotional prayers individually. They returned to the Āśrama. The prince had his meals, and thereafter Eṇikā and Rājakīra too. While Kuvalayacandra and Eṇikā spent their time discussing topics of learning and piety, there arrived one day a Śābara-couple (described 128.19-25). The prince, who knew Samudra-śāstra or Sāmudrika (and gave an exposition of it to Eṇikā in one verse in Sanskrit and in details in Prākṛit verses, 129.8-131.23) could see that in the guise of Śābara there was some great man. The Śābara also understood this, and went away immediately lest he might be found out. Eṇikā appreciated the prince's intelligence and disclosed that they were Vidyā-dharas who were practising Śābarī-vidyā, one of the many Vidyās (enumerated 132.2-3), which Dharaṇendra bestowed on Nami and Vinami pleased by their sevā of Rṣabha. The Rājakīra had seen them how they performed a detailed worship of the image of Ṛṣabha with great pomp, how they gave up their original dress, put on the appearance of Śābaras, and how they pursued the cultivation of Śābarī-vidyā under the auspices of the image of Ṛṣabha. That is how both Enikā and Kuvalayacandra came to know those Vidyādhara (Pages 127.27-133.28; *55.14- *57.9).

KUVALAYACANDRA DISCLOSES HIS OBJECT AND ANTECEDENTS: After some days Kuvalayacandra disclosed to them that he had to fulfil a sacred and solemn mission in the South where he must go now. As he left the place, on an inquiry by them, he narrated his antecedents thus: 'During boyhood, Ṛṣabha wished for the sugar-cane seen in the hands of Indra; and consequent on that his race came to be called Ikṣvāku-vaṁśa. Thus became famous Ikṣvāku Kṣatriyas, of whom Bharata was a Cakravartin. Ṛṣabha's other son was Bāhubali. Bharata's son was Ādityayaśas and Bāhubali's Somayaśas: from them started Āditya-vaṁśa and Śāśi-vaṁśa. It is in the latter, in the long run, that king Drḍhavarman of Ayodhyā was born; and I, Kuvalayacandra, am his son. I have to go to Vijayāpurī on some mission. Enikā could see that this separation must have been unbearable for his parents; so she arranged to send the message of his well-being to Ayodhyā through the Royal Parrot (Pages 133.28-134.23; *57.9-15).

KUVALAYACANDRA JOINS A CARAVAN AND HIS ENCOUNTER WITH THE PIOUS BHILLA CHIEF: Prince Kuvalayacandra travelled on posthaste and reached the Sahya mountain (described 134.25-30). Further, he came across a caravan of traders (134.32-135.3). Knowing that the caravan was bound for Kāñcīpurī, he joined it, to cover some distant, with the consent of its leader Vaiśramaṇadatta who welcomed him marking his dignified demeanour. The caravan reached a spot with Bhilla camps in the vicinity; it was well guarded (described 135.10); it was sunset (described 135.12-17); and next morning when it started there was a lot of bustle of instructions etc. (135.21-24). At that time, there was an attack from the Bhillas who robbed the caravan of all that was valuable. When the caravan was routed, the merchant's daughter, Dhanavatī, ran about helplessly and sought shelter of the prince who routed the Bhilla party by an incessant shower of arrows. The Bhilla leader appreciated his bravery, and challenged him to a duel. Both of them fought in various ways, with different weapons and missiles (136.15-27). When the Bhilla chief realized that the prince was more than a match for him and that his death was certain, somehow there was an awakening in him to follow the words of Jina; and he drew himself sufficiently aside, threw the weapons, took the kāyotsarga position, and engrossed himself in meditation uttering the pañca-namaskāra. Seeing him like that, the prince rushed to him non-plussed, and embraced him as a co-religionist, requesting him not to take such a step and to forgive him. He expressed micchāmi dukkaḍaṁ. They understood mutually so well that they felt great affection for each other. The Bhilla chief explained how right conduct was rather impossible for him. First, he withdrew the attack against the caravan, and secondly, assured the leader all safety and full restoration of his possessions (Pages 134.25-138.9; *57.17- *58.12).

KUVALAYACANDRA, THE GUEST OF BHILLA-PATI: Both of them proceeded towards the Pallī (described 138.11-14) situated in the valley of the Sahya mountain, and approached the palace situated on a lofty peak. The Bhilla chief tried to divert the prince with jocular talks lest he should feel tired in climbing. With a question containing the answer, the chief disclosed to the prince that his Pallī was called Cintāmaṇi. After they visited the palace-temple, their physical comforts were attended to. After a luxurious bath, they worshipped Arhat; they had their meals; and then they rested comfortably. One day, when they were seated together, there arrived a person, clad in white and with an iron club in hand, and gave a good blow on the head of the Bhilla chief reminding him specifically that he was not following cāritra. On second thoughts, the Bhilla chief welcomed this and felt remorse that he was not behaving worthily. On an enquiry by the prince, he explained the episode as below (Pages 138.10-139.33; *58.13-31).

DARPARIGHA'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY AND KINSHIP WITH KUALAYACANDRA: 'In the town of Ratnapurī there ruled a king Ratnamukuṭa; and he had two sons: Darparigha and Bāhu- or Bhuja-parigha. One night, when the king was alone in his private apartment, he happened to see a butterfly jumping at the flame of the lamp; with innate kindness, he tried more than once to ward it off, but it again came to the lamp. He had a desire to save its life; but if that was not possible, he himself would attend to his benefit in the next world. He put that butterfly in a casket, closed its mouth, and kept it near his pillow. When he opened it later, he realized that possibly it was swallowed by a domestic lizard. He felt convinced that there is no rescue from Death, and one's Karmas are all-powerful. He was disgusted with worldly life, and mentally accepted renunciation. A deity in the vicinity presented him rajo-haraṇa, mukha-potrikā etc.; and he became a Pratyekabuddha. When it was daybreak, the king came out of his apartment as a monk; and this was a matter of surprise and sorrow to one and all including his queens. Followed by many, he reached the park where gathered his ministers, queens and his two sons; and to all of them he gave a discourse on the nature of samsāra and its ties. He explained the episode of the butterfly which was the immediate cause of his renunciation: he added how there was aśaraṇatā, how he recollected his previous births (a monk in the Aparā-vidēha, a Saudharma-deva, and thence a king here), how he pulled five handfuls of hair, how a deity gave him the equipment, and how he became a nirgrantha monk. Inquired of by the minister Vimala, the Royal Saint gave a detailed exposition on Dharma, its practice and its object. Dharma, Adharma, Ākāśa, Jīva and Pudgala are the fundamentals; and the interaction of the last two gives rise to Nine Padārthas. Being in the company of Karma, the Jīva, through Pramāda, fourfold passions and threefold activities, wanders through high and low grades of births; it is in human life that one has the sense of discrimination whereby one adopts right conduct; and one practises dhyāna etc. to attain omniscience and finally the bliss of Liberation (§§ 233-34). The Royal sage urged them to practise it for their spiritual benefit, and left the place to pursue his vihāra. Since then we are Śrāvakas having only the samyaktva. On the advice of our uncle, kind Dṛḍhavarman of Ayodhyā, I, Darparigha, the eldest son, was to be installed on the throne; but there was intrigue in the palace to back my younger brother; and I was administered some medical preparation which made me physically, mentally and morally unfit. I was unbalanced, and behaving like a mad man, I reached the Vindhya valley. Oppressed by hunger and thirst, I drank the water from a pond in which various fruits were naturally decocted; I suffered terribly from vomiting and motions; and I was completely cured of all my ailments. It was a second birth as it were, and all my faculties functioned as before. While in search of fruits and flowers, I met a dignified person followed by Bhillas. He took me to his Mahāpallī. We paid respects to Arahanta there, and spent our time in comfort. He inquired about me; and, finding that both of us belonged to the Soma race, he put me as his successor on the throne and ordered all the chiefs to obey me. He told me that though these people were Mlecchas, they had a code of behaviour (146.13-17): I was free to stay with them or go away. In course of time, as Karmas would have it, I too stooped to this profession of robbery. Just to remind me of the words of the Royal sage, I have asked this man to strike me with a loha-damḍa, because I had become a victim of loha (= lobha, greed).⁷ Prince Kuvalayacandra was much overpowered by this episode; and consequently, by stressing on the rarity of Jina's instructions, he urged Darpaparigha to leave this profession and adopt the career of self-restraint and penances as preached by Jina. Lately, Darpaparigha had no news from Dṛḍhavarman; and when he learnt now that the prince was Kuvalayacandra, the latter's son got through divine favour, he embraced him as his brother. The prince narrated all about his journey and how he has to enlighten Kuvalayamālā at Vijayānagarī for which he wanted to start soon. Darpaparigha detained him for some time, because the sky was overcast with clouds, there were strong winds, and there were showers which brought about many changes on the earth and in the hearts of separated ladies (all described 147.13 to 148.15). When the prince decided to start on his mission, Darpaparigha wanted to leave the place and also to escort him with his army, but was dissuaded by the former. The prince paid respects to him and proceeded towards the South; and soon Darpaparigha, too, left home with a view to taking to renunciation (Page 140.1-149.3; *58.32- *61.1).

[v. Kuvalayacandra in Vijayāpurī]

KUVALAYACANDRA REACHES VIJAYĀPURĪ AND LEARNS ABOUT KUVALAYAMĀLĀ'S RESOLVE: Travelling through thick and thin and meeting various kinds of people, Kuvalayacandra reached the country of Vijayāpurī (described 149.6-17) on the southern coast. Passing through the country, he captivated many fair eyes and, in due course, came to the capital, Vijayā (described 149.20-26). As he was wondering how to meet Kuvalayamālā, he gathered from the talk of town ladies out on the streets to fetch water that Kuvalayamālā, though dark in complexion, was very beautiful (described 150.6-9), that she had hung an incomplete verse in public, and that, as prophesied, she would marry him who would complete it. Then he visited a residential school in which pupils from all parts of India (150.20) were studying different branches of learning such as, grammar, Darśanas (Bauddha, Sāṃkhya, Vaiśeṣika, Mīmāṃsā, Naiyāyika, Anekānta and Lokāyata), different lores, arts and crafts (described 150.21 to 151.10). The teachers there were well-versed in seventy-two kalās or arts and sixty-four viññānas or lores. There he heard the naughty lads irresponsibly gossiping in contemporary Middle Indo-Aryan spoken dialect about various topics, personal and urban, and had a confirmation that the princess had exhibited an incomplete verse in the Palace Yard. On the way to it, there was a festivity at a merchant's place; in the market, he came across traders (from different parts of the country) who could be distinguished from their traits and who were speaking in their own language (described 152.23 to 153.18): and he heard various conversations in the bazar (153.13-18). In the palace yard, he came across many rulers who seemed dejected at the idea that the princess would marry him who completed the verse of which she exhibited only one foot: 'pañca vi paūme vimāṇammi'; and, for verification, the entire verse was kept under lock and seal in the royal treasury. He could at once guess and hit on the complete Gāthā (154.5), seeing how trickily that princess [Māyāditya > Kuvalayamālā] had drafted it (Pages 149.4-154.6; *61.1-31).

KUNVALAYACANDRA WINS KUNVALAYAMĀLĀ'S HEART AND MEETS MAHENDRAKUMĀRA: Just then, there was great commotion among the people, because the invincible elephant was running amuck after breaking its chains and killing its keeper (described 154.11-13). The king with his harem rushed to the terrace. He was warning the prince to get away from the elephant. The prince, seeing the infuriated elephant rushing at him, tricked it with a garment, and, as he got on its back, recited the full verse, hearing which Kuvalayamālā declared that the verse was duly completed and put a garland of fragrant flowers round his neck. The king (Vijayasena) felicitated his daughter on her worthy choice; there was a shower of flowers from heaven: and shouts of 'Victory' resounded the sky. At that moment Mahendrakumāra came on the scene, and greeted the prince on his triumph with significant reference to the parents of the latter. Recognising Mahendrakumāra, the prince made the elephant sit and took him on its back: both of them embraced each other, and inquired about mutual welfare. King Vijaya was happy at the fine coincidence (155.7-9), to the good fortune of his daughter. The prince was duly welcomed in the palace, and Kuvalayamālā could have an affectionate glance at him (Pages 154.7-155.13; *61.31- *62.24).

MAHENDRAKUMĀRA NARRATES WHAT HAPPENED AT VINĪTĀ: King Vijayasena was curious to know how both of them were there. Mahendrakumāra narrated what happened at the capital after Kuvalayacandra was carried away by the horse. The parents were in a miserable plight at the loss of the prince; the ministers tried to console them by reminding them of the privation suffered by Sagara; and all possible attempts (155-31 ff.) were made to get some news about the prince. The maidens suffered a sense of separation; and when the metropolis was thus plunged into frustration caused by this privation, the Royal Parrot got the audience of the King and narrated to him, to his joy and satisfaction, how prince Kuvalayacandra came to the hermitage of Eṇikā, how on his important mission of enlightening Kuvalayamālā, he proceeded to Vijayāpurī, and how the duty of conveying his welfare to the parents was entrusted to it. On getting this information, king Dṛḍhavarman was ready to proceed to Vijayāpurī, but at last allowed Mahendrakumāra and his party to go there. That is how Kuvalayacandra and Mahendrakumāra could luckily meet here. King Vijaya was extremely happy at these developments which were almost miraculous. Both the princes rested there quite comfortably (Pages 155.14-158.2; *62.27- *63.30).

DELAY FOR MARRIAGE AND KUVALAYACANDRA'S PASSIONATE ANXIETY: It was gathered that it would take some time to fix up a date for the wedding: this caused some anxiety to Kuvalayacandra who was impatient for the hand of Kuvalayamālā. He was passionately yearning for her, and started brooding over her beauty (158.13-24). He planned desperately various alternatives of meeting her (158.25-159.5). Mahendrakumāra came and mentioned to him how a letter conveying their well-being was despatched to Ayodhyā. He could easily see that the prince was restless on account of separation and was losing faith in the promises of the king, because of his own impatience. Mahendra reminded him of the prophecy, of his being chosen by Kuvalayamālā with a garland and of her deep affection and passionate love for him; and requested him not to suspect the good intentions of king Vijaya (Pages 158.3-160.8; *63.30- *64.3).

KUVALAYAMĀLĀ SENDS A LOVE PRESENT TO KUVALAYACANDRA: At this stage, there arrived a girl who brought to Kuvalayacandra personal presents consisting of a garland and a flower-ornament; within the stalk of the latter, there was the figure of Rājahamsikā, cut on a bhūrja-leaf; and its expression was indicated by a verse inscribed below it. Mahendra warned him not to misunderstand the situation: the symbolic swan was eager for him. The bard announced the evening, indirectly reminding the prince that the Dharma was quite important and one should not be carried away by worldly attachments. The prince took leave of the girl-messenger just with a remark complimenting Kuvalayamālā on her skill (Pages 160.9-32; *64.34-38).

BHOGAVATĪ INTRODUCES KUVALAYAMĀLĀ AND ARRANGES A MEETING OF KUVALAYACANDRA WITH HER: Both Kuvalayacandra and Mahendra offered evening worship to Ṛṣabhanātha. Mahendra found fault with Kuvalayacandra for not sending any message to Kuvalayamālā who would be fatally restless on account of separation. Next morning, they woke up, hearing the bard's recitation (161.16-22). An elderly lady (Bhogavatī) who was a motherly attendant of Kuvalayamālā came to them, and narrated to them the following details: 'King Vijayasena and his queen Bhānumati of Vijayāpurī had no issue, so they worshipped many a deity etc. for a child; and at last, as indicated by a dream, they had a daughter, Kuvalayamālā, who was duly brought up almost like a son. On her reaching youth, as she had developed aversion for man, her parents inquired about her marriage of a Vidyādhara-śramaṇa (who knows the past, present and future). The Śramaṇa gave them a discourse on heya, ādeya and upekṣaṇīya both in this and the other world. Further, on an inquiry by the king, the Śramaṇa narrated all about Māyāditya > Padmavara > Kuvalayamālā till her welcoming the triumphant prince Kuvalayacandra (i.e., yourself). On seeing you on the back of the elephant, many doubts and expectations crowded her heart (163.24-32); then, on your completing the verse, she garlanded you; and to her thrill, you looked at her affectionately. Though she went away from the palace at her father's direction, her heart was left behind as it were. She reached her apartment, but was awfully restless whether you would accept her at all. We all assured her, but her doubts could not be dissipated. Just to test your bonafides, we requested her to send you the garland etc. She learnt that the day of the marriage also was not immediately fixed; and that made her unhappy. Further, as she did not receive any message from you, she is on the verge of break-down; and her condition is critical, almost beyond all normal remedies. Mahendra consulted her as to what should be done to save the situation. She requested them to go to the garden where she would arrange to bring Kuvalayamālā. Kuvalayacandra and Mahendra reached the garden (described 166.16-19) discussing half-serious and half-jocular topics (156.1-15); and while they were enjoying various scenes etc. in it, there arrived Kuvalayamālā of striking beauty (described 166.32 f.), still in a suspicious mood. Her attendants including Bhogavatī left her in a bower, and went out to trace the prince from his conspicuous foot-prints: she had almost decided to hang herself to death, if she were not to meet the prince. They met, however, in that bower; and the prince welcomed her and received her in his arms to her pleasant embarrassment. She reminded him that he did not send any message; but he assured her that he came all the distance to enlighten her, as it was agreed between them in the past. Bhogavatī came there under the king's direction, and Kuvalayamālā returned to her apartment with a consoled heart, leaving the prince in a mood of assurance. He narrated his experience with her to Mahendra. Both of them spent their time happily as if in their own country; and Kuvalayacandra was receiving a number of love presents from the princess. Now the cold season arrived (described 169.12-170.4) with all its characteristics (Pages 161.1-170.4; *64.9- *65.35).

WEDDING CEREMONY; PLEASURE SPORTS AND DIVERSIONS; AND KUVALAYAMĀLĀ DULY ENLIGHTENED: The astrologer informed the king how the most auspicious lagna-yoga was now available for the marriage of Kuvalayacandra and Kuvalayamālā who felt very happy on hearing this. The whole town was busy with various preparations of the marriage (170.20-28). On the appointed day, at that auspicious moment, the marriage ceremony was celebrated with due eclat and rituals (described 170.31-171.26). Then followed their bed-ceremony to which, to begin with, her companions added a good deal of mirth and fun. When they left the room, Kuvalayamālā also wanted to go out, but Kuvalayacandra charged her with 'stealing' his heart; she also made a similar charge; the companions were called back and accepted for arbitration; and their decision required the couple to embrace each other heartily. Thus passed the first, the second and the third night which ended in their amorous satisfaction. One day, the couple enjoyed from the terrace the scene of the ocean (described 173.33 f.) the waves of which were washing the southern rampart of the metropolis; and they saw therein each other's characteristics in a symbolic way. Then they decided to divert themselves with learned pastimes such as prahelikā, antimākṣara vūḍhā etc. (174.21-24) of which bindumatī, aṭṭhāvidaya, praśnottara, prṣṭārtha, akṣara-cyutaka, mātrā-cyutaka, bindu-cyutaka, gūḍha-caturtha-pāda, bhāṇiyavviyā, hrdaya, padma-gāthā, gāthārdha, saṁvidhānaka, gāthā-rākṣasa, prainamakṣara-racita are duly illustrated. She changed her mind and expressed her desire rather to know how he came to this far-off country and completed the verse than to spend time on these diversions. Kuvalayacandra narrated his tale right from his birth to his marriage with her, and incidentally the career of the Five (§ 281): he reminded her that it was his duty to enlighten her and that, therefore, she should accept samyaktva, which is rare and unique (illustrated with apt similes, § 282). He further urged her to follow Jinadharmā which is the shelter and rescue for souls wandering in Samsāra, and have the highest respect for the Tīrthakara. He requested her to recollect their mutual agreement in the past life, and follow the words of Jina. She accepted all that he said and felt enlightened in the religion of Jina (Pages 170.4-180.12; *65.36- *66.31).

[vi. Kuvalayacandra Starts Back for Ayodhyā]

KUVALAYACANDRA ETC. START FOR AYODHYĀ WITH AUSPICIOUS OMENS AND MEET A MONK: Kuvalayacandra received a letter from king Dṛḍhavarman asking him to return to Ayodhyā at the earliest along with Mahendra. He consulted his beloved who agreed to his decision; and king Vijaya also felt that they should return home early. The necessary preparations for the journey were made, and the date of departure was fixed by the astrologer. Kuvalayamālā took leave of the trees etc. in the garden (180.31-181.13) and of the domestic birds and beasts (181.16-24) with a touch of sentiment. The rituals of the departure for the couple were gone through (181.25-27); and at the auspicious moment, they started. As the couple mounted, the triumphant elephant and proceeded along the road, the onlooking town girls entertained various thoughts and gave expressions to different views about them both (details given, 182.4-183.3). After leaving the metropolis, they camped at a distance. The prince offered worship to Jina; and, in response to his appeal, the Pravacanadevatā presented an auspicious śakuna simultaneously with which king Jayanta of Jayantī presented him with a prominent umbrella: the prince felt that all his desires would be fulfilled. Incidentally, he gave her an exposition on the śakunas, good and bad (183.24-184.20), and explained to her that they are after all consequences of one's own Karmas: the worship of Jina, in the samavasaraṇa, leads to the fruit of Puṇya. From the next halt, the king, queen and the citizens (who were accompanying them for a distance) returned, at the prince's request, to the metropolis. The prince, in his onward travel, camped in the vicinity of the Sahya mountain. It was reported to him that there had arrived a Saint of charming personality, the hair on whose head was pulled out, who was wearing a white garment, and who had a piccha in his hand (to be distinguished from a tāpasa or tridaṇḍin). The prince could see that he had recently entered the order and that there was something superhuman about him. On being saluted by the prince and his beloved, the saint blessed them with dharma-lābha, and, on being inquired of, started narrating his biography (Pages 180.13-185.6; *66.36- *67.34).

SAINT BHĀNU'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY AND ENLIGHTENMENT THROUGH THE PAINTINGS OF SĀMSĀRA-CAKRA: "In the country of Lāṭa, known for its dresses and deśa-bhāṣās, there ruled a mighty king, Simha by name, of whom I, Bhānu, have been the eldest son, addicted rather too much to painting. One day a teacher showed me a painted scroll presenting what he called the Saṁsāra-cakra and depicting all that was there on the earth. He explained pointing out with a stick that the various regions were hell, human world and heaven. With excessive sin one gets misery in hell; with excessive merit one gets pleasures in heaven; with a little merit and plenty of sin one is born as a sub-human being, and with plenty of merit and a little sin one is born as a man: everywhere, however, there is misery. A king with great sin to his credit goes to hell. A king with hunting paraphernalia only earns sin. Here was a thief suffering awfully for his deeds. The cultivators were illtreating the beasts of burden and causing injury to one-sensed beings; and they alone had to suffer for their sins. One carried only puṇya and pāpa with him, and left everything behind, on the eve of death. Young men enjoyed various pleasures, and they were painted on the scroll. Similarly, men in various professions and positions, proud of this and that, were depicted, with the consequences of their acts etc. In the sub-human world there were the various beasts and birds, killing each other. Then there were painted the scenes in hells, and also those in heavens. Lastly, there was the picture of Liberation which is characterised by eternal bliss. When he unfolded the scenes of this Saṁsāra-cakra, I could realize the despicable character of the worldly life; and I told him that he must be a god or so coming from heaven, with this scroll, having some definite purpose in mind. Then there was another picture the details of which he explained thus: 'Here in the town of Campā ruled the king, Mahāratha. Dhanadatta was a rich merchant; from his wife Devī he had two sons: Kulamitra and Dhanamitra. Soon after their birth, the father died; and the mother urged them to do some business and earn their living. They practised varied professions and tried their hands at different arts and crafts; but they proved failures everywhere, with no earnings to their credit. They decided, at last, to commit suicide; and when they were about to jump down a mountain peak, a divine voice prevented them from being rash. It was the admonition of a great saint in the vicinity who knew their plight and who advised them sympathetically to take to renunciation, so that they would never be born poor again but would get heavenly happiness and liberation. Both of them entered the order, practised austerities, and were born in heaven. Thence one was born as Bhānu, the son of Simha, i. e., yourself; and I, the teacher or painter, am the second. I have come here to enlighten you.' Hearing this, I, Bhānukumāra, fell into a swoon, and on coming to my senses, found in that teacher a brilliant god who reminded me of our earlier births and urged me to accept renunciation with a view to attaining eternal bliss. On hearing this, I pulled out five handfuls of hair, received the ascetic's equipment (rayaharāṇa, muhapottiya and paḍiggaha), and left the park to the great consternation of my friends etc. who rushed to the king. The god brought me here." The prince appreciated his autobiography and his obliging brother. Mahendrakumāra accepted Samyaktva which grew more and more firm (Pages 185.7-194.33; *67.35- *69.4).

KUVALAYACANDRA OBLIGES ALCHEMISTS: In their onward march, one night prince Kuvalayacandra saw some fire burning bright in a Vindhya valley and some people hovering about it. He left his beloved on the bed, and, duly equipped, went nearer the fire. After hearing their conversation (about the colour of the flames and about the metal that was being melted), he could realize that they were alchemists (dhātu-vādins), busy in preparing gold. Lest they should be scared, the prince remained hidden watching their movements. Despite all their precautions and preparations, their experiment failed; and the metal that turned out was just copper and not gold. Defeated in their purpose and in a mood of despair, they were about to go back to their place, when the prince greeted them with success; and they, in their turn, welcomed him. He introduced himself to them in a half serious and half jocular manner. He got the details from them as to what they were doing, and he requested them to repeat the experiment, so that he might put things right. He saluted the Jinas and Siddhas, and added the cūrṇa as prescribed in the Joṅṅpāhuḍa: to the satisfaction of all, the gold was ready. They all submitted to him to learn the Vidyā from him. He told them that Sarvajña was the presiding deity who had given out the Joṅṅpāhuḍa; and at their request, he bestowed the Vidyā on them. He asked them to call on Kuvalayacandra (i. e., himself) when he is proclaimed as king. He returned to his camp to find Kuvalayamālā awfully worried at his disappearance, and narrated to her his experience about those alchemists. Further, at her request, he explained to her the technique of alchemy (197.28 to 198.5) as prescribed in the Joṅṅpāhuḍa (Pages 195.1-198.5; *69.4-26).

[vii. Kuvalayacandra in Ayodhyā]

KUVALAYACANDRA JUBILANTLY WELCOMED IN AYODHYĀ AND DRḌHAVARMAN'S SELECTION OF TRUE RELIGION: Next morning (described 198.7 f.), they fulfilled their religious duties; and their camp marched on in its usual bustle (described 198.23 f.). With continuous march, he reached the frontiers of his home territory, and sent the message of his arrival to King DrḌhavarman through prince Mahendra. The king gave an ovation to him. The prince got down from the horse and greeted his father by falling at his feet. Both the mother and father received him with great feelings, and learnt from him all about his career since he was carried away by the horse. An auspicious day for his reception and coronation as an heir-apparent was duly calculated by astrologers; and on that day, Ayodhyā was live with manifold activities (described 199.27-30). To the joy and appreciation of the citizens, the prince came into the town, was crowned as Prince, and was, along with his wife, duly blessed by the king. After some time, the king expressed his desire to practise Dharma. He had some discussion with the prince as to which Dharma was worthy and fit to be practised. The Kuladevatā was propitiated and appealed to in the matter, and, as announced by a divine voice, the king received a costly Ms. in Brāhmī characters, the contents (described 201.33-202.30 or § 320) of which were respectfully read by the prince. The king, however, wondered how to find out the religious teachers who preached such a religion, especially when every teacher claimed his religion to be the best. The prince planned that all the religious teachers might be invited by a declaration; and the religion, which agreed with the one described in the Ms. would be accepted by the king (Pages 198.6-203.21; *69.26- *70.42).

DR̥DHAVARMAN HEARS VARIOUS RELIGIOUS TEACHERS, ADOPTS TRUE RELIGION AND ACCEPTS PRAVRAJYĀ: Accordingly, there arrived various religious teachers and propounded what they considered to be the Dharma; and every time the king saw whether and how far a particular view agreed with what was laid down in the Ms. They (such as Tridaṇḍi, Advaita, Sadvaita etc.) gave their views about Jīva, Elements, Liberation, Sacrifice, Living, Dying, Purification, Meditation, Begging, God etc. Finally, one Teacher preached abstention from five sins and Arhat as the divinity: this, the king found, agreed with what was prescribed in the Ms. The king took leave of all the other teachers; and from the teacher, whose religion he accepted, he got further enlightenment about āgama, āpta and mokṣa. The prince conveyed to the king how he was carried away by the horse to enlighten him in this religion, how he met his colleagues of the earlier birth, and how he had many other occasions to realize the greatness of this religion. The king was convinced of the urgency of adopting this religion. Next morning, he duly greeted his relatives etc., gave rich gifts to various people, called, along with the princes, on the teacher of his religion, and requested him for being initiated into the order of monks. The teacher gave him pravrajyā according to due formalities (Pages 203.22-209.14; *71.1-31).

TEACHER'S RELIGIOUS DISCOURSE AND DR̥DHAVARMAN'S SPIRITUAL PROGRESS: Then, to that gathering, the teacher gave a discourse on the rarity of human birth, of religious instruction, of faith in religion and of the practice of self-control (illustrating them with jugasamīlā dr̥ṣṭānta, § 326, and other similes). The royal saint Dr̥dhavarman started following the course of his duties in their positive and negative aspects for a pretty long time till very little of his Karman remained to be destroyed (Pages 209.15-211.31; *71.31- *72.4).

GOD PADMAKESARA DULY REBORN AS PRINCE PṚTHVĪSĀRA AND SOON MADE THE KING: Kuvalayacandra ruled for many many years. The heavenly period of life of Padmakesara came to termination. Quite sensibly he reconsidered his past, came to Ayodhyā, conveyed to Kuvalayacandra and Kuvalayamālā that he would be born as their son, and presented them some ornament which would make him remember his past and take to renunciation. In due course, he was duly born as a son to them and was named PṚthvīsāra. After seeing those ornaments he remembered his past and developed a detachment for worldly pleasure and royal pomp. Much against his instincts, he was crowned as yuvarāja and requested by Kuvalayacandra to look after the kingdom. When the prince desired to relinquish the world, Kuvalayacandra dissuaded him in view of his young age; but he himself remained awaiting some teacher with a view to looking after his benefit in the next world. The king, after discussing religious topics with Kuvalayamālā, retired one night, and, early in the morning, occupied himself with pious thoughts yearning for ascetic life in the near future. When it was morning, Kuvalayamālā reminded him of his earlier resolve that in case he met his parents alive and got himself crowned, he would put his son on the throne and enter the order. Thus she indicated and confirmed whatever thoughts he had in mind. Now that Prthvīsāra was put on the throne both of them decided to take to religious life at the earliest (Pages 212.1-214.33; *72.4- *73.9).

KUVALAYACANDRA, MAHENDRA AND KUVALAYAMĀLĀ TAKE TO PRAVRAJYĀ AFTER MEETING DARPARIGHA, SO ALSO PRTHAVĪSĀRA IN DUE COURSE; AND IN A SUBSEQUENT BIRTH THE FIVE MET IN HEAVEN AND RECOLLECTED THEIR AGREEMENT: Later, the king saw in the street of the metropolis a couple of monks who told him that they were the disciples of saint Darparigha, the son of Ratnamukṣa. In due course, he (along with Mahendra and Kuvalayamālā) paid respects to Darparigha who blessed him and told him about his activities subsequent to their last meeting. Darparigha told the king that after leaving the Cintāmaṇi-pallī he met a great Saint at Bhṛgukaccha, who had given him that Pallī and from whom he accepted renunciation. Then that saint went to Ayodhyā, initiated king Dṛḍhavarman into the order, both of them reached Sammata-śikhara, and became Anta-kṛt Kevalins. This was a sort of inspiration to Kuvalayacandra, Mahendra and Kuvalayamālā. All of them accepted renunciation, and started practising penance according to the rules. In course of time, Kuvalayamālā was born as a god in the Saudharma-kalpa; the saint Kuvalayacandra was born as a god in the Vaiḍūrya-vimāna there; the Lion too, after due religious fasting, was born there; and the clairvoyant saint, Sāgaradatta, reached there, after his death, as a god. After enjoying royal pleasures for a while and putting his son Manorathāditya on the throne, king Prthvīsāra also took to asceticism and joined them in the same heaven after his demise. They recognised each other, reflected together on the importance of Samyaktva (216.23-32) and the value of the words of Jina in the terrific ocean of trans-migratory circuit, and agreed that, in the subsequent births, wherever they were, any one of them having omniscience should enlighten the rest (Pages 215.1-217.7; *73.9-40).

[viii. Mahāvīra's Samavasaraṇa and the Five Souls]

MAṆIRATHA, AN ĀSANNA-BHAVYA, AND THE OCCASION FOR HIS SAMVEGA: Then, during the age of Mahāvīra, the soul of Kuvalayacandra came down from heaven and was born in the town of Kākandī as prince Maṇiratha, the son of king Kāñcanaratha and his queen Indīvarā. Much against the wish of all, prince Maṇiratha became addicted to hunting. While he was out in the forest, there arrived Mahāvīra, who, in his Samavasaraṇa constructed by the gods, preached to the audience, including Kāñcanaratha and others, twofold Dharma based on Samyaktva (217.28-218.6), and also explained the characteristics (§ 337) and the defects (218.22-30) of Samyaktva (does this cover cāritra also here, see line 30, p. 218.13, p. 219-4?), as well as darśana, jñāna and cāritra (§§ 339-40), the nature of himsā, asatya, steya, maithuna and parigraha, of those who abstain from it, or how it is guarded (§§ 341-45). The twelve vows of a house-holder end with samlehaṇā (which is there for both śrāvaka and śramaṇa), and the aticāras (five for each) of them should be avoided (§ 346). Further, Mahāvīra explained to Kāñcanaratha that prince Maṇiratha, though addicted to hunting, was not only a bhavya but would reach liberation also in this very birth: in fact, he was enlightened and with a view to adopting religious life, he was reaching the Samavasaraṇa. The occasion for his developing saṁvega was like this. He had gone into the Kosamba forest for hunting. Afraid of his arrows, all the deer ran away; but one young female deer came to him quite affectionately. He was much moved by the situation, broke his bow and sword, and felt great remorse on account of his cruel activities. He was thrilled at the touch of that loving deer; and he realized that there must be some connection of the earlier birth. He came by this time to the Samavasaraṇa; and to explain to him his earlier relation with that deer Mahāvīra narrated thus (Pages 217.8-224.15; *73.41- *74.36).

EARLIER LIVES OF MAṆIRATHA AND THE DEER, AND FORMER'S DĪKṢĀ: In one of his earlier lives, Mahāvīra was prince Anaṅga, the son of king Madana of Sāketa. There was a merchant Vaiśramaṇa. His son was Priyaṅkara, a fine youth, who married Sundarī, a girl from a neighbouring family. Priyaṅkara and Sundarī were so much attached to each other that they would not tolerate separation even for a moment. In due course, as ill luck would have it, Priyaṅkara fell ill and died. Sundarī would not believe that he was dead, but started caressing his dead body without allowing it to be burnt. She was mad on account of her affection, continued fondling the corpse, and would not attend to what others said. She addressed the corpse that people round about had gone mad; and, to avoid them, she took the rotten corpse (described 225.23-27) and reached the cemetery. She started nursing it. Her father requested the king to do something in the matter, and prince Anaṅga took the responsibility of outwitting her. He also went there with the corpse of a woman, claiming her to be his wife whom people called dead much against his will: in fine, he presented a replica of Sundarī's rōle. He imitated her in his behaviour towards his dead beloved. In course of time, they became friendly, and entrusted to each other their dead partners, whenever they had to leave them and go out. Once Anaṅga complained to Sundarī that he heard her beloved making overtures to his wife Māyādevī. Anaṅga shrewdly developed a situation, threw both the dead bodies in a well, and began to lament over his sad lot that his wife was kidnapped by Sundarī's beloved. Innocent as she was, she felt sorry for the behaviour of her husband. When she wanted to know from him what to do, he expounded to her on the vanity of attachment and inevitability of death: so one should reflect (through twelve-fold anuprekṣā) on the nature of saṁsāra etc. and devote oneself to the practice of Dharma (§ 352). Sundarī was enlightened. That soul of Sundarī was reborn as Mānabhaṭa > Padmasāra > Kuvalayacandra > Vaiḍūryaprabha > Maṇirathakumāra; and the soul of that merchant-youth (i. e. Priyaṅkara) was ultimately born as a female deer which showed so much affection to Maṇirathakumāra. Hearing all this Maṇirathakumāra accepted renunciation. Mahāvīra explained (§ 354) to Gautama how a samyag-dṛṣṭi who is avirata is subjected to misery but one who is virata enjoys happiness (Pages 224.16-232.5; *74.36- *76.20).

MAHĀVĪRA IN ŚRĀVASTĪ AND KĀMAGAJENDRA'S DREAM: Once, Mahāvīra reached Śrāvastī, in his samavasaraṇa, and in reply to a question of Gautama, who asked it for enlightenment of one and all, Mahāvīra expounded how different kinds of Karmas take a soul through different gatis, equip it with various genders, and bestow on it fortune or misfortune, intelligence or ignorance, pain or pleasure, and various gifts and faculties etc. It is the three jewels (samyaktva (= cāritra?) jñāna and darśana) that lead the soul to the town of Liberation. At the conclusion of this discourse, a man of striking personality came there and inquired whether all that he saw in dream was true. Mahāvīra told him that it was true. Then he went away attracting the eyes of all gathered there. For the information of the rest, Gautama asked about that man; and Mahāvīra reported as below (Pages 232.5-22; *76.20-29):

PASSIONATE KĀMAGAJENDRA DUPED; AND HIS PRESENCE IN THE APARA-VIDEHA AND SUBSEQUENT DĪKṢĀ: King Raṇagajendra was ruling over Aruṇābha. Kāmagajendra was his son. He was highly passionate. His queen was Priyaṅumatī. One day, while he and his queen were riding a mad elephant, he saw a lovely girl, playing with a ball on a merchant's terrace, and fell in love with her. The queen, who had noticed this, arranged for his marriage with that girl, and got, in exchange, a promise from her beloved that he would disclose to her all that he saw, heard and experienced. One day, a skilled painter came to him with a portrait, and assured him that it was not just imaginary but that of a virgin princess, daughter of king Avanti of Ujjainī. Kāmagajendra was eager to secure her hand. The ministers advised him to send his portrait to her. Though she was averse to men, she liked and accepted him. He (accompanied by the queen and his retinue) started for Ujjainī for the celebration of the marriage. While camping on the way and asleep in his bed, he felt a sweet touch and woke up to find two girls of captivating beauty. On an inquiry, he learnt that they were Vidyādhara maidens. They disclosed their mission to him, after shrewdly securing his solemn promise that he would do the needful in the matter. Princess Bindumatī, they added, was the extremely charming daughter of the Vidyādhara king Prthvīsundara (from his queen Mekhalā), ruling over Ānandamandira on the northern range of the mountain Vaitāḍhya. She had developed aversion to man, and would not choose any Vidyādhara youth for her companion. Any way, her parents left this choice to her sweet will. One day while moving with her friends in a mountain valley, she heard a Kiṃnara couple singing in praise of the handsome prince, Kāmagajendra. After learning about his whereabouts, she developed passionate attachment for him and grew restless. The only remedy against her ailment was that she should meet him. So, as suggested by their mistress and guided by Prajñapti-vidyā, they came to him. They requested him to accompany them to their mistress who was now on the verge of calamity from which he alone could rescue her. He sought the consent of his queen who allowed him to go on an express promise from them that he would be returned safe to her. They took him immediately in their Vimāna, to the wonder and worry of the queen. On his return, he conveyed to the queen his experiences during her absence: 'It was a fine flight through the autumn sky (described 238.1-5), when the mind was crowded with various thoughts (§ 336). Soon we reached a white house and entered a fine cavern; therein was seen that Vidyādhara princess on a cool bed of leaves. They announced my arrival to her, requesting her to have now her desires fulfilled. But she was found without any movements; in fine, lifeless. They began to lament for her loss (239.5-9), making me almost unconscious, seeing her dying thus on account of my separation, as they put it. They sought my advice as to what should be done. It was day-break by this time. They decided to finish her funeral, and faggots of sandal tree etc. were gathered together. As her body were consigned to flames, they fell into a swoon; I consoled them; but, in a fit of lamentation (239.30-33), they jumped into the flames of the funeral pyre. Even before I could dissuade them, they were reduced to ashes. I was shocked and plunged into remorse: I too decided to enter the same flames. Just then I heard a Vidyādhara couple conversing on the propriety of an action like that which I was about to do, and changed my decision. For funeral offerings, I entered a lovely lake, and lo! I sank in a well; and when I came up, I saw a surprising scene: everything appeared magnified, and men were five hundred bows in height. It was a strange land. The well was converted into a Vimāna; and getting down from it, I started moving about. I met two boys, in whose presence I looked like a worm, an ant; they wondered about my human speech, and from their talk I gathered that it was Aparā-vidēha. They took me on their palm and, to my pleasure, reached the Samavasaraṇa of Sīmaṃdharasvāmin with a view to inquiring my antecedents. In reply to Gautama's question, Mahāvīra explained about the udaya, kṣaya and kṣayopasama of the Karmas (§ 371). Then I offered prayers to Jina, attracting the attention of all there. To a questionnaire from the audience, Mahāvīra gave out the details about me. He disclosed that as I was an addict to women, a couple of Vidyādhara youths, dressed as females, tempted me away like that and played on me that joke of entering the funeral pyre. When I was ready to enter the fire, that very Vidyādhara couple arranged to bring me here in this form. Among the five souls agreed to enlighten one another, I was one: Mohadatta > God > Pṛthvīsāra > God > and, now finally, Kāmagajendra, to be enlightened here to attain final liberation. The lord also explained the peculiar conditions in the Aparāvidēha (243.13-22) contrasted with those in the Bharata-kṣetra. I offered prayers to Jina; and when I lifted my head, I found myself back here.' The queen told Kāmagajendra that all this sounded like a miracle, beyond spatial, temporal and sequential proportions; but he assured her that all that was really experienced by him; and Sīmaṃdhara was still in his heart. It was got verified from Mahāvīra as true, next morning. Kāmagajendra realized the vanity of worldly ties and pleasures, put his son Diggajendra on the throne, and accepted renunciation. Mahāvīra told him the whereabouts of the Five colleagues: one in heaven, with a short life now, and the rest on the earth here (enumerated 244.24 f.); and that he would attain liberation in this very life (Pages 232.23-244.28: *76.29- *79.40).

VAJRAGUPTA AND HIS RENUNCIATION: When Mahāvīra reached Kākandī with his Samavasaraṇa, he expounded there, in reply to a specific question of Gautama, how, in the same activity, different souls, according to their passional intensity, incur the bondage of different Karmas, as illustrated by the theory of six Leśyās (§ 376); this carried great conviction upon the audience. Just then, there arrived a striking prince and inquired whether what was recited by a divine voice was true, blessed or not. Getting Mahāvīra's reply in the affirmative, he went away bent on doing according to the instructions,

Mahāvīra enlightened Gautama and others on his antecedents thus: 'He is Vajragupta, the son of king Candragupta of R̥ṣabhapura. One day the prominent citizens waited on the king and requested him to find out the robber who was regularly looting the town of its best things every night, but could not be noticed, as admitted, even by the city-guard. Vajragupta, however, came forth with a solemn pledge that he would either detect the thief within a week or kill himself in flames; and the king accepted his offer. Six days passed quietly, without any success; so, now, the prince felt anxious that death was inevitable for him. At last, he decided to propitiate with his flesh the Vetāla in the cemetery. Accordingly, he went there at night and appealed to Piśāca etc., to accept his flesh and give the required information. A Vetāla demanded his bony and roasted flesh, followed by a mouthful of his blood offered in his skull (Gautama got an explanation that this was just a joke of Vyantaras). As the prince, quite ready to fulfil this, was about to cut his head, a divine voice, pleased with his courage, promised him the boon; and thus he got the requisite details where that invincible thief lived. He reached cautiously the door of the cellar at the foot of a banyan tree. He smelt the fragrance of incense and heard sweet notes of music. He entered a rich hall there and attracted the attention of a charming girl whose glances were the veritable shafts of cupid. In course of mutual inquiry, he gathered that she was the daughter of Surendra, king of Śrāvastī, and was betrothed to Vajragupta; but, in the meanwhile, she was kidnapped by that gifted thief and pent up there. He could recognise that she was Campakamālā, his once-proposed beloved but was said to be carried away by a Vidyādhara. He disclosed his identity, and requested her to help him to kill that Vidyādhara thief, provided she continued to love him. She gave him some details about the ladies etc. there, and assured him her aid in this plot. She was not sure of the fidelity of other women (251.1 f.), but it was likely that they would love him. She appreciated his wisdom, and presented him with the miraculous sword etc. of the thief and substituted the ordinary ones of the prince in their place. Thus nicely equipped, and getting the necessary hints from her, the prince ambushed at the mouth of the cellar to strike that robber immediately on his entering there. Before daybreak, the robber returned kidnapping princess Campāvati, the very beloved of the prince, namely, Vajragupta, who was loudly crying for his protection from the robber. The prince thought that the robber was caught red-handed, and was about to cut his head; but, on second thoughts, he decided rather to give a fair fight than to murder him treacherously. He challenged the robber who was surprised by his presence there. The robber realized that his divine weapons were substituted. Reviling each other in a challenging mood, they fought like wild buffaloes. When the duel was being fought evenly, Campāvati [rather Campakamālā] hinted to him to remember (the power behind) the Khaḍga-ratna. When the prince did so, that robber suspected the treachery of Campakamālā, and rushed to strike her; but his head, in the meanwhile, was lopped off by the prince; and he fell dead on the ground. At Campakamālā's suggestion, the prince took also the miraculous pill from the mouth of the dead body, and thus gained additional lustre and strength. Thus triumphant and miraculously equipped, he stayed in that underground cellar enjoying pleasures in the company of those beloveds and forgetting his parents and kingdom. Thus twelve years elapsed. One early morning, a voice of an unseen bard greeted him by his name, reminded him 1) of the rise and fall in Saṁsāra, and urged him to mind his benefit of the next world. That voice was heard by him for seven continuous nights, reminding him 2) to develop virati in his heart, 3) of the mockery of enjoyments, 4) that Dharma alone is the real shelter, 5) that worldly pleasures never give lasting satisfaction, 6) that saṁsāra has terrible miseries, and 7) that the enjoyment of sense-pleasures is fatal, and must, therefore, be followed by the practice of samiti, gupti and penances. His mind was distracted; so next day, he questioned that voice why this renunciatory admonition was being given to him. The voice reminded him of the time he spent in the cellar, and requested him to get out of it and meet the Sarvajña. When his beloveds tried to come in his way, he made them ponder over the advice of that voice. They also agreed to follow his footsteps. So he came here for verification of the veracity of the bardic appeal. Thus this Vajragupta is enlightened along with his beloveds.' Mahāvīra reminded him of his past colleagues and the series of births. Mañirathakumāra is here; Kāmagajendra is here; and he is Vajragupta, the soul of Lobhadeva. He is thus enlightened by the souls (in heaven) of Māyāditya and Caṇḍasoma, through that bardic voice. Vajragupta accepts renunciation, so also his beloveds (Pages 244.28 - 256.20; *79.40 - *84.8)

MAHĀVĪRA'S DISCOURSE ON GODS; SVAYAMBHŪDEVA'S CAREER AND DĪKṢĀ:

In reply to a question raised by Gautama in the Samavasaraṇa, at Hastināpura, that gods, unlike kings, do not necessarily favour and punish when they are pleased and displeased, Mahāvīra expounded that there were two classes of gods, sarāga and virāga. The former (Govinda, Skanda, Rudra etc.) are full of attachment and aversion (rāga and dveṣa) and seem to bestow favours and frowns; but, really speaking, these are the coincidental results of one's own Karmas. The nīrāga gods preach the path of liberation, and those who worship them get the happiness of Mokṣa, in due course. These gods are indifferent to praise or blame, but he who offers these to them will get the fruits of his bhāvanā. Just then there entered a Brāhmaṇa boy who wanted to know from Mahāvīra what that bird was, whether it could use human speech, and whether its statements were true. To allay the curiosity of the audience, Mahāvīra narrated as below: 'This is Svayambhūdeva, the eldest son of Yajñadeva, a rich and learned Brahmin of Saralapura. Soon after the death of Yajñadeva, the family was reduced to poverty. Svayambhūdeva was urged by his mother to earn a prosperous living. He pleaded that prosperity depended on puṇya of which they were devoid now. Determined rather to die than to return home in poverty, he left home and, wandering for long, reached at last the town of Campā. He reached there rather late; so he decided to stay for the night on a Tamāla tree. There he heard the conversation of two merchant youths who buried some treasure under that tree, covered it with earth, marked it with a creeper, appealed to divinity to guard it duly, and went away. Svayambhūdeva thought that his luck was favourable. After digging out the treasure, he found there five precious jewels. He took them, and started home with great joy. On the way, he rested at night on a banyan tree; the tree was inhabited by many birds; and his mind was crowded with manifold thoughts. Just then a big bird came to its father and explained with joy how it visited the Samavasaraṇa of Mahāvīra who expounded various religious principles (261.1 ff) and explained its query that it would soon have right faith as well as partial conduct. The Lord explained to Gautama the four types of acts (261.9-14) which lead the soul to hell. In order to escape hell, the big bird, following the advice of the Lord, observed fast, and was now seeking permission of its father to die fasting and was offering final apology. The old bird with paternal affection tried to dissuade it with various reasons and arguments, but had to yield finally. Likewise it approached its mother, brother, sisters, wife, children, mother-in-law, father-in-law, friend and other birds; and offered (after touching conversations with them) kṣamāpanā to all of them. Then it flew up taking leave of them all. Svayambhūdeva was very much touched by the pious behaviour of birds, and started wondering whether it was proper for him to pick up jewels like that and live on them. He thus came here for enlightenment and renunciation. He is the same as the soul of Caṇḍasoma (Pages 256.21-268.8; *84.8- *85.41).

MAHĀRATHA'S DREAM AND DĪKṢĀ: Lord Mahāvīra reached Rājagrha in Magadha; the gods arranged the Samavasaraṇa for him; king Śreṇika was very happy on the Lord's arrival; he attended on him and offered prayers to him; and the Lord gave him a discourse on jñāna, especially that branch of Śrutajñāna whereby Naimittins read the past, future and present (288.25 f.). There entered prince Mahāratha, the eight-year-old son of Śreṇika, and wanted the meaning of a symbolic dream he had. Mahāvīra explained to him how he was the Jīva of Kuvalayamālā, how his other colleagues were there, and how he would duly attain liberation in this life. He received dīkṣā and met his other colleagues; they all moved with Mahāvīra for many many years (Pages 268.9-269.18; *85-41- *86.30).

THE FIVE ADOPT SAMLEKHANĀ AND ATTAIN LIBERATION: Advised by Mahāvīra, Maṇiratha-kumāra adopted saṃlekhanā and cultivated four-fold ārādhanā (with reference to jñāna, darśana, caraṇa and vīrya) on his pure death-bed (269.23 f), and became an Antakṛt Kevalin in due course. Likewise, the saint Kāmagajendra saw that his end was near, took the saṃlekhanā vow and on his death-bed offered Sāmāyika and kṣamāpanā in details (§414). He became an Antakṛt Kevalin. Similarly, the saint Vajragupta became an Antakṛt Kevalin after observing saṃlekhanā and duly offering ālocanā and pratīkramaṇa (§415). In the same manner, the saint Svayambhūdeva saw his end nearing, adopted saṃlekhanā; and on his death-bed, he reflected on the varieties of death (§416) etc. He developed omniscience etc., and became an Antakṛt Kevalin. Lastly, the saint Mahāratha also realized that his end was near, had his body emaciated with saṃlekhanā, and offered, in the end, detailed salutations to Arhat, Siddha, Ācārya, Upādhyāya and Sādhu (§§420-25). He adopted Kṣapaka-śreṇī. Thus they all attained final liberation (described §426) in the end (Pages 269.18-280.17; *86.31- *87.31).

UDDYOTANA'S PERSONAL OBSERVATIONS AND MAṄGALA: The author explains how different sections, episodes, characters and events of the plot serve different salutary purposes, ultimately intended to achieve the religious objective. Then, in anticipation of likely criticism, he justifies certain sentiments, contexts, discussions etc. saying that they all constitute dharma-kathā and are ultimately conducive to the development of samyaktva or right faith (§ 428). He who reads or hears sincerely this Kuvalayamālā either develops samyaktva or has it made more firm. If one is adept in Deśī-bhāṣās etc. one should recite it; otherwise one should read it from a Manuscript in order to appreciate its merits: it gives pleasure, if approached gently and intelligently. It is Hrīdevī who is instrumental for this composition: good people are requested to welcome and look after this, so that it may live long like the fame of Ṛṣabha (§ 429). Further, the author gives some details about his predecessors and himself and about the place and time of the composition of the Kuvalayamālā (§ 430). Then follows the concluding maṅgala (§ 431); and lastly the extent (§ 432) of this work is stated to be about 13 thousand granthas (Pages 280.18-284.9).

2. THE STORY RETOLD BROADLY

The Kuvalayamālā presents the biography, through a number of births, of five souls (1. Caṇḍasoma—Svayambhūdeva; 2. Mānabhāṭa—Maṇirathakumāra; 3. Māyāditya—Mahāratha; 4. Lobhadeva—Vajragupta; and 5. Mohadatta—Kāmagajendra) who, to begin with, degraded themselves (respectively) on account of intense anger (krodha), vanity (māna), deceit (māyā), greed (lobha) and infatuation (moha); but, with due guidance and mutual co-operation and help on the path of religion, they practised penances etc. and attained liberation in the end. The story is put in the mouth of the author, of saint Sāgaradatta, of Dharmānandana, and of various characters who figure in the narrative.

[I]

(i) Caṇḍasoma, alias Bhadrāśarman, from Ragaḍā in Kāñcī, was a naughty youth. His wife Nandinī was such a nice girl as to captivate the eyes of the village youths. He, however, doubted her fidelity without any reason; and one day, on returning from the theatre, where he heard some foul whisper, he hit, in a fit of anger, his sister and brother, thinking that they were his wife and her lover. Seeing both of them killed by his hand, at his own door, he felt remorse for his sin, and wanted to die with them. People prevented him, and Brāhmaṇas prescribed various prāyaścittas to get rid of the sin; but he was in a mood of despair and repentance. He went to the saint, Dharmānandana, from whom he adopted a code of religious behaviour and at last accepted renunciation (pp. 45.15- 49.21). He grew proficient in his religious practices (p. 91.30), though his anger was not altogether quieted (p. 92.8). In due course, he was born in the Saudharma-kalpa as (ii) god Padmacandra (p. 96.8); and from there, he took birth once as (iii) a Lion in the Vindhyas (102.18). Being duly instructed (by Kuvalayacandra) the Lion died piously and was reborn as (iv) a god in the Vaidūrya-vimāna (pp. 111-12, 216.16). Thence, in course of time, he was reborn as (v) Svayambhūdeva (pp. 256.26 f.) who had to leave home and wander about for a prosperous living. He reached Campā, but had to rest at night on a Tamāla tree. He saw two traders who significantly buried under that tree some treasure and went away. Svayambhūdeva found, to his good luck, five jewels there; he took them and started home. On the way he rested on a banyan tree. There he heard a touching conversation between a bird and its father, mother, wife etc. The bird succeeded in taking their permission to die fasting in order to escape from hell, as instructed by Mahāvīra. This conversation was a lesson for him; and it opened his eye that it was not proper for him to pick up jewels like that and live on them. Being thus enlightened, he accepted renunciation in the samavasaraṇa of Mahāvīra, practised penances, submitted himself to samle-khanā-marāṇa, became duly an Antakṛt-kevalin and thus attained liberation (§§ 416-19, also § 426).

[II]

Priyaṅkara and (i) Sundarī, of Sāketa, were a wedded couple, highly attached to each other. They would not tolerate separation even for a moment. As ill-luck would have it, Priyaṅkara fell ill and died. Sundarī could hardly accept the fact of his death. She would not agree to the cremation of her beloved's body which she closely guarded. None could convince her. Her father was helpless and appealed to king Madana for some way out. Prince Anaṅga (i.e., Mahāvīra himself in one of his earlier lives) took this responsibility on himself. He picked up a dead body of a woman, claiming her to be his wife, and behaved exactly like Sundarī. So they had a common cause and some understanding between them. At last Anaṅga managed to throw both the dead bodies in a well, and told Sundarī that her husband, as feared by them, eloped with his wife. So she was brought round to her senses (§§ 349-54).

Sundarī, in due course, was born as Mānabhaṭa, alias Śaktibhaṭa of Ujjainī who inherited the position in the royal Durbar from his grand-father, an eminent Ṭhākūra. One day Mānabhaṭa found his seat in the Durbar occupied inadvertently by a Pulinda prince. Vain as he was, he took offence and hit that prince fatally on the chest in spite of the latter's apologetic promise that this would not be repeated. He came out successful in the fray that followed. For safety, he left that place along with his father and lived comfortably in a fortified village. One day, during spring-sports, he happened to sing on the swing complimenting a darkish beloved to the offence of his fair wife who felt humiliated and hanged herself, but was rescued by him in time. He tried to convince her of his bonafides, but without success. His vanity surged up, and he left home in sheer disgust. His wife followed him, and she was followed by his parents. To test her fidelity, he threw a big stone in the well and concealed himself behind a tree. Thinking that he jumped into the well, she threw herself there; his mother and father also did likewise. Mānabhaṭa realised that his vanity led to this fatal tragedy of the whole family. He was full of remorse, and, in a penitent mood, started out in search of a preceptor who would purify him. He gathered from a gossip of destitutes in Mathurā that a dip in the Ganges would cleanse him of his sin. But in Kauśāmbī, he heard the futility of such practices, adopted four-fold Dharma and accepted dhikṣā from Dharmanandana (pp. 50.1- 56.10). In due course, after following the religious routine, he was born as god (iii) Padmasāra in the Saudharma-kalpa (p. 96).

From heaven, the soul of Mānabhāṭa was born as prince (iv) Kuvalayacandra, the son of king Dṛḍhavarman (who ruled at Vinītā in Madhyadeśa) and queen Priyaṅguśyāmā who got him through the boon of the Kuladevatā (pp. 15.12 f., 21.6 f.). God Padmaprabha was born as Sāgaradatta (p. 103.6) who accepted renunciation under Dhanadatta and, as a saint, developed clairvoyance: he visualised the career of his other colleagues. In consultation with god Padmakesara a plan to enlighten Kuvalayacandra was hatched (p. 110.3 f.).

One day, prince Kuvalayacandra went out for a ride with his companions; but his horse was possessed by Padmakesara: and he was carried to the Saint (<Sāgaradatta) who had reached the spot where the Lion (<Caṇḍasoma) had been dwelling on the eve of its career. The Saint enlightened, and prescribed pious life to Kuvalayacandra who, in turn, whispered sacred syllables into the ears of the dying Lion which consequently was born as a god (§§ 194-6, pp. 111-12). Kuvalayacandra (as he was given to understand his mission, a part of mutual agreement of the earlier life) travelled on and passed through the Vindhya during the summer. By the side of a lake he came across an image of Yakṣa crested with a pearl-statue of Jina. He met a Yakṣakanyā, Kanakaprabhā (§§ 199-205) who was appointed to worship Jina by a Yakṣa, Ratnaśekhara, who was highly benefited in his earlier life by the namaskāra offered to Rṣabha Jina, and, who, consequently projected himself into this image called Jinaśekhara. As they parted, Ratnaprabhā gave a coil of medical herb to Kuvalayacandra to guard himself on his journey (p. 120.30).

Kuvalayacandra crossed the river Narmadā. He met in a hermitage Eṇikā and her attendant Rājākīra (i. e. Royal Parrot). The latter narrated their biography. Eṇikā was the daughter of king Padma and his queen Śrīkāntā, but was picked up in childhood by her inimical husband of the earlier life and dropped in the forest where she was brought up by a deer. She was the sister of king Bhṛgukaccha who attained omniscience. Instructed by the Rājākīra she developed Samyaktva. On hearing from Kuvalayacandra that he was separated for long from his parents, she sent through Rājākīra the message of his welfare to his parents in Ayodhyā (§§ 207-22).

Kuvalayacandra reached the Sahya mountain and joined a caravan bound for Kāñcīpurī. When, on the way, they were attacked by a party of Bhillas, Dhanavatī, the nervous daughter of the trader, was so bravely sheltered by him that the Bhilla leader appreciated his valour and challenged him for a duel. The Bhilla chief realized that the prince was more than a match for him; so he suddenly withdrew from the field, and, as a pious follower of Jina, adopted kāyotsarga, meditating on pañca-namaskāra. The prince welcomed him as a co-religionist. They became friends. The Bhilla chief took the prince to his pallī, Cintāmaṇi, and there they lived comfortably and piously. The Bhilla chief was Darpaparigha, the eldest son of Ratnamukuṭa (brother of Dṛḍhavarman) who had become a Kevalin. Due to some palace-intrigue Darpaparigha was driven out almost insane. But, in due course, he was made a Bhilla chief; and since then he had been residing here. The prince realized that Darpaparigha was his uncle's son. He instructed him in the words of Jina and urged him to adopt good conduct. After the rains were over, Kuvalayacandra travelled to the South, and Darpaparigha soon took to renunciation (§§ 223-41).

Kuvalayacandra reached Vijayāpurī. There he learnt from popular gossip that princess Kuvalayamālā was very beautiful; she had hung in public an incomplete verse; and she would marry him who completed it. When he came to the royal court-yard, he at once hit on the rest of the verse. Just then, the state elephant was running amuck. The prince brought it under control to the dismay of one and all. He recited the complete verse to the satisfaction of princess Kuvalayamālā who garlanded him and chose him as her bridegroom. Mahendrakumāra also was there by that time, and he gave an account of the prince etc. to king Vijaya. Though there was suspense of separation after the first meeting, Kuvalayacandra and Kuvalayamālā exchanged affectionate messages and love-presents, learnt more and more about each other, and at last their wedding was celebrated with great pomp. They had a happy time full of pastimes and enjoyments of various types. Finding an occasion the prince narrated their past lives and requested her to accept Samyaktva which she did (§§ 242-84).

On receiving a letter from Ayodhyā, prince Kuvalayacandra accompanied by his beloved and Mahendrakumāra, started to meet his parents. They had auspicious śakunas on the way. After reaching Sahya, they paid respects to a saint. They learnt from his autobiography that he was enlightened by seeing the paintings of the Saṃsāra-cakra, wherefore he entered the ascetic order. This made Mahendrakumāra firm in his Samyaktva. The prince met some alchemists on the way and helped them in their task. He reached the outskirts of Ayodhyā. He was lovingly welcomed by his parents, and was soon crowned as heir-apparent, to the joy of the whole town. After a good deal of discussion, the right Dharma was discovered as directed by the Kuladevatā. Putting the prince on the throne, Dṛḍhavarman practised religion and his Karmas were nearly destroyed. Kuvalayacandra ruled for many years. God Padmakesara (<Mohadatta) was born as a son to him, and he was named Pṛthvīsāra. Seeing the memento, he had detachment for worldly life right from the beginning. Both Kuvalayacandra and Kuvalayamālā remembered about their earlier resolve and decided to take to religious life. They happened to meet saint Darpaparigha who told them that it was his Guru that gave dīkṣā to Dṛḍhavarman, and consequently both of them became Antakṛt Kevalins. Inspired by this, Kuvalayacandra, Kuvalayamālā and Mahendra accepted renunciation and practised severe penances. Kuvalayamālā was born in the Saudharmakalpa. Kuvalayacandra was born as (v) a god in the Vaidūrya-vimāna which was reached by the Lion also. (§§ 285-336). Then, in the age of Mahāvīra, the soul of Kuvalayacandra came from heaven and was born as (vi) Maṇirathakumāra who became very much addicted to hunting. Mahāvīra informed his father, Kāñcanaratha, that, though addicted to hunting, he was a bhavya and would attain liberation in that very birth. A deer, once the husband when he was Sundarī in an earlier life, would make him religious-minded. Maṇirathakumāra soon accepted renunciation. Advised by Mahāvīra, he cultivated fourfold ārāadhanā, became an Antakṛt-kevalin and attained liberation. (§§ 339-354, 413).

[III]

(i) Māyāditya, alias Gaṅgāditya, was a treacherous merchant from Vārāṇasī. He developed friendship with Sthāṇu of good nature. Both of them reached Pratiṣṭhāna for business. They earned five-thousand coins each and converted the cash into five jewels for each. They started home, dressed as friars for safety of travelling. Māyāditya attempted, more than once, to deceive his companion and deprive him of his share: he pushed him once into a well; but a party of robbers saved him once from that plight, gave him his share of five jewels, and warned him to beware of his treacherous associate whom they had already thrown in a thicket taking all the ten jewels on his person. Sthāṇu's behaviour was so straight and sincere that Māyāditya felt penitent. A dip in the Ganges was prescribed by the village elder as prāyaścitta. It was saint Dharmanandana who advised him to seek shelter in the words of Jina, and gave him dīkṣā seeing that his Karmas had sufficiently quieted (§§ 110-25). In the next birth, Māyāditya was born as (ii) Padmavara in the Saudharma-kalpa (p. 96.6). He constructed the Samavasaraṇa of Dharmanātha at which all the colleagues met and decided what they should do to get samyaktva (pp. 96.27 f.; 102.13 f.). Thence, in due course, he was born as (iii) Kuvalayamālā, the daughter of king Mahāsena (or Vijayasena) and his queen Bhānumatī of Vijayāpurī in the South, born to them through divine favour (pp. 162 f.). She developed aversion for men. When, however, Kuvalayacandra overcame the mad elephant in Vijayāpurī and completed the verse hung by her in public, she garlanded him as her bridegroom. Soon she was married to him. She had quite a happy time with him during the period of honey-moon. Reminded of their earlier resolve and receiving due instructions from him, she developed Samyaktva and followed Jinadharmā. She left her parents with a heavy heart and accompanied her husband to Ayodhyā. On the way, she shared the adventures and experiences of her beloved. After king Dṛḍhavarman accepted renunciation, she enjoyed the kingdom with her husband for many years. God Padmakesara was born as a son to them, and became known as prince Pṛthvīsāra. As resolved earlier she took to religious life along with her husband and practised penances. She was reborn as (iv) a god in the Saudharmakalpa. Further that god took birth as (v) Mahāratha, son of king Śreṇika (p. 269.13 f.). As a boy of eight, he entered the Samavasaraṇa of Mahāvīra and sought the explanation of his dream. On hearing his future from Mahāvīra, he took dīkṣā, practised samlehanā-marāṇa and adopted Kṣapaka-śreṇī to get liberation (§§ 420 f.).

[IV]

(i) Lobhadeva, alias Dhanadeva, was highly greedy. For earning more wealth, he went to the South and camped with Bhadrāśreṣṭhin at Sopāraka. By selling horses in the local market, he earned enormous wealth there. He was given a reception in the Native Traders' club where he heard of still greater profits in distant countries. By prevailing upon Bhadrāśreṣṭhin to accompany him, he reached with him Ratnadvīpa where they had huge gains. While returning in a ship, he trickily pushed Bhadrāśreṣṭhin into the sea, so that he was no more to share his gains. The latter was reborn as a Rākṣasa, and took revenge on Lobhadeva who floated unconscious to an island the residents of which took out periodically his flesh and blood for alchemical purpose. He was left just a skeleton and was picked up by Bhāruṇḍa birds. When he was dropped by them on a lonely spot, somehow he felt remorse for his ingratitude to Bhadrāśreṣṭhin. He wanted to purify his sin. Some mysterious conversation induced him to go to the Ganges to wash his sins. On the way, he paid respects to Dharmanandana under whose religious guidance he accepted dīkṣā (§§ 126-140). After a pious death, he was born in the Saudharma-kalpa as (ii) god Padmaprabha (p. 92.9 ff.). Thence he was reborn as (iii) Sāgaradatta in a banker's family at Campā. With his self-respect pricked and his vanity tickled, he left home with a resolve to die in flames failing to earn seven crores within a year. He reached Jayaśrī on the southern shore, and worrying about his gains he came across a significant Malūra tree with wealth beneath it. Guided by an anonymous voice, he took from there a handful of silver coins, won the favour (as well as the daughter) of a local merchant by his skill in salesmanship, and sailed to Yavana-dvīpa where he earned more than seven crores. But while returning, he lost everything due to ship-wreck. He touched alive Candradvīpa where he saved a lonely maiden who was about to hang herself being frustrated in her love. Both of them tried, in a mood of despair, to enter flames which were turned into lotuses. God Padmakesara (< Mohadatta) rebuked him for his cowardly attempt, reminded him of his responsibility, gave him 21 crores of coins, married him to both the girls, and reached him to Campā. In due course, Sāgaradatta accepted dīkṣā under Dhanadatta, and became a great Saint endowed with clairvoyance. He remembered his earlier colleagues and the mutual agreement. He went to the place where the Lion was staying. Through Padmakesara, who possessed the horse, Kuvalayacandra was brought there and enlightened by showing the jewels which were to serve as a memento (§§ 185-95). The saint Sāgaradatta was reborn in the Vaiḍūrya-vimāna as (iv) a god (p. 216-17 f.). Thence he took birth as (v) Vajragupta at Rṣabhapura (§§ 378 f.). When the town was being regularly robbed by a mysterious robber, Vajragupta openly resolved to burn himself in flames, in case he failed to spot the robber within a week. Six days passed without any success. At the risk of his life, he invoked the grace of a Vetāla. He found out the place of the robber, and, through the aid of Campakamālā who was once betrothed to him but was kidnapped by the robber, he successfully finished him. He stayed in that cellar enjoying various pleasures in the company of his beloved for twelve years. For seven mornings continuously, he heard an anonymous voice (that of the souls of Māyāditya and Caṇḍasoma in heaven) exhorting him to follow the path of true religion by meeting a Sarvajña. At Kākandī he went to the Samavasaraṇa of Mahāvīra who enlightened him on his antecedents and duties. He accepted dīkṣā, so also his beloved (§ 394). After practising saṃlehaṇā-marāṇa, he became an Antakṛt-kevalin and thus attained liberation (§ 415).

[V]

King Kosala gave capital punishment to his son Tosala for violating the chastity of Suvarṇadevī who was separated for long from her husband and consequently loved Tosala intensely. The minister in charge of beheading Tosala allowed him to go scotfree provided he disappeared to an unknown destiny. Accordingly Tosala ran to Pāṭaliputra, and started serving under king Jayavarman as a common man. Suvarṇadevī, who was carrying, believed that Tosala was beheaded; and in sheer humiliation she ran away from the town and joined a caravan bound for Pāṭaliputra. Due to physical disability, she lagged behind; and one night she delivered twins, a boy and a girl; though in despair, she wanted to live now for them. When she went out for a wash, the garment in which the two kids were folded and tied was picked up by a hungry tigress. The girl was dropped on the road, later picked up by a messenger of king Jayavarman, and was nourished, at Pāṭaliputra, by his wife who named her Vanadattā. Śabarasiṃha, attached to Jayavarman, while out for hunting, picked up that boy who too grew in Pāṭaliputra as Vyāghradatta, alias (vi) Mohadatta. In due course, Suvarṇadevī also reached Pāṭaliputra and happened to serve as a nurse to Vanadattā, not in any way recognising her.

During spring, Mohadatta and Vanadattā saw each other at a festivity, and felt passionately attracted mutually; the separation was unbearable to Vanadattā. Later, Tosala saw Vanadattā (escorted by Suvarṇadevī who did not recognise him nor did he mark her), was full of passion for her, and rushed for her hand at the point of sword. There was a great commotion in the garden. Mohadatta came on the scene, and in a duel finished Tosala on the spot. As he started love sports with Vanadattā, a voice announced that it was unworthy of him to enjoy his sister, in the presence of his mother, and that too after killing his father. It was the voice of a monk in the vicinity who explained all the relations. Mohadatta felt remorse for his ignorance and wanted to expiate for his sin. He came later to Dharmanandana, and, with his moha sufficiently quieted, accepted dīkṣā (§§ 141-54). After an equanimous death, he was born as god Padmakesara in the Saudharmakalpa (p. 96.8-9). At that time, he dissuaded Sāgaradatta from entering flames (p. 109). Later he conferred with saint Sāgaradatta (p. 110), possessed the horse of Kuvalayacandra, and thus brought about the meeting of the three (i.e., the Lion, Kuvalayacandra and himself). Thence he was born as prince (iii) Pṛthvīsāra, the son of Kuvalayacandra and Kuvalayamālā. Right from the beginning he had no attachment for the world; and he took the reins of the government much against his will (§ 330). Later, he put his son Manorathāditya on the throne, practised asceticism, and joined his colleagues as a (iv) god in the Saudharma-kalpa (§ 335). Thence he was reborn as prince (v) Kāmagajendra at Aruṇābha. He was highly passionate. His loving wife was Priyaṅumatī. Once he fell in love with a lovely girl from a merchant's family; his wife secured her for him in marriage, and took a promise from him that he would share all his experiences with her. Later, he wanted to marry a princess from Avanti. While he was going thither, he was carried away by a couple of Vidyādhara maidens saying that princess Bindumatī, who had heard about him, was pining for him in separation. When he reached there she was dead; the two maidens burnt her body; and they also entered the flames. He too wanted to follow them, but changed his mind, hearing the conversation of a Vidyādhara couple. As he entered a lake for funeral offerings, he found himself transported to Aparavideha where he had strange surroundings and paid respects to Sīmandharasvāmin from whom he learnt his antecedents. Mahāvīra explained to him that because of his high passion, the Vidyādhara maidens played a trick on him. Kāmagajendra realized the vanity of worldly infatuation and accepted dīkṣā. When his end was near, he accepted samlehaṇā, became Antakṛt-kevalin and thus attained Liberation.

These five souls, with their respective passions somewhat quieted, met each other in the presence of Dharmanandana. There they took dīkṣā and were mutually attached. Caṇḍasoma was requested by others to bestow samyaktva, if circumstances permitted (§ 170). Lobhadeva was born in the Saudharma-kalpa where others also followed in their subsequent births. It was Padmasāra who constructed the samavasaraṇa of Dharmanātha. There they learnt from that omniscient Teacher (§ 184) that they were Bhavyas, that they would attain Liberation in the fourth Bhava thereafter, and what would be their subsequent births. Realizing the difficulty of developing samyaktva under the circumstances, they requested Padmakesara to do his best. For memory clue they prepared their counterparts in precious stones and buried them in the forest where the Lion was to be born, marking the spot with a stone (§ 184).

Sāgaradatta, as a clairvoyant saint, could visualize his colleagues in the third birth. He went to the spot where the Lion was dwelling; he conferred with Padmakesara (§ 194) who brought there Kuvalayacandra who helped the Lion to die piously. In due course, in the next birth, they were contemporaries in heaven (p. 216). They repeated their earlier resolve, and agreed that any one who had superior knowledge should enlighten the rest. Then in their last birth, they were (respectively) born as Svayambhūdeva, Maṇirathakumāra, Kāmagajendra, Mahāratha and Vajragupta. They were contemporaries of Mahāvīra, and gathered together in his Samavasaraṇa. They took dīkṣā and attained Liberation in due course.

3. JAINA DISCOURSES IN THE KUVALAYAMĀLĀ

Jainism is called Ethical Realism, and this brings out its salient traits to the fore. The theory of rebirth, the Karma theory which automatically operates, moral responsibility of the individual and allied doctrines were the characteristics of Śramaṇic culture; and they are all inherited in Jainism. The Jaina Karma doctrine is most uncompromising and undiluted: every one is responsible for, and can never escape without reaping the consequences of his Karma. The soul is subjected to a sort of vibration operating through mind, speech and body as a result of which it incurs material Karmic bondage. Thus the Jaina teachers, therefore, have evolved philosophy of conduct and pattern of behaviour uninfluenced by any reliance on Supernatural intervention or guidance. First, the individual is made highly self-reliant, and the Teacher leaves no opportunity to put him on the right track of religion. The erring soul is shown the correct path through religious instruction. Secondly, the Kuvalayamālā is primarily a dharma-kathā; if it is called, and has become, saṃkīrṇa-kathā, it is because the author has incidentally added contexts and topics of artha and kāma; and even those, in the long run, are conducive to the practice of Dharma. In this pattern of narration, the various facets of dharmakathā are as well included. Thirdly, the very objective of the tale is to illustrate the effects of morbid temper, i.e., of krodha, māna, māyā, lobha and moha under the sway of which are acting the chief characters in this story. If they are to be brought on the right track, religious instruction is the most effective remedy. Lastly, moral instruction is the chief aim of the author, and the entire tale is narrated in such a manner that the erring man and woman should learn the pattern of good behaviour by seeing and hearing what is happening to the characters under various circumstances. The Śramaṇic teacher is an adept in this art. The result is that the Kuvalayamālā has become a huge repository of religious discourses put in the mouth of religious Dignitaries; and the element of story will not suffer much, even if these are excluded from the narration. All such discourses may be put together here to see what a vast range of Jaina dogmatics is covered by Uddyotana. First the pages and lines are noted, and against them are enumerated the topics under broad heads:

- 35.30 f.: The major types of himsā and the reasons or pretexts with which they are committed.
- 36.14 f.: Hells, the tortures etc. therein.
39. 1 f.: The sub-human births (according to the number of Indriyas) and the miseries etc. therein.
- 40.13 f.: Human birth, its causes, grades, miseries etc.
- 42.29 f.: Gods, their anxieties etc.
- 44.15 f.: A discourse on krodha, māna, māyā, lobha and moha; and their fourfold gradation (anantānubandhi etc.) with illustrations.
90. 8 f.: An explanation of abhavya, kāla-bhavya and bhavya.
- 92.12 f.: A conventional description of [Saudharma-]Kalpa and [Padma-]Vimāna, the birth of a jīva there, the local environments etc.
- 95.12 f.: Some details of pūjā; see also 132.27 f.
- 95.24 f.: Five Parameṣṭhins and the duties of laymen and monks.
- 96.28 f.: Details of the samavasaraṇa; See also 217.21 f.
- 97.27 f.: A discourse on Jīva, its nature, its relation with Karman, its migration through various births and its liberation.
- 142-21 f.: A discussion about Dharma, its practice and its objective.
- 177.28 f.: A graphic glorification of samyaktva.
- 185.22 f.: A detailed picture of hellish, human and divine beings: their acts and consequences.
- 192.27 f.: Symbolically spiritual interpretation of various vocations etc.
- 201.33 f.: A succinct exposition of the fundamentals of Dharma.
- 209.18 f.: Rarity of religious enlightenment in human birth, explained by yuga-samilā-drṣṭānta.
- 217.27 f.: Discourse on twofold Dharma.
219. 9 f.: A discourse on five mahāvratas and the attendant bhāvanās.
- 227.19 f.: An exposition of twelve anuprekṣās.
230. 5 f.: A samyag-drṣṭi and his traits.
- .20 f.: Elaboration of the types of Karmas and their consequences.
242. 1 f.: An exposition of udaya, kṣaya, kṣayopasūma of the Jñānāvāra-

- nīya and other Karmas with reference to dravya, kṣetra, kāla, bhava and bhāva.
- 243.13 f.: A contrasted picture of the conditions in the Aparavideha-and Bharata-kṣetra.
245. 6 f.: An exposition of the Leśyā doctrine, typically illustrated by the leśyāvṛkṣa; how the same act can incur different quantity of sin according to the temperamental state.
- 253.18 f.: Through the medium of a divine voice, a few religious discourses on the following topics are presented:
- i) One's benefit in the next world has to be ever remembered.
 - ii) virati or detachment is necessary even in the midst of pleasures.
 - iii) The practice of Dharma leads to Puṇya which brings pleasures; so Dharma is important.
 - iv) Dharma alone, and not the lures of Indriyas, can save one from the pangs in hell.
 - v) One thirst quenched leads to another; and there is nothing like satisfaction in this Samsāra.
 - vi) One should get rid of the infatuation for pleasures recollecting the manifold tortures, ailments, humiliations and sufferings of the past.
 - vii) The pleasures of sense-organs are fatal in their consequences; so one should be circumspect with restraint on mind, speech and body.
261. 8 f.: A discourse on the causes which lead to life in hell.
- 269.23 f.: A doctrinal exposition of the fourfold ārādhana, namely jñāna, darśana, caraṇa and vīrya.
271. 1 f.: A discourse on sāmāyika.
272. 7 f.: An exposition of what may be called in general pratīkramaṇa.
- 273.25 f.: Explanation of the two types of Death, namely, paṇḍita and bāla-marāṇa.
277. 7 f.: Here is an elaborate salutation to Arhat, Siddha, Ācārya, Upādhyāya and Sarvasādhu; and a good many details about whom are recorded.
- 279.26 f.: Details about a soul's ascent on the kṣapaka-śreṇī.

All this shows that the author has snatched every opportunity to introduce Jaina dogmatical details to make his tale worthy of the name of Dharmakathā. The structure of the narrative would remain intact in most of the cases even if these contexts are skipped over. There are, besides, casual references to Jaina ideas here and there. A Jaina monk, who has pulled out his hair on the head, wears white garments and has a bunch of feathers (piccha), is distinguished from Tāpasa and Tridaṇḍin and considered to be honoured in view of his ascetic emblem. He blesses dharmalābha (185); and some details about his entry into the order and equipments are available (194.19). The Pañcanamaskāra is a shelter and has great miraculous potency in adversity (137); and the karṇa-jāpa (uttering of the pañca-namaskāra in the year) given even to an animal leads it to a better future birth (111.32). The way in which one takes to asceticism and becomes a pratyeka-buddha is interesting (141.1-5, 142.17 f.). The idea of sādharmika-vātsalyatva (116.23, 137.20) clearly indicates that Jaina religion was not a theoretical philosophy, but a way of living tending to community life. A cāraṇa-śramaṇa is gifted with certain miraculous powers; he has no gaccha-parigraha; and he does not initiate others into the order. (80.17 f.). The Jaina Tīrthakaras and saints are introduced here and there more than once. The saints staying in the forest have an atmosphere of peace and amity around them; and their routine of living is also interesting (28.22, 34).

4. RELIGIOUS TOUCHES IN THE KUALAYAMĀLĀ

Besides the insertion of Jaina dogmatical details, there are contexts in the Kualayamālā in which the author either criticises the views of other creeds or casually refers to them whereby we get a good glimpse of the contemporary religious ideas.

According to the Lokaśāstra, or scriptures current among the people, a son is necessary for the parents to reach better worlds and to satisfy the ancestors; so, for securing an issue (13.5 f.) various cults were current: flesh from one's body, dripping with blood, was offered as oblation in front of Īśvara; one's head was offered to Kātyāyanī who is stepping on a buffalo felled with Trisūla; human flesh was sold on the burial ground; guggula resin was burnt on the head as an act of devotion; Bhūtas, gods and Māṛṣ were pleased with blood; and prayers were offered to Indra. These are all risky practices (§ 32). Advised by wise ministers, king Dṛḍhavarman offers prayers, after due rituals (§ 34), to Rājalakṣmī (addressed by various names 14.16) and urges her to grant him audience within three days; otherwise he would offer his head. This Rājalakṣmī is the spouse of ancient kings like Bharata, Sagara, Mādhava, Nala, Nahuṣa, Māṃdhātṛ, Dilīpa and others; and after a little joke with her, the king gets the promise of a son from the Kuladevatā. Once prince Candragupta passes through a fatal test and satisfies a Vetāla (§ 379) from whom he gets the required details about a robber who could not be spotted by the city guards. The deities, the author tells us, are twofold: sarāga and virāgin (§ 395); and for worldly ends, the credulous people worship the latter of different names: Govinda, Skanda, Rudra, Vyantara, Gaṇādhipa, Durgā, Yakṣa, Rākṣasa, Bhūta, Piśāca, Kinnara, Kimpuruṣa, Gandharva, Mahoraga, Nāga, astral bodies, natural phenomena etc. Sailors in difficulty offer prayers and make propitiative promises to different deities (68.17 f.) A lady about to commit suicide appeals for grace to Lokapālas (53.6). Yakṣa worship is referred to; and there were Yakṣa statues with Jinas on their heads.

There is a substantial section (§ 322) in which the author reviews various tenets and practices of different religious schools rather than religious systems as a whole, and those too as contradistinguished from the Jaina ones. It is quite likely that these views are picked up and stated with the object of showing them to be contradictory and not acceptable to Jainism. Taking them seriatim, some of the systems reviewed are Buddhism, Tridaṇḍin, Sāṃkhya, Upaniṣadic, Vedic sacrifice, Vānaprastha creed, gifts to Brāhmaṇa, the alleged Advaita creed, extreme Bhakti cult, self-immolation or torture for divine propitiation, Digging of wells, etc., washing sins in the holy Ganges etc., Cāturvarṇya-dharma, erecting earthen deity etc., extravagant Dhyāna, Vaināyika creed, Cārvāka view, gift of cows etc. to Brāhmaṇa, Karuṇā-dharma, killing of harmful beings, the Paṇḍarabhikṣu's view, Fatalism, Īśvara as the guiding spirit, extreme Jñānamārga etc. As against these the Dharma consisting of Five Vows is said to be acceptable.

A severe attack is levelled against the Brahmanic prescription of Prāyaścitta which is backed by great saints like Manu, Vyāsa, Vālmīka, and Mārkaṇḍeya, which has the sanction of Bhārata, Purāṇa and the Gītā, and which consists in giving one's all possessions to Brahmins, in wandering a-begging, cleanly shaven and in bathing and offering oblations at holy places like Gaṅgā (—dvāra?), Bhadreśvara, Vīrabhadra, Someśvara, Prabhāsa, Puṣkara etc. (§§ 94, 107). As against this, the Śramaṇic prescription is different and consists of repentance, mental purification and penance in a proper perspective of religious virtues (49.14 f., 55.24 f., 90.21 f.)

Some interesting sidelight is available on the temples and holy places (p. 82): the former dedicated to Rudra, Jina, Buddha, Koṭṭajjā (Durgā?), Ṣaṇmukha etc.; and the latter, such as the sacrificial enclosures, Brahmanic schools, residences of Kāpālikas and lodges in which the Bhagavadgītā was recited. In the evening, Brahmanic houses resounded with Gāyatrī-japa. Elsewhere there is a nice glimpse of the Maṭhas or colleges for higher learning where students from different parts of India (150.20) flocked and were trained in handling weapons and in various fine arts, crafts and miracles (151.6 f.). There were held classes (vakkhāṇa-maṇḍalī) as well in advanced branches of learning such as grammar, Buddhism, Sāṃkhya, Vaiśeṣika, Mīmāṃsā, Naiyāyika, Jainism and Lokāyata the characteristic topics of which are enumerated (§ 244). The description of the students is quite typical; and some of them mastered Vedic recitation (151.12 f.).

5. DIFFERENT LORES, ETC.

The author makes a distinction between 72 kalās and 64 vijñānas (15.11 f.). Among the miraculous lores prajñapti and mahāśābarī-vidyās are mentioned (236.22, 132.3, 133.5). The prince Kuvalayacandra knows dhātuvāda or alchemy, turning baser metal into gold; and he comes across a group of people who are attempting that experiment, but without success. Their activities are described, and we get a good sketch of what is done in this process (§311 f.). The text Jonīpāhuḍa is said to be the source of this Vidyā (196.32, 197.6 & 19). The Lakṣaṇasāstra is elaborated more than once (116.9 f., 129.3 f.): a branch of it is called sāmudra (129.3). There is mentioned a lore of detecting treasure-trove (khanyavāda) from the plant above; some characteristics of the latter are described as if some source is being quoted (§ 187; 104.23 f.). There is a prince highly skilled in the art of painting, and he has painted an elaborate scroll of the Saṃsāra-cakra (185.18 f.). There are repeated references to belief in astrology, and an astrologer is consulted on various occasions (§§ 47, 273). There is a good discourse on rāśi-phala (§§ 48-9), giving the traits and longevity of a child born on a particular rāśi, on the authority of Vaṃgāla-risi: may be that the name of his treatise was Vaṃgāla-jāyaga (20.2, 3, 24). The prince explains why one should not eat food or drink water or even bathe immediately after one is over exerted and is hungry and thirsty; and he refers to Āusattha in this context (114.23 f.). The author has his own ideas about the digestive process inside (228.11 f.); and in one context, he describes graphically the predelivery signs (76.1 f.). Horse riding was quite necessary for princes. Possibly using some manual on Aśvaśāstra, the author enumerates eighteen breeds of horses (23.20-1); and he gives details about some of them with reference to their varṇa and lāñchana (§ 56.). Here and there, we have dreams and their symbolic interpretations (§ 41; 269.7 f.) The Nimitta-jñāna, which is a branch of Śrutajñāna, is potent enough to indicate subha and aśubha of the past, present and future; and it is illustrated in details (§ 412). Besides the reference to Bhūrjapatra which was used for writing (the script being avara-livī) a love-letter (160.13 f.) there is a graphic and detailed description (a bit dignified) of a palm-leaf Ms. written in Brāhmī-lipi (201.28 f.).

6. SOCIO-CULTURAL GLIMPSES

The Kuvalayamālā bristles with striking social and cultural touches of great interest. The author draws his chief characters from the different well-known layers of the society. By birth Caṇḍasoma was a Brahmin; Mānabhāṭa, a Kṣatriya; Māyāditya, a Vaiśya; Lobhadeva, a Śūdra; and Mohadatta, a prince. The pilgrimage to Gaṅgā and other holy Tīrthas was prescribed by the priest as a prāyaścitta against various sins (48 f., 63 f., 72 f.), though not approved of by the author. A typical Tīrtha-yātrika is described with reference to his dress and equipments (58.1 f., see also 48.24 f.). A famine or draught of twelve years often led people to migrate for food and prosperity (§ 202). The author supplies a list of respectable ways of earning wealth (57.22 f., also 191.1 f.) and also of benevolent channels of spending it (65.8 f.). Though Benares had many good and bad openings for earning wealth (57.16 f.), it was Dakṣiṇāpatha, with Pratiṣṭhāna as an important town therein, that was looked upon as a prosperous territory by the traders (57.27 f.) whose preparations for a trade-trip and onward travel from camp to camp (65.13 f., 135.21 f., 198.23 f.) are noteworthy. We get a good sketch of the preparation of a traders' fleet; the rituals are interesting; and the various items in the boat deserve special attention (67.1 f.). Often the trade-routes pass through perilous forests (118). In the vicinity of Sahya mountain, there were Pallīs of Bhillas who often robbed the caravans (135.27 f.). Their Pallīs (for instance the Cintāmaṇi, p. 139) seem to be pretty prosperous samṇiveśas (§ 227). The Bhillas are Mlecchas, but now and then, despite their wild habits (112.21 f.) in contrast to the respectable, they too have their code of behaviour (146.13-7). Traders had their clubs; and the custom at such a club in Soppārāya (i.e., Sopārā, near Bombay) was that the foreign traders narrated their experience and adventures and were honoured there with Gandha, Tāmbūla and Mālya (65.22 f.). These traders exchanged their information as to what commodities were available in different places and where they could be sold with greater profit. Horses were sold in Kośala in return for elephants; betal nuts were exported to Uttarāpatha in exchange for horses; and pearls were exported to eastern country (pūrva-deśa) in exchange for Caṃaras. Conchs were available in Dvārakā. From the Barbara-kūla tusks and pearls were brought in exchange for clothes. Palāśa flowers could fetch gold in Suvarṇa-dvīpa.. Buffaloes and cows fetched netra-paṭṭa in Cīna and Mahācīna. Neem leaves could buy jewels in Ratnadvīpa. Men were in great demand in the kingdom of women etc. Some of these details cannot be accepted on their face value; they may be just exaggeration (§ 129). In the busy market places, men from different parts of the country came and had conversations in different languages (§ 246) which are interesting specimens of contemporary spoken idioms as the author could catch them. Their business conversations are quite lively and give some ideas about weights and measures (153.16 f.). Greedy merchants took risks of travelling on land and by sea of the dangers of which they were quite aware (65.15 f., 66.6 f.). Now and then there were ship-wrecks (§ 166). Traders went on long journeys, sometime for more than twelve years, leaving their young wives behind (74.12 f.). Various good and bad omens were attended to while going on a journey (for the preparation etc. see § 285), and they are explained in short (§ 289).

The birth of a prince and the subsequent activities and festivities are elaborated in a stylistic manner (§§ 44-46.). Likewise, the wedding is described in all the details: the preliminaries of the marriage, the wedding function along with the rituals and concluding rites, the bed-ceremony, the couple enjoying the sea-sight from the palace-terrace and various pastimes such as prahelikā etc. (§§ 273-80.). A good description of the coronation of Yuvarāja is available (200.8 f.). There is a scene of the royal āpāna-bhūmī at which various sweet drinks are served (§ 50.).

Very interesting are the gossips of the village ladies bringing water and of the boys in residential schools (149.30 f., 151.18 f.). The parade of conveyances (§ 57) in the royal courtyard and the scene of the Jayavāraṇa running amuck (§ 248) reflect events in the contemporary capitals.

Playing on the swing was an important sport of the spring (51 f.) during which was celebrated Madanamahotsava, giving an occasion for youths to meet in the festive garden (77 f., see the reference to madana-trayodaśī in line 15). During the autumn, parties of dancers, actors etc. moved from village to village; and how a programme was enacted at a village is graphically described (46.5 f.). There was a festival on the day of the Śarat-paurṇimā (103.32). While describing the scenes and activities in the city, late in the evening, the author presents a picturesque sketch of the movements of the Kāminī (§§ 156-58.). There may be some exaggeration; still there are available some glimpses of the fashionable and luxury-loving section of the society. Festivities like the Indramaha, Mahānavamī, Dīpāvalī and Baladevotsava appear to follow in succession after the rainy season (148.11 f.)

There is a pretty good number of beliefs reflected in the Kuvalayamālā here and there. Blood and flesh were taken from a living body and used for alchemical purpose (69-24 f.). A robber possessed a miraculous sword and a pill, the latter being always placed by him in his own mouth (251.25, 253.18). More than once, a miraculous movement, jumping up like a flash of lightning (vijjukkhittaṃ karaṇaṃ) is mentioned (73.24, 87.13).

7. COURT, TERRITORIAL DIVISIONS AND GEOGRAPHICAL BACKGROUND

King Dṛḍhavarman possesses quite an imperial dignity (9). His council of ministers consists of eight members: Mantrin (like Bṛhaspati), Mahānarendra, Mahāvīra, Mahāvaidya (like Dhanvantari), Mahābrāhmaṇa (like Caturvadana), Mahākavi (like Vyāsa), Mahāsenāpati (like Saṅmukha) and Mahāpurohita (like Śukra) who are compared with their mythological counterparts, if not predecessors (§ 40). There is a scene of the court of Avantivardhana; and therein was observed the court-precedence who is to sit where in the audience hall. A Pulinda prince who occupied a higher seat by mistake was hit on the spot by Mānabhaṭa who felt offended because his seat was taken by the former (50). The Yuvarāja appears to enjoy de facto powers of the king (213.7 f.). The rich encouraged poets with rewards for Subhāṣitas (103.19). The references to Magadha, Rājagṛha and king Śreṇika (contemporary of Mahāvīra) bring us to the historical period (268.9 f.).

The territorial (or what might be, in many cases, political) divisions and the geographical details referred to in the Kuvalayamālā deserve special attention. In the southern half of Jambūdvīpa, which is surrounded by the ocean, there is the Bhāratavarṣa, isolated by the Vaitāḍhya mountain (7.7 f.): the two Deśas, Uttarāpatha and Dakṣiṇāpatha (§ 430) are well-known. The town of Takṣaśilā is situated in the Madhyamakhaṇḍa of the Uttarāpatha (§ 127); the river Candrabhāgā flows there and conflows into the ocean (jalahi-daiyā); on its bank there is the famous town Pavvaiyā where ruled Torarāya (§ 430).

To the South of Vaitāḍhya, in between Gaṅgā and Sindhū, there is the Madhyadeśa; its capital is Vinītā, the same as Ayodhyā; and it was being ruled by king Dṛḍhavarman (§§ 13-7, 156.26, § 285). Avantijanapada, possibly a part of Mālava-deśa, has Ujjainī as its capital (§ 97). Prince Mahendra is the son of the king of Mālava who is not on good terms with Dṛḍhavarman of Ayodhyā (§ 21 f.). From Ujjainī there was a highway to Pāṭaliputra (77). Vatsadeśa has its capital in Kauśāmbī, ruled over by Purandaradatta (§§ 67-69). The term Pūrvadeśa is used at times (62.17, 65-31). Dakṣiṇāpatha was looked upon as rich (104.6 f.); and there the town of Pratiṣṭhāna was prosperous, affording opportunities for earning wealth. (§ 114). Sopāraka was a big emporium for traders who came there from different parts of the country (§§ 128-29). Lāṭa, which has its specialities of dress and deśa-bhāṣā, and in which Dvārakā is located (§ 291) is mentioned along with Karnāṭa, Mālava, Mahārāṣṭra, Saurāṣṭra etc. (150.20, 185.8). Among other towns mentioned we may take note of Bhṛṅgukaccha (99, 123 etc.); Vārāṇasī in the territory of Kāśī (56.21 f.); Kośāla in Kośāla (73.30 f.); and Campā located in Dakṣiṇa-madhyama Khaṇḍa (96, 103, 109). Among the Jaina holy places, Sammeda-śikhara and Śatruñjaya (124.18; 80.18) deserve attention.

The author shows some acquaintance with the extreme South of India. Candāsoma belonged to Ragadā (not a Sanskrit name), a village in the vicinity of Kāñcī, the capital of Kāñcī of Dravidas (45.15 f.). Parties of traders used to go to Kāñcīpurī (134.32 f.). It is interesting to trace the route of Prince Kuvalayacandra. He is flown by the horse from the town of Vinītā or Ayodhyā towards the South. He passes through the Vindhya forest (27.28 f.) which possesses camps of wild tribes (112.3-25). He crosses the river Narmadā or Revā (§ 206), on the banks of which there is a Mahātavī. Then he comes to the Sahya mountain (134.24-30) in the valley of which he stays with a Bhilla chief in his pallī (138.11 f.). Then he reaches the country of Vijayā-puravarī on the southern coast (149.6 f.). Its capital is Vijayā (-nagarī,-puravarī or-purī), quite a prosperous town and situated right on the shore of the ocean the scenes of which could be witnessed from the terrace of the palace: in fact, its southern rampart-wall was washed by the waves of the ocean (173.32 f.). It is to be distinguished from Jayantī (183.19). Other towns named Jayaśrī (104.8), Śrītuṅga (107.16) and Jayatuṅga (109.26) are referred to, and they are all located on the southern shore.

The most important question is the identification of this port town Vijayā in the South. Uddyotana may not have personally visited the South, but it is quite likely that he had heard a good bit about it from the mouths of traders going to the South possibly travelling along the Western Coast. In the South of India there are some towns with their names beginning with Vijaya, such as Vijayapura, Vijayanagara, Vaijayantī; and some of them pretty ancient. The proposed identification has to fulfil certain conditions: it is located on the Western Coast, as it is reached after crossing the Sahyādri; secondly, it is situated right on the sea-shore; and thirdly, its southern wall was washed by the waves of the ocean (173.31). One is inclined to identify it with Vijayadurga in the Ratnagiri District. Very interesting information about it is noted in the Ratnagiri Dt. Gazetteer (p. 379). It was known to the European travellers as the best of the Konkan ports. It is a rocky spot surrounded by sea practically on three sides: the river Sukhanadī (as it is locally called) flowing down from Khārepāṭṭan almost makes a good lake near the fort, and it is a safe haven for the boats plying along the Western Coast. Though the present structures belong to the Marāṭhā period, the port shows a good rocky base which must have been well-known and striking to the travellers along the Western Coast. It was under the rulers of Bijāpur (the former Vijayapura). Lately, I visited the place and was struck by the coincidental description in the Kuvalayamālā that the southern wall is washed by the waves of the sea. "A. HAMILTON (1710) mentions it as Gheria or Vizendruck, fortified by a strong castle washed by the sea (New Account L. 246). In 1756 Sir W. JAMES, surveying before the English attack, speaks of a very large town betwixt the fort and a hill to the South. The town seems to have been nothing but a large collection of palm-leaf huts (Lows' Indian Navy, L 133). Its great natural advantages make it probable that the mouth of Vaghotan river is one of the oldest coast settlements. There seems reason to suppose that it is Ptolemy's (150) Byzantium, a Greek corruption of Vaijayanta (see WEBER in Ind. Ant. II. 148). Rashid-uddin's (1310) Karoba has been thought to be Gheria (YULE in Ind. Ant. III. 209)."

About the identification Vaijayantī (mentioned in the Kadamba copper plates) and Jayantīpura (of the Vijayanagar grant) there is a difference of opinion. Some take them to be Banavasi, in the South Kanara District, while R. G. BHANDARKAR¹ proposes Vijayadurga. Uddyotana, as noted above, distinguishes

Jayantī from Vijayā. The environments of Vijayā and the route to it from Ayodhyā, as stated by him in the Kuvalayamālā, very well suit the present-day Vijayadurga which was included in the Vijayapura territory.

8. AUTHORS AND WORKS REFERRED TO IN THE KUALAYAMĀLĀ

Uddyotanasūri is an adept in the Kathā branch of literature, and his Kuvalayamālā is a veritable gem in it. He enumerates various types of Kathās, and styles this work as Saṃkīrṇakathā (§§ 7-9.). He is a poet of wide learning; and he is fully acquainted with his predecessors and their works in this field. His references to them occur mainly in one paragraph (§ 6), at the beginning of this work :

1) Pādalipta (Pālittaya) is the well-known author of the Taraṅgavaī which receives here great compliments. He seems to have been taken as a contemporary of Hāla (=Sālāhaṇa) who is mentioned along with him. 2) Hāla had a great hold on the village folk, and his Kośa is an inexhaustible thesaurus. 3) Chappaṇṇaya is not the name of any author like Pādalipta or Hāla, but connotes a group of poets (to which Pādalipta and Hāla also could be assigned) adept in wise sayings; and lately, a Gāthākośa attributed to them has been brought to light. 4) The Vaḍḍakahā (i. e., Brhatkathā) of Guṇāḍhya (who is called Kamalāsana) is a veritable mirror for poets and is likened to Sarasvatī. 5) Vyāsa and Vālmīka to whom we owe Bhārata (see also § 94) and Rāmāyaṇa are unsurpassed models. 6) Bāṇa's Kādambarī is brilliant with exquisite expressions. 7) Vimala (the author of Paūmacariya) who is Vimalāṅka is complimented for his lucid Prakrit. 8) Devagupta, a royal saint from the Gupta family (see also § 430), is well-known for his Supurisacariya. 9) Harivarṣa, the author of Harivaṃsuppatti, is complimented for his popularity and spotless expression. 10) The Sulocanā is a well-narrated Dharmakathā. 11) The royal saint Prabhāñjana is famous for his Yaśodharacarita. 12) The charming Varāṅga- and Padma-caritas are composed by praiseworthy poets, Jaḍiya (=Jaḍila) and Raviṣeṇa. 13) The author of the Samarāditya-kathā,¹ (namely, Haribhadra) who is Virahāṅka, is mentioned as a teacher or Guru (of the author, see also § 430 below) in scriptural instruction. 14) Other poets (whose names are not given) known as Abhimānāṅka, Parākramāṅka and Sāhasāṅka are also remembered (§ 6).

In other contexts some other works and authors find mention rather casually. A great authority on astrology is Vaṃgāla Risi, and long quotations possibly from his Vaṃgārajāyaga are given (§§ 48-9). The Jonīpāhuda (=Yonīprābhṛta) is a work dealing with the utpatti of various Jīvas and about the fusion of metals etc. (34.24.). It was an authority on alchemy, turning baser metals into gold; and there were adepts in the study of this work (196.32; 197.6, 20). The Gītā or Bhagavad-Gītā, as a text which was recited, is referred to (48.17; 82.33). There is mentioned (56.28) Cānakya-śāstra (in plural): this may have the Arthasāstra of Kauṭilya in view. In the light of the context, the reference to Kāmasāstra (78.9) has possibly Vātsāyana's work in view. Some symbolic gestures to indicate that one wants to meet the lady in private are noted (73.12; 74.23 f.). The Nītisāstra (255.26) must be a Sanskrit text allied to the Pañcatantra, a recension of which known as Tantrākhyāna is mentioned and quoted in this work (236-7, lines 30 & 1). There is a mention of Samudra-śāstra dealing with puruṣa-lakṣaṇa etc., which is too extensive but which is summarised here in one Sanskrit verse (129.3 f.), and when asked for, which is propounded in more details in Prākṛit verses subsequently (§ 216). There is a casual reference to Bhārata-śāstra (16.23), possibly the Nāṭyaśāstra of Bharata. What are looked upon as two parts seem to be mentioned as two works, Vasudeva-himḍī and Dhammilla-himḍī, indicated by the plural (281.11).

9. LANGUAGES AND DIALECTS USED BY THE AUTHOR

Uddyotanasūri presents, in this work, quite knowingly a vast range of linguistic material which has a special significance for the study of Middle Indo-Aryan in particular and of Indian Linguistics in general. The author tells us that this work is composed in Prākṛta-bhāṣā, and the patterns of description (vaṇṇaya) are of the Mahārāṣṭra-deśī type. In some contexts, just out of curiosity, some passages are composed in Sanskrit by way of quotations, something, i. e., some portions or passages are written in Apabhraṃśa, and Paisācī-bhāṣā is illustrated (4.11-2). He clearly recognises three literary languages: Prākṛta, Saṃskṛta and Apabhraṃśa; and bards reciting in these languages are introduced in the Āsthāna of King Drḍhavarman (16.22). By Prākṛta he means the standard Prākṛit dialect, Māhārāṣṭrī or Śaurasenī; so other dialects are Apabhraṃśa, Paisācī, Māgadhī, Rākṣasī (Cūlikā-Paisācī?) and some admixture of these (175.14). Besides he speaks elsewhere of Deśa- or Deśī-bhāṣās (281.23), the Lāṭa-deśa having the same in quite a charming form (185.8). The traders from different territories (desavāṇie) spoke in their various Deśa-bhāṣās in the market place, and some eighteen of them the author illustrates by specifying their names (§ 246); and besides he refers to the languages spoken by Khasa, Pārasa and Barbara people (153.12). The languages spoken in the South India were also included among Deśa-bhāṣās (149.4). The knowledge of Deśī-bhāṣās was looked upon as a cultural equipment (128.17). These appear to be territorial spoken forms of speech, as distinguished from the literary languages having cultivated styles of their own.

On the style and structure of Sanskrit, Prākṛit and Apabhraṃśa, relatively viewed, Uddyotana has given his observations which are indeed classical and as such are presented here in free rendering. In his opinion, Sanskrit, with its manifold vocabulary, compounds, indeclinables, prepositions, cases and genders, is full of difficulties and dangers like a villain's heart crowded with hundreds of bad thoughts. The association with Prākṛit, like that with the words of good people, is a happy one: it is an ocean of worldly information crowded with the waves of discussions about various arts; it is full of nectar-drops that are oozing out on account of its being churned by great persons; and it is composed with a variety of nice arrangement of words. Apabhraṃśa is a balanced and pleasing admixture of the waves of pure and impure

Sanskrit and Prākṛit words; it is even (or smooth) as well as uneven (or unsmooth); it flows like a mountain river flooded by fresh rains; and it captivates the mind like the words of a beloved when she is coquettishly angry (§ 138).

Quantitatively the Sanskrit passages are few and mostly metrical. As a rule, they are quotations (para-vayaṇa, 4.12, as the author puts it). A few observations might be offered on them individually. i) In the discussion about prāyaścitta, the five sentences, which are metrical lines (48.18-21), appear to have been taken, perhaps in a mangled form, from some Smṛti works. The sentence jighāmsantam etc. is found as the second line at III.20, Vasiṣṭhasmṛti. ii) The long verse in the Śārdūlavikrīḍita metre (103.17-8) is called a Subhāṣita by the author himself. It is not found in the centuries of Bharṭṛhari. iii) This is a prayer (116.17-9) offered to the first Jina, Ṛṣabha or Ādinātha Tīrthakara. The author calls it Dvipadī Khaṇḍa, meant for singing. iv) This is an Anuṣṭubh verse (129.8) giving the gist of the Sāmudra-Śāstra which is very extensive. v) This is described as Carcarikā (145.7-8) sung to the accompaniment of dancing and is said to be composed of irrelevant expressions. The verse contains obvious mistakes, though metrically it sounds fairly well. vi) This (152.8) occurs in a jocular context. It is called Gāthā by one and Skandhaka by the other. It has a traditional ring; and obviously it has a mangled form, combining portions of a verse from the Pañcatantra and of another usually found in inscriptions (See Notes). vii) This is a Śloka (175.10) to illustrate the distribution of its 32 syllables in a diagram. It glorifies Jinaśāsana and might be an old verse; and there are available similar verses composed by Akalaṅka and others. Some prose sentences in Sanskrit are also found on this page (see II.4, 23). viii) This is a prayer (198.18-20) to be offered in the blessed morning. Similar Suprabhāta-stotras are current among the Jainas. ix) This is also a morning prayer (214.20) offered to the Jina. It is not unlikely that the author himself composed it. x) This (233.9) is obviously a quotation. xi) This is an important quotation (237.1). The source of this śloka is specified as Taṃtakkhāṇa, i. e., Tantrākhyāna. The Ms. J has originally takkhāṇa ya which, on the margin, is prefixed by Paṃcatam in a later hand. Including the additional marginal gloss, the reading would be Paṃcatamtakkhāṇa ya. The reading of P adopted in the text stands for Taṃtakkhāṇe i. e., Tantrākhyāne which was the title of a recension of the present-day Pañcatantra.¹ HERTEL has noted that the Buddhist version from Nepal was called Tantrākhyāna. The Pañcākhyānaka of Pūrṇabhadra is assigned to A. D. 1199. The Ms. J is 116 years older. The verse in question is not traced in the text edited by HERTEL. xii) This sentence in Sanskrit (244.5) is a prose quotation. xiii) This piece (247.7), omitting the word deva is a metrical foot repeated in the Sanskrit text as well. The verse given by P (foot-note No. 7) looks like a parallel quotation. xiv) The source of this Anuṣṭubh verse (255.27) is Nītiśāstra. It is not traced in the Pañcatantra noted above.

The Apabhraṃśa passages, which are scattered practically all over the text, but mainly in the first half of it, fall into, or can be grouped into, some types in view of the form or contents.

The dohaka (47.6) sung by the grāmanaṭī is in Apabhraṃśa, so also the song put in the mouth of the gūrjara-pathika (59.5). Then there are a few such verses which go along with the prose passages in Apabhraṃśa (6.9, 11; 31.26 f.). There is some uncertainty in view of the alternative readings whether 2.28 could be taken as in Apabhraṃśa: one Ms. reads atthaii but the other attho.

In some prose passages, Apabhraṃśa forms intrude here and there, may be that a few of them were current in the spoken idiom of those days. At 23.9 f., the king is addressing the Aśvapati, the chief of the stable; and he uses an Apabhraṃśa form, the Gen. sing. in -ho. The forms ghari at 79.30 and aṇimittu at 99.19 etc. are stray intruders. Then here and there, some short Apabhraṃśa sentences like sā puṇa kaisiya etc. are followed by Prākṛit passages, 7.22, 60.16; etc.

There is a pretty good number of passages which freely use what are looked upon as forms special to Apabhraṃśa. They are often introduced with a question containing a Prākṛitic synonym of kīḍṛśa, such as kerisa, kaisa, etc. in the required form, with or without the k-suffix. These passages (some of them including a verse or so) are usually descriptions: of durjana 5.27 f.; of sajjana 6.15 f.; of a horse 23.13 f.; of a saṃniveśa Ragaḍā by name 45.17 f.; of Avāntī and Ujjainī 50.3 f., 11 f.; of Kāśī and Vārāṇasī 56.21 f.; 27 f.; of Kośāla and Kośalā 72.31 f., 35 f.; of a pattī 112. 9-12, 14-19, 21-24; of summer scenes 113.6-8, 10-12, 21-24; of a town struck with famine 117.20 f.; of Vindhyan forest 118.16 f.; of Narmadā 121.1 f.; of Ujjayanī 124.28 f.; of a caravan 134.33 f.; of the town Rayanāurī 140.2 f.; of the scenes of rainy season 147.24 f.; of Vijayāpurī, territory and town 149.6 f., 20 f.; etc. Then some other passages, which often go with the above, contain what might be legitimately called Apabhraṃśa forms. They describe situations or activities with short sentences following in quick succession (beginning with terms like jā jahim etc.), as at 50.15 f., 82.25 f., 169.13 f., etc.

In order to mark out the Apabhraṃśa traits all these passages can be studied together. The rules about Apabhraṃśa, noted by Hemacandra and other grammarians, are often optional; and later grammarians have recognised an admixture of Prākṛit and Apabhraṃśa to which a name Upanāgara is given by Kramadīśvara and Mārkaṇḍeya. Here many passages are in Prākṛit so far as the vocabulary and even some forms are considered, but they possess striking characteristics of Apabhraṃśa the presence of which gives them a label as Apabhraṃśa passages. The Apabhraṃśa, as Hemacandra presents it, is positively a remodelling of some popular dialect or dialects to the status of a literary language. Such a process must have gone for long in different areas, and all this on the pedestal of Prākṛit itself. This alone explains how Apabhraṃśa forms could encroach upon literary Prākṛit, a phenomenon which is seen even in the Paūmacariya of Vimala who flourished much earlier than Uddyotana. By Uddyotana's time, Apabhraṃśa as a literary language, much closer to the spoken form of speech than the standardised Prākṛit, was a fact; and that is how it could affect some of the passages. It is perhaps for the first time that we are coming across a large amount of prose which shows Apabhraṃśa forms. The king uses Apabhraṃśa forms while addressing an Aśvapati; the grāma-naṭī sings in Apabhraṁśa; and the Gūjara traveller has his verse in Apabhraṁśa. This at once indicates the layers of the society in which Apabhraṁśa was favoured more, and it affected by proximity the literary Prākṛit now and then. The broad yet striking grammatical traits of all these passages studied together may be noted here preferably in comparison with the description of Apabhraṁśa given by Hemacandra in his grammar.

Some liberty of vowel changes is seen in forms like varāi < varākāḥ 6.9; puni < punar 6.22; piyami for pibāmi 112.23; aṅṅi paṅṅi < anye punar 149.15; and bhaḍarayā < bhaṭṭārakāḥ 147.28. The vowel r is retained in trṇa 31.12, and a conjunct group with r is noticed in a word like prāṇa 47.6 (cf. Hema. VIII. iv. 329, 398).

Coming to Declensional forms, Nom.sing. termination u (often with k- suffix) is seen besides o in the case of a-ending nouns; dujjaṇu 5.27; jāṇiu 5.31; vaṇu 149.8, lohiurū 112.23 (cf. Hema. VIII. iv. 331-2 also 354). Sometimes the termination in the Nom. and Acc. is absent, and besides vowel-variation is seen: kāyala ghūya (for kākāḥ ghūkāḥ) 82.27 (see also 112.10, 15); ṇavaṅkura-rehira puḥai, vāvada haliya 147.25.27; ekka, cciya koilā motturū 147.30 (cf. Hema. VIII. iv. 344, also 330, especially illustrations). The forms of the Nom. pl. of neuter nouns ending in a of the type kesaraiṃ, bhavaṇaiṃ, gāmaiṃ (besides gāmāiṃ 72.31) 31.16-7, 56.22 (see also 112.32 f., 117.21 f.) are found in plenty (cf. Hema. VIII. iv. 353). The Instr. sing. forms of a-ending nouns are of the type mahalleṇaṃ saddeṇ 6.1 (Hema. VIII. iv. 342). The Gen. sing. forms of a-ending nouns are of the type dujjaṇaho 6.11, deṃtaho 6.22 etc. The form mayahiṃ (mṛtasya) 5.28 is either a case of vowel-variation or of contamination with i-ending types; the pl. forms are of the type cilāyahaṃ 112.21 (cf. Hema. VIII. iv. 338-9, 341). The Loc. sing. forms of a-ending nouns show the types cittae 6.1, samsaggi 6.20, ghari 79.30, gharoyare 147-26 (cf. Hema. VIII. iv. 334). Pronominal forms like jasu 47.6, tahu, 47.6; jahiṃ 31.15, tahiṃ 72.35 and kahiṃ 121.2; jāha 118.18; and āyaho 6.2 are found in our passages and have their correspondence in Hemacandra's rules. The k-suffix is used here quite in plenty kaḍuyai, mahurāi 6.5, juvalulla 23-16. Participle forms with the suffix alla, illa or ulla etc. are quite interesting: jāyalliya 6.2, bhariyallai 6.9, see also 112.11-12, kaisiyao jāyalliyo 113.10. Agreement in gender seems to be upset in pahayai nāyara-bāliyai 140.3 (Hema. VIII. iv. 445). The potential participle form type of māriyavvai 112.21 is noted by Hemacandra (Ibid. 438). In these passages though the vocabulary is the same as in Prākṛit, one is struck by the tendency to use Deśī words (112.22) and Dhātva-deśas (112.18 etc.). Forms like jaisai, kaisaiya 5.27, 7.22 are sanctioned by Hemacandra in a special sūtra (VIII. iv. 403); and saiṃ (for svayaṃ) 6.4 is found more than once in his illustrations (on sūtra 402). The words like ghaiṃ 5.28, ji, jji or jje (for eva) 6.25, 6.56 and vunṇa (= viṣaṇṇa) are noted by Hemacandra (VIII. iv. 420-21, 424). Onomatopoeic dhātva-deśas used by Uddyotana, such as, karayara 5.30, caḍapphada 5.29, khamakhama, phuraphura 23.16, cilicili, kilikili 82.27-28, maghamagha 169.27 are perhaps colloquial. These characteristics of the Apabhraṁśa passages are covered by the rules of Hemacandra. The description of Apabhraṁśa given by Hemacandra is a bit more pervasive covering many dialects, or local variations, without making any distinctions; any way it can safely be said that the Apabhraṁśa used by Uddyotana is duly covered by the rules given by Hemacandra; and this is but natural, because both of them hail from nearly the same linguistic area and belong to the same tradition of learning.

Uddyotanasūri has illustrated another bhāsā, namely, Pesāyā, i. e., Paiśācī, as we have it elsewhere: and the passages are included in §139. They have already attracted the attention of earlier scholars like L. B. GANDHI, A MASTER and F. B. J. KUIPER. The last two have attempted not only a critical constitution of the text based on JP but also discussed grammatical forms and presented a translation in English. Paiśācī language and literature have been a matter of great scholarly curiosity, investigation and even speculation for one main reason, namely, the Bṛhatkathā of Guṇāḍhya was written in Paiśācī.

The two Mss. J and P vary in details of readings; individually the Mss are not without faulty readings; and they seem to have suffered unconscious syllabic changes because the Paiśācī passages come in the midst of non-Paiśācī ones. As these passages are thoroughly scrutinised by MASTER and KUIPER, only a few observations will be added here in the light of the rules of Hemacandra. In these passages the tendency to retain invervocalic t (quite possible in Pāli—and now and then even in Ardhamāgadhī both of which form along with Paiśācī an earlier stratum of MIA), to change even d to t, to use n instead of ṇ, to prefer yy (= dy) for jj, to use verbal forms like lappiyyate, ujjhī (t)u [ū] na and to use words like Kusumotara tāmotara in Hemacandra) sinnāna and hitapaka is quite in tune with the rules of Hemacandra. The use of ! for l and some traits of Cūlikā Paiśācī are not noticed here.

Then may be studied together three contexts in the Kuvalayamālā in which some conversational passages occur; first (55.15 f.), talk of the decrepit-and-destitutes; secondly (63.18 f.), prescriptions of the Grāma-mahattaras for the purification of culprits who have committed the sin of mitra-droha; and thirdly (151.18 f.), the conversation between the boys belonging to a residential school. The grammatical substratum for these passages is literary Apabhraṁśa (the first passage could be easily styled as Apabhraṁśa); but there are certain elements in them which give a different tone and flourish to them. The Indian society has all along a two-fold current of languages: the literary and the spoken. In a way, they were independent, but all the while running parallelly with mutual interaction. These three contexts, under study, are a part and parcel of a Āṣaḍa, a commentator on the Sarasvatīkaṇṭhābharaṇa believed that the Paiśācī quotation panamatha etc., given by Hemacandra is the ādi-namaskāra of the Bṛhatkathā, Bhāratīya Vidyā (Hindī) III, i, pp. 231. Dr. SUKUMAR SEN (Journal of the O. I., XI, 3, pp. 193 ff, especially pp. 207-8) holds the view that what the Prākṛit grammarians call Paiśācī 'was probably the early MIA literary language which after being cultivated by the southern schools of Buddhism later received the name Pāli in Ceylon'. There is no doubt, and it is accepted, that Pāli and Paiśācī have much in common, and form perhaps the earlier group.

Prākṛit text which contains plenty of Apabhraṃśa elements; but they positively verge on what must have been the spoken form of speech. It may be called Middle Indo-Aryan colloquial, or even Mid-Indian colloquial. The orthodox authors, who are brought up in the tradition of conventional court poetry, would not like to admit such conversations; but Uddyotana has done it; and he must be complimented on his having given us such linguistic material which would not have been otherwise available. The growth of Middle Indo-Aryan languages shows many gaps, because the spoken predecessor stages are not preserved: and what is found by way of its counterpart in literary strata is only partial and inadequate in linking the continuity of the speech formation. Dr. A. MASTER has already studied and offered grammatical notes on these passages. It may not be out of place to look at these passages from the points of view of Sanskrit, Prākṛit (i. e., Māhārāṣṭrī and Śaurasenī) and Apabhraṃśa and observe their constituents with reference to their phonetic make-up, grammatical forms and vocabulary. The alternative readings only show that the passages have suffered changes in copying, because the dialect is not clear-cut as expected; and the forms are often obscure.

The first conversation is set in an orphanage at Mathurā, and the list of the destitutes is quite interesting. The names in the list stand perhaps without terminations as one would use ordinarily while speaking. This is not impossible even in Apabhraṃśa. Besides the Prākṛit forms, the Apabhraṃśa —u, Nom. pl. —im (with a preceding), Gen. pl. —ham, the form kahim, perhaps je or jje (standing for ji or jji in some cases), the retention r in Prayāga, and a word like khedḍu (Hema. VIII. iv. 422/9) are easy for detection. The verbal forms miliellae, ruṭhellao and jampiellau, ekkekamahā (Gen. pl. agreeing with the preceding nouns ?), gayāham (besides gayāham, repetition of so, and expressions like kahio vuttantao, teṇa jampillaii, kāim kajju etc., add a positive colloquial tone to the passage.

The second context consists of four statements (63.18, 20, 22 and 25, which have perhaps a metrical ring) which are put in the mouth of Grāma-mahattaras, the last of whom, however, is a Dramga-svāmin, Dramga being a settlement of the Gūrjara tribe. The Prākṛit background of these speeches is clear. The Apabhraṃśa traits are seen in forms like ehaum, u—endings, the word kira (Hema. VIII, iv. 419) and forms like Gamga, brolla, prāvu etc. The retention of r in a number of conjunct groups, alternative forms like etu, eu and ehu, Sanskritic tendency as in protu (= proktam ?), sampratu (= sāmpratam, besides samprati), bhrāti. retention of intervocalic t (once its softening in virāidu) etc., may be even dialectal traits (not unknown to Hemacandra) in the different sections of the society. But all these put together do point out to the colloquial format of the speeches uttered by people whose language is not standardised by some or the other grammatical discipline.

The third context is perhaps the most interesting conversation between the inmates of the residential school. They are all grown-up boys and are trained in reciting Veda (veda-pāḍha-mūla-buddhi-vittharā). Dr. A. MASTER has already studied some of the grammatical details. The Prākṛitic basis is obvious. The Apabhraṃśa characteristics like the u—endings, Gen. pl. in —ham, forms without terminations (like ka, bhaḍāriya), Present 1st p. pl. in —hum, etc. The most striking aspect of these speeches is the sprinkling of Sanskrit pronunciation (kīdr̥sam, sometimes wrongly spr̥ṣṭa from pr̥cch), introduction of Sanskrit words and also forms shaped after the Prākritic set up (var̥ṇi < var̥ṇaya, yadr̥siya, parinetavya, vismṛtu) and even broken sentences. A form like paṭhasi is quite usual in a variety of Prākritic called Pāli on account of its use in the Buddhist canon. This colloquial speech is made to smack of Sanskrit learning and skill in metres, quite natural in a Vedic school. An old Sanskrit verse is a bit mangled: and what is put in Sanskrit must have been originally in Prākritic (tambola—raīya—rāyam aharam dat̥thūna kāmīṇiyanassa). Here and there some Deśī words like caṭṭa, siṅgha etc., are used. An analysis of any Modern Indo-Aryan speech today will disclose elements more or less on this line. The alternative passage in P and alternative readings show that subsequent readers or copyists might have taken some liberty with the expression. May be that there is some exaggeration and artificiality in imitating the speeches of these boys. But that the author seems to have done his best to reproduce approximately the contemporary colloquial idiom used in an orphanage, by village headmen and by youths studying in a Vedic School, should be accepted as highly probable.

The prince reaches the market place in Vijayāpuri. There he sees country-traders who could be distinguished by their territorial speeches (desa-bhāsā-lakkhie) i. e., dialects and languages (their traditional or conventional number is eighteen) current in different parts of the country. He describes these categories of people, physically and temperamentally, and gives some words or so from their speech (p. 152, 1.24f.): 1) The Gollas are dark and of harsh words; they enjoy a number of skirmishes or fights and are devoid of modesty (lajjā); and they utter ‘aḍaḍe’. 2) Those from the Madhyadeśa are adept in state policy and in treaties of peace and war. They are talkative by nature. They speak ‘tere mere āu’. 3) Those from Magadha are pot-bellied, ugly and rickety, and yearning for amorous sports. They speak ‘ege le’. 4) Those from Antaraveda are reddish (in complexion), with brown eyes. They are actively gossiping about food. They talk sweet using the expressions ‘kitto kammo’. 5) The Kīras are characterised by lofty and fat nose and golden complexion; they carry heavy loads, and they speak ‘sari pāri’. 6) The Ḍhakkas lack in courtesy, generosity, manliness, skill and kindness; and they talk ‘ehaṃ tehaṃ’. 7) The Saindhavas are graceful, sweet and tender; they like singing and are homesick; and they utter ‘caūḍaya me’. 8) The Mārukas are crooked, dull and sluggish; they eat more and have their limbs rough and fatty; and they speak ‘appāṃ tuppāṃ’. 9) The Gūrjaras have their limbs nourished with ghee and butter; they are pious and skilled in treaties of peace and war: and they speak ‘nai re bhallaūm’. 10) The Lāṭas bathe, anoint and comb the hair, and thus make their limbs attractive; they speak thus ‘amhaṃ kai tumhaṃ’. 11) The Mālavas are slender and dark; they are irritant, fierce and leading a life of self-respect (or pride): and they speak thus ‘bhāuya bhainī tumhe’. 12) Those from Karnāṭaka are excessively proud, too much given to pleasures, fierce and of fickle temper; and they utter ‘aḍi pāṃḍi mare’. 13) The Tājikas cover their bodies with bodice; they like flesh, wine and merriment (love ?); and they speak 'isi kisi misi'. 14) Those from Kosala are adept in various arts, proud, irritable, and well-built; and they speak 'jala tala le'. 15) Those from Mahārāṣṭra are hardy, lean, dark and enduring; they are proud and quarrelsome; and they speak 'dinṅale gahiyalle', 16) Those from Āndhra like women and warfare; they are handsome and fierce in eating; and they utter 'aṭi puṭi raṭim'. The prince observed these 18 (really 16) Desi-bhāsās and those of Khasa, Pārasa and Barbara people. For some observations about these people and their speeches, one has to study the discussions of Dr. A. MASTER and the Notes at the end. The indefinite nature of the readings raises some problems which await further investigation.

Any way Uddyotanasūri is one of those few authors who have shown not only that language-insight but also illustrated a number of languages and dialects which, in view of his definite age and locality, are a remarkable document for the study of Indo-Āryan in general and Mid-Indian in particular.

10. METRICAL FORMS IN THE KUALAYAMĀLĀ

The Kuvalayamālā, as a whole, looks apparently like a massive work in Prākṛit prose with a continuous narration uninterrupted by any division like the ucchavāsa or pariccheda etc. For a big work like this, this is a speciality and even a hindrance in following the complicated threads of the story which not only deals with a number of lives, but also embodies a large number of sub-stories emboxed here and there. The original Bṛhatkathā was possibly divided into Lambhas. The Vasudevahimḍī, which is looked upon as the Jaina prototype of Guṇāḍhya's great work, has also suitable Lambhas. The Kādambarī of Bāṇa is one continuous story, and this looks like a good prototype for our author who is quite acquainted with Bāṇa and his works. The Vāsavadattā of Subandhu does not, somehow, find a place among the works referred to in the Kuvalayamālā. A Kathā, according to Bhāmaha, does not contain Uchchvāsas; and it is to be remembered that the Kuvalayamālā is a (Dharma-) Kathā of the Saṃkīrṇa type. The Taraṅgavaṭī of Pādalīpta, there are reasons to believe, was also a continuous narration without any sections. The Samarācchakahā of Haribhadra is, however, divided into Bhavas, which serve the purpose of Adhikāras. In a number of Prākṛit and Apabhraṃśa works the division of Paricchedas or Saṃdhis is rather artificial.¹ Any way this Kuvalayamālā is a prominent example of a continuous composition in Prākṛit. A closer scrutiny shows that it is composed partly in prose and partly in verse: both the types get mixed up without any clear-cut restrictions. In view of its poetic qualities and free admixture of prose and verse, it can be called Campū, which style is cultivated by a number of Jaina authors in their religious romances. The verses here come some time to continue the narration, now and then by way of an effective description, often as gnomic, religious or didactic sermons and at times by way of clarificatory elaboration. Uddyotanasūri mixes up various stylistic and metrical forms of composition; and he has made a pointed reference to this at the beginning of his work (§ 7). In fact some metrical forms are specified by him, though a few of his expressions are open to different interpretations.

The total number of verses in this work is not less than 4180, the major bulk of which is made up of Gāthās, the predominant Prākṛit metre. Uddyotanasūri has such a remarkable hold on the composition of Gāthā that it comes to him most naturally. The liquidity and smoothness of his Gāthās stand unparalleled, if not unsurpassed. Besides the Gāthā, the metrical forms used by him are listed below alphabetically; and a few observations are added on some of them in the Notes at the end.

11. THE KUALAYAMĀLĀ INFLUENCED BY EARLIER WORKS

It is seen above (pp. 76 f.) how Uddyotana respectfully refers to a number of earlier authors and works. He is widely read, and consequently he has enriched his composition with a vast range of information and a variety of contexts many of which are inherited from earlier works, consciously or sub-consciously.

Uddyotana's reference to the Taraṅgavāī with an adjective cakkāya-juvala-suhayā has in view the central idea of that romance which gives the biography of a beautiful nun, Taraṅgavatī by name, more or less a contemporary of Mahāvīra. The original work of Pādalipta with plenty of Deśī words is no more available; but what we possess today is only a digest in Prākṛit, (saṃkhitta-) Taraṅgavāī, also called Taraṅgalolā, in 1642 Prākṛit stanzas¹. The concluding verse yields no satisfactory meaning: the author may be Nemicandra (or his pupil Jasa or Yaśas, in case he is not only copying it for his teacher), the pupil of Vīrabhadra. Comparing the Kuvalayamālā (Km) with the Taraṅgalolā (T), it is seen, Uddyotana directly or indirectly owes some contexts to Pādalipta. The motif of jāti-smaraṇa plays an important rôle in T which further illustrates that the law of Karman is inviolable, that none escapes the consequences of one's own thoughts, words and acts, and that renunciation is the only panacea against all the ills of Saṃsāra. These items are found in plenty in Km as well. Both are Dharma-kathās, though Km, on account of its varied contexts, has assumed the form of saṃkīrṇa-kathā. Princes and girls from distinguished families are trained in various Kalās (T 8.17; Km 22. 1-10). The thoughts of onlookers while Taraṅgavatī (T 15) was passing by the road in a chariot have close resemblance with a similar scene in Km (182.4 ff.). The religious and cultural background is identical in both T and Km; and the tendency to introduce religious details is quite patent in both the texts (T 83.18 f.; Km 142.21 f.; see Intro. pp. 68 f.). The effects of pūrva-kṛta-karman are often elaborated (T 81.79 f.;

PATEL: LEUMANN'S German Essay Translated into Gujarati and included as a Supplement in the Jaina Sāhitya Saṃsodhaka, II, 2, Poona 1924. The Text in Prākṛit is published in the Śrī-Nemivijñāna-Granthamālā, No. 9, Surat 1944. Though said to be based on five Mss., the text presented is far from satisfactory. A critical edition of this beautiful romance is an urgent desideratum. Some mature Prākṛit scholar has to undertake it.

Km 129.12 etc.). Taraṅgavatī escaping with her spouse reminds us of Suvarṇa-devā going out with prince Tosala, though the circumstances are somewhat different. A Śābara chief looting the caravan and retiring to his pallī is referred to in both the texts; and so also therein figures the deity Kātyāyanī. Relatives dissuading one from taking to renunciation are introduced in both the works. That a woman is not to be taken into confidence is a common idea in both (T 54, Km § 364). Some striking points of difference in both the works may as well be noted. The T is essentially a mānuṣī kathā with a few characters introduced, while Km is divya-mānuṣī kathā, and the number of characters is too large to be easily managed. The T has a compactness; and its descriptions are so worldly, natural and catching that it is these which appear to have made T so memorable. Uddyotana's canvas is vast; and his descriptions are grafted as pieces of style and beauty, at times even in a detachable manner. The geographical background of Km is far wider than that in T. As the original T is no more available, verbal agreements here and there carry no special significance.

Uddyotana refers to the *Kādambarī*¹ of Bāṇa whose well expressed style is complimented for its grace. He imitates Bāṇa in his descriptions of town etc. loading them with similes and śleṣa. The description of Viñītā in Km (§ 14) resembles that of Ujjayanī in K. The pratihārī ushering in Śābarasenāpati in Km (§ 20) reminds one of the entry of Cāṇḍāla-kanyakā in K; and even some expressions are common (See Notes at the end on 9. line 21.) Uddyotana's details at Km 27.30 f. reminds one of Bāṇa's pattern of description of the Vindhya: kahim here corresponds to Bāṇa's kvacit; and even some expressions are common to both (See Notes on 27.30 f.). The context in Km at 127.7 f. resembles the parrot episode in K; and there is close agreement in some words as well (See Notes on 123.14).

Uddyotana is Dākṣiṇya-cihna just as Vimala is Vimalāṅka; and he has great praise for Vimala's sweet Prākṛit style and clarity of meaning seen in the Paūmacariya (P)². Narration of earlier lives and jātismaraṇa are common to both. Sections on Jaina dogmatical topics are found in both. The conventional śakunas are common to both (P 94.35 f., Km 184.10 f.). Different acts lead to different grades of existence (P 14; Km 185.21 f.). Certain episodes and tales closely resemble in both the works. The context of Kuvalayacandra concealing himself in the temple of R̥ṣabha and Kanakaprabhā and party worshipping the Jina (Km § 200) very much resembles the one in P where Janaka hides himself and Candragati offers the Pūjā (28.44 f.). It is interesting that both Kuvalayacandra and Janaka were flown by a miraculous horse. Certain descriptions in both the works show resemblance and even common ideas and expressions: description of the Vimāna (P 14.89 & Km 92.21 f.); of hemanta (P 31.42 f. & Km 169.19 f.); of the forest with a long Daṇḍaka metre (P 53.79-80 & Km 28.11 f.); of battle (P 53-107 & Km 10.7f. rather short etc.) Both the authors have much traditional knowledge, more or less common; and onomatopoetic expressions are used by both.

Uddyotana refers to Jaḍiya (=Jaḍila or Jaṭila) and his *Varāṅgacarita*¹ which is available in print and is specifically called a dharma-kathā. The Varāṅgacarita (V) and Kuvalayamālā (Km) have a number of common points. The story in both starts in the metropolis Vinītā. The heroes in both, Varāṅga and Kuvalayacandra, are carried away into wilderness by a horse (though the antecedents of the event are different with them). What Varadatta preaches to Dharmasena (V v-ix) runs quite parallel to what Dharmanandana discourses to Purandaradatta (Km §§ 75-84). If Varāṅga inquires about samyaktva and mithyātva (V xi), the minister wants to know about the causes etc. of samsāra (Km § 86 f.). Both Varāṅga and Purandaradatta (V xi, Km 91.21-2) accept the vows of a Śrāvaka. Varāṅga as well as Kuvalayacandra (V ivx, Km 135.27 f.) fight the Bhillas and oblige a merchant. The lamentations of the parents etc. consequent on the prince being carried away by the horse are expressed in similar terms (V xv, Km 155.21 f.). Both the heroes enjoy rich pleasures on their return to the capital. Both V and Km are basically dharma-kathās (though the latter has assumed the form of a saṃkīrṇa-kathā), and as such they are impregnated with Jaina dogmatical discourses and religious sermons. The topics tabulated in the Introductions of both (V pp. 29 f. and Km pp. 68 f.) bear close similarity; and in different contexts also they possess dogmatical details which deserve mutual comparison.

Though there is so much similarity between V and Km, some striking differences deserve to be noted. Prince Varāṅga reminds us of Rāma both of whom have to leave home on account of the jealousy of a step-mother; and his consequent sufferings are a clear testimony of the law of Karma which the author demonstrates to be supreme. But after all it is the tale of one life only unlike the journey of five souls over a number of births in Km. The V has a simple thread of the story, while in the Km it is a highly complicated network in which a number of other episodes are interwoven. If V is a dharma-kathā following the pattern of a mahākāvya in Sanskrit, the Km is a narrative mosaic of great magnitude, apparently Campū in form, but a veritable kathā-bandha or -prabandha of the saṃkīrṇa type, in Prākṛit, with touches of different dialects given here and there out of curiosity and for popularity.

Uddyotana looks upon Haribhadra as his Guru in Jaina (samaya-saya-sattha) scriptures as well as in yukti-śāstra or pramāṇa-and-Nyāya. He is aware of extensive contributions of Haribhadra to various branches of learning, and refers to his *Samarāiccakahā*¹ specifically. It is necessary, therefore, that the Samarāiccakahā (Sk) of Haribhadra (H) and Kuvalayamālā (Km) of Uddyotana (U) are studied side by side. H refers to three kathā-vastus and four kinds of kathās (Sk 2-3) with their details. His work is a dharmakathā with divya-mānuṣa-vastu. U presumes all this and gives some further types of dharmakathā: his Km is, however, a saṃkīrṇa-dharmakathā.

Rebirth accompanied by consequences of one's own Karmas is the backbone of the tales in both Sk and Km. If in the Taraṅgalolā, as observed by JACOBI, 'Karma, remembrance of a previous birth and its consequences etc. serve to motivate the story, in the Samarāiccakahā the story serves to illustrate those ideas and to impress the hearer with certain moral principles'. Uddyotana follows Haribhadra in whose Sk the idea of retribution underlies the main story and a number of sub-stories. It is the nidāna, remunerative hankering, of Agniśarman, through intense hatred, that takes revenge on Guṇasena in different births. These two souls pass through nine births: the hereditary revenge manifests through anger (krodha), deceit (māyā), greed or avarice (lobha) etc. in different births. If there are two souls, one urged by nidāna and the other suffering consequently, in the Sk, there are five souls suffering the consequences of krodha etc. and passing through a series of births, meeting each other here and there till they reach Liberation in Km. Both H and U have not missed any opportunity to stuff their works with sub-tales, dr̥ṣṭāntas, parallel episodes etc. Both the works are 'evidently intended to illustrate the evil consequences of vices, sins and all transgressions of the Jaina code of morals, and to warn the reader or hearer of it against carelessness in conduct'; and in this sense, both are eminently dharmakathās.

The love-presents and the metrical message of Kuvalayamālā (Km § 259) remind us of those of Kusumāvalī (Sk 72: and the dvipadī verse has some striking common words). Here and there some verses have common expressions: the one under reference (Sk 115.1-2 & Km 96.1) is possibly an inherited traditional Gāthā. Though in a different context, the idea of danta-vīṇā is found in both the works (Sk 180.7-8; Km 169.21). The descriptions are generally introduced with phrases like avi ya, taṃ ca kerisaṃ etc., and those of seasons and scenes are often in a heavy style in both the works (vide śarad, Sk 195-6; gr̥ṣma, Km 113.10 f.). A context of putting questions with answers concealed in them in a subtle manner is found in both the works (Sk 611, Km 175.18 f.). The Sk (616.3 f.) has a gūḍha-caiṭṭha-gottḥī which corresponds to what is found at Km 176.10 f. Now and then, especially in descriptions, common ideas are found in both the works.

Religious background is the same in Sk and Km. H presents it uniformly in a serious and classical form, but U might often do so even in a light vein. The Samavasaraṇa is described in both the works (Sk 139 f., 644 f.; Km § 178); and some expressions are inherited from the canon. Dharma consisting of dāna, śīla, tapas and bhāvanā is mentioned by both (Sk 154.9 f.; Km 3.2 f.). The external characteristics of samyaktva are given in both the works (Sk 48-9, Km § 337). If H describes the birth of a god in short (Sk 56-7), U gives elaborate details (Km §§ 172 f.). In Sk (488 f.) a friend of the earlier birth comes to enlighten and put the other on the right track: this, of course, is the very contract between the five souls whose biographies are narrated in Km. There is a context of enlightenment by seeing some memento, ear-rings in Sk (477.15) but jewel images in Km (102.29). Memory of earlier life, often given by a Kevalin, and confusion of relations in the same birth are seen in both the works (Sk 476.7 f. & Km 93.34 f., 79.12). A contemporary Tīrthakara in Videha is consulted in Sk (473.16 f.), so also in Km which graphically describes the conditions in that area Km (243.13 f.) The dīksā ceremony described in Sk (181.16 f.) deserves to be compared with that in Km (208.30 f.) and elsewhere. What Śikhikumāra observes about inescapable Death (Sk 186) is very close to what Ratnamukuṭa has realised in his attempt to save the butterfly from death (Km § 230). Religious discourses on the duties of laymen and monks (Sk 48-49, Km 91.21 f.) are usual in both the works.

Certain characters, contexts and motifs in Km remind the reader of similar ones in Sk. Māyāditya pushing Sthānu into the well (Km 61.21) has his counterpart in Anahaka doing the same for Candrasāra (Sk 99). Labhadeva pushing down Bhadra on high seas (Km 67.15 f.) is something like Droṇaka pushing down Vīradeva from a jutty (Sk 105: the word nijjūhaga occurs in both the contexts). A confused treacherous friend, Dhanadeva, figures in Amaragupta's tale (Sk 104) and resembles Māyāditya (Km 58.22 f.). Dhana and Sāgaradatta are similar characters who want to give dāna from the wealth earned on personal initiative and not out of ancestral property: the idea is expressed almost alike in both the works (Sk 195.15-6, see also 409.9 f.; Km 103.23). Though the contexts are somewhat different, a girl is hanging herself for the sake of her lover (Sk 346.12 f.; Km 53.6-9, 107.10 f.). In Sk (469.17 f.) a monk is made to dance, while a monk enacts rāsa-ṇaccana in Km (4.25 f.) to enlighten a band of robbers. The details of the attack of Śabarasa in both the texts have some common words (Sk 537.4 f., Km 135.27 f.) apart from the similarity of the context. The idea of a horse carrying the prince into the forest is common to both the texts (Sk 671.11 f. Km § 61).

The religious, social and cultural background in Sk and Km is nearly the same. In the details about marriage, of a party of merchants preparing for land or sea travel, the procession of a prince entering the metropolis etc. have much in common both with H and U.

Taking an overall view certain areas of difference are striking. H is more self-confident in narrating his tales: that may be the reason why he does not introduce the sajjana-durjana topic, and why he does not make any reference to earlier authors and works. His build-up and narration of stories have a classical background and training; while U is popular in taste and aiming at wider appeal. The Gāthās of H are metrically perfect, but they do not possess the liquidity, smoothness and ring of those of U with whom they have a natural out-flow as it were from the mouth of a gifted singer. Both H and U are contemporaries. The language of H, however, is more learned in its make-up and style, while the expression of U has a popular character, showing forms, vocabulary, expressions and stylistic features drawn from Apabhraṁśa and Deśī stock. Hari-bhadra shows maturity and serious temper, while U adds a number of contexts in a light tone and even tries to justify their presence in a dharmā-kathā. The wider and popular appeal of Km is further apparent from its miraculous, erotic and jocular touches which are not very much favoured by H. Though U has received lessons in Jainism and Pramāṇa-Nyāya from H, he outshines his teacher in his liquid Gāthās and catching contexts with which he has embellished his Prabandha.

In many a context in Km we find ideas and expressions echoed from the canonical texts, Niryuktis, Smṛtis and from classical works like the Śākuntalam etc. as indicated in the Notes here and there.

12. THE KVALAYAMĀLĀ-KATHĀ OF RATNAPRABHĀSŪRI

May be under the impetus given to Sanskrit learning under the Paramāra rulers of Malwa like Muñja and Bhoja and the Chālukya kings of Gujarat like Siddharāja and Kumārapāla, there was seen an attempt to put into Sanskrit some of the earlier works in Prākṛit and Apabhraṁśa. For instance, Amitagati¹ wrote his Dharmaparīkṣā in Sanskrit (A. D. 1014); and it is obviously based on earlier Prākṛit and Apabhraṁśa works of the same name composed by Jayarāma and Hariṣeṇa. Jayarāma's work in Prākṛit is not discovered as yet, but Hariṣeṇa specifically refers to it. Likewise Amitagati's Pañcasamgraha and Ārādhanā are Sanskrit versions of earlier Prākṛit works of those titles. In Gujarat it is found that Pradyumnasūri² prepared a Sanskrit digest or epitome, the Samarāditya-samkṣepa (A. D. 1268) of the Samarāiccakahā of Hari-bhadra (c.A. D. 700-777); and amongst his contemporaries and colleagues Munideva epitomised in Sanskrit the Sāntināthacaritra (A. D. 1265) of Devacandra who had written it in Prākṛit, so also Ratnaprabha presented in Sanskrit, Kvalayamālā-kathā-samkṣepa (Kmk) a stylistic digest of Uddyotana's Kvalayamālā (Km) in Prākṛit. It is interesting to note that both of them had their works corrected by Pradyumnasūri. It is such Sanskrit adaptations that gave a set-back to the study and circulation of earlier Prākṛit works which, in due course, were neglected and some of them even lost into oblivion. Many Mss. of them were not prepared, because the thirst for their contents was satisfied by the Sanskrit versions.

The Prākṛit work of Uddyotana and its stylistic Sanskrit digest by Ratnaprabha, both of which are edited here need a comparative study. The Km has 13,000 or 10,000 granths according to the Longer or Shorter Recension, but the granthāgras of Kmk are given differently as 3,804, 3,894 and 3,994 in different Mss. Any way Kmk is roughly one-third of the extent of Km. The Km is one-whole text without any formal divisions of chapters etc., while Kmk is divided into four Prastāvas: the second and fourth are nearly of equal length; the first is almost half of them; and the fourth is a little less than double of them. Both Km and Kmk are apparently in mixed prose and verse. The structure of the tale is such that it presents inherent difficulties for dividing it properly in different sections.

Ratnaprabha compliments the Km for its captivating contents. He plainly states how he is composing his Campū in Sanskrit based on the earlier Prākṛit work of the saint (Uddyotana), known as Dākṣiṇyaciḥna (I.9-10). He is quite modest about his poetic abilities (asāra-vacasā'pi mayā *2.34). He is after all summarising for his spiritual benefit (asyāḥ kathāyāḥ saṃkṣepaḥ kriyate svārtha-siddhaye I.13b) the tale composed by (Uddyotana-) Sūri, Dākṣiṇyaciḥna, who received it from Hrī-devatā. In this tale, the importance of acquiring Samyaktva is emphasized; friends discharge their responsibility of mutual co-operation; and the essential objective is the attainment of Nirvāṇa (*2.27-8).

Uddyotana describes the Km as a dharmā-kathā which has assumed the form of a saṃkīrṇa-kathā (4.16); because it inherits the characteristics of different Kathās, it uses different metrical forms, it employs different narrative styles, and in its various languages (and dialects) are used (4.5 f.). The label saṃkīrṇa is all the more confirmed by the complex threads of the story which covers many lives of five souls, by author's richness of information and proficiency in different lores, by varied situations and descriptions, by manifold episodes and religio-didactic exhortations, by parables, sub-tales and conversations depicting different poetic flavours, and by religious elements seen everywhere in this work. Ratnaprabha does not describe his work in these terms, though he inherits some of these contents. However he calls his work a Campū. An admixture of prose and verse is the usual definition of a Campū. But this blending can be effected even in different ways. It appears that the Prākṛit work, viz., Km was intended more for recitation than for a learned man's reading. That explains why some time the verses repeat the ideas from the earlier prose, why more than one piece of description is added in a context, why questions are put and followed by details and descriptions, why conversations are added, and why different languages and dialects are employed. The Km is both instructive and entertaining: it is informative enough to attract the intellectual aristocrat; but more than that, it caters to the tastes and sentiments as well of the popular sections of the society. The Kmk is essentially a Campū, written in a learned style following earlier models in elegant Sanskrit, though the religious teacher in the author is obvious in more than one place.

Ratnaprabha's object is to narrate the tale of Kuvalayamālā in an ornate style so characteristic of Campū works in Sanskrit: thus every attempt is made to present the structure of the story in its fundamental details, incidentally incorporating the didactic, religious and entertaining touches as concisely as possible. He closely follows the Prākṛit text so far as the narration of the events is concerned; and the matter in both the works can be easily compared paragraph to paragraph.

Descriptions in Apabhraṃśa, conversations (sometimes in Paisācī and often in colloquial Mid-Indian), elaborated details, contexts full of information from various lores and walks of life and long-drawn religious sermons are some of the specialities of Uddyotana. But longish descriptions of urban and natural situations, series of similes and strings of utprekṣās of Km are often passed over by Ratnaprabha who gives at the most a few adjectives and similes to suit the idiom. The Km has a few paragraphs for describing Madhyadeśa and Vinītā (§§ 13-17); some descriptions seem to be put together for stylistic effect; they are detachable partly or wholly, without much loss to the narration; and they are richly embellished with śleṣa and parisaṃkhyā. The Kmk, however, has just some sentences rounded with a few verses with śleṣa (*3.1-18). Likewise Ratnaprabha gives the description of the river Narmadā in four lines (*52.36-39), but in Km nearly a full page (121) is occupied with what may be called alternative patches of description of a river. Uddyotana's elaborate description of Vijayāpurī (referring to such details as buildings, talks in the street, schools of study, gossips in Boys' hostels, conversation of merchants from different parts of the country, traders' dialogues, a mad elephant running amuck etc., 149.20-154.24) is covered in Kmk in half a page (61.13-30). Ratnaprabha has stood the temptation of describing the Saudharma-vimāna (92.12 f. & *39.55), though he has devoted nearly a page for the details of the Samavasaraṇa (*41). In such descriptions the Kmk does inherit some words, ideas, similes etc., but these are well digested and expressed effectively to suit the Sanskrit idiom.

Ratnaprabha's verse-for-verse renderings (for instance, 10.17 & *4.14) are quite catching. Often Uddyotana heightens curiosity and skilfully pushes the reader into entertaining and interesting contexts, while Ratnaprabha goes on narrating the story in a likable manner (cf. 28.20 f. & *10.7 f.). Ratnaprabha effectively summarises the elaborations of Km (31.3 ff. & *11.7 f., this being the description of Kauśāmbī). What are series of simple narrative sentences in Prākṛit become, at times, gerundive clauses in the Sanskrit style which is more terse and compressed (for instance, 62.17 f. & *20.26 f.). Even in narrative contexts, in some places, the Prākṛit text is closely followed by Ratnaprabha (10.18 & *4.15, 17.4 f. & *7.23 f., 23.12 & *9.11 f., 27.28 & *10.2, 31.1 & *11.5-6, 51.19 & *16.3, 63.5 & *21.2, 77.32 & *28.15 etc.). In a few cases, even conversational contexts which heighten the effect of narration are closely followed by Ratnaprabha (cf. 10.24 f. with *4.21 f.). Some of the catching conversations (53.18 f. & 17.1 f.), a number of descriptions in Apabhraṃśa (for instance, 8.18 f. & *6.24), talks in Mid-Indian colloquial and Paisācī (for instance, 55.12 f. & *17.31, 71.9 f. & *24.17 f.), interesting situations (14.24 & *6.24 f.) and informative details and contexts (16.17 f. & *7.16, 23.21 f. & *9.17 f., 129.4 f. & *55.36 f.) of the Prākṛit original are not allowed in Kmk to subordinate the narration of the story. Sometimes Ratnaprabha has his independent ideas (17.20 & *7.28 f., 54.3 & *17.12 f., 74.18 & *26.20 f.). Though such contexts are rare, they testify to Ratnaprabha's poetic talents and literary training (see also his description of Bhṛgukaccha, *42.36). He has a classical touch about his descriptions as against the homely and rural affectations of the Prākṛit original (51.32 ff. & *16.9 f.). Now and then, he catches the style of short sentences in quick succession so often used in the Prākṛit original (119.10 f. & *52.6). Thus in Kmk the story element, the current of narration, neat spicing of expression and embellished ideas are mainly attended to. Ratnaprabha's narration is less distracted by digressions, descriptions, religious details, language puns, jocular contexts, subordinate episodes and poetic flourishes than in Km.

What Uddyotana elaborates poetically is narrated by Ratnaprabha in a nutshell. The fourfold Dharma, detailed compliments to literary predecessors, references to sajjana and durjana (§§ 11-12), miseries of saṃsāra in four grades of existence (§§ 75-85), enumeration of kalās (22.1 f. & *8.34), types of horses (23.22 f. & *9.17), details of rāśi-phala (19.12 f. & *8.14 f.), religious, philosophical (203 & *71), dogmatical and technical discussions like those on kaṣāyas (81.1 f. and *30.8 f.), leśyās (245.6 f.), ārāghanā (269.23 ff. etc. are duly curtailed in Kmk. Ratnaprabha just refers to garbha (*7.26-7), but the Prākṛit text describes it elaborately, along with the activities in the palace (17.15 ff.: one has to compliment the wide range of information of Uddyotana).

As contrasted with Uddyotana's elaboration of religious ideas and ideals throughout his work, Ratnaprabha's exposition of them in Kmk has to be called 'moderate', because he has not been able to avoid them altogether in his Campū. In one or two contexts he has added them to such an excess (*36-*38.5) that he should have avoided them altogether in a stylistic Campū, so ably attempted by him.

Here and there one finds some differences in details between Km and Kmk. In Km Tārācandra was initiated under Sunanda (100.5), but in Kmk he is called Dharmanandana (*42.31). While contracting the details Ratnaprabha describes Bhogavatī as jananī of Kuvalayamālā (*64.13), but the Km correctly describes her as jaṇaṇī, dhātī etc. (161.26 f.). In one case the confusion of details noticed in Km (244.24) is duly set right in Kmk (*79.36): possibly Ratnaprabha could have better control on his details, because his work is smaller. Ratnaprabha tries to stick to the conventional list of four kaṣāyas (*12.23), though Uddyotana adds moha in a separate verse (44.16). It is interesting to note that the scheme of illustrations of anantānubandhi etc. has reference to four kaṣāyas only (44.24 f.). The Km has five āścaryas following the tradition, but Kmk has six of them (*62.17-8). The Km has casual reference to Settuṃje (80.18), but Kmk adds a few verses on it (II.162-72). May be that Śatruṃjaya became more famous as a kṣetra by the time of Ratnaprabha. The Kmk adds what is called Vrata-dṛṣṭānta (*31.40 ff.) which is absent in Km. This story of four daughters-in-law is an old one, found in the Nāyādhammakahāo VII. The Kmk has also an additional discourse on vinaya and tale of Vinītā (*33.32-9, *33.40-*39.33). The Jaina dogmatical details added by Ratnaprabha (*36.1-*38.5) may indicate his learning, but they are a positive hindrance in the narration of events in a stylistic manner.

Some words and expressions in Kmk look like back-formations of their Prākṛit counterparts: they could not have been used by Ratnaprabha, if he did not have Uddyotana's text before him. Some of the words etc. used by Ratnaprabha may be just listed here with their counterparts in Prākṛit: koṭī-śāstra (*14.16) for the Pk. koṃṭī of koṃkī (§ 92); krayāṇakam (*46.30); khaṭikā-khaṃḍa (*45.30, Pk. khaḍiyā-khaṃḍalaya 104.3); caccara (*42.11, *45.17, the same in Prākṛit 99.22); poṭṭala (*21.2, poṭṭalao in Pk. 63.5); bohitttha (*46.36); bhāṭakena (*46.31, Pk. bhaṃḍeyavvāim, P tāḍeyavvāim for perhaps bhāḍeyavvāim*, 105.27); bhāra (= bāra) paṭṭe (*45.36, Pk. dāre or the reading might have been even bāre, 104.3) vāha-keli (*9.7, Pk. vāhiyālī 23.7 for which the usual Sk. word is vāhyālī).

In this connection a peculiar usage of Ratnaprabha catches our attention: anveṣayāmi lagnaḥ (*26.37), vilokyate lagnaḥ (*80.39). The use of lagna with Infinitive has its counterpart in New Indo-Aryan; but its use with verbal forms of the Present tense needs explanation; and many such cases are noticed by me in the Ārādhanā Kathākośa of Prabhācandra (c. 11th century A. D.).

Then in the Kmk we are attracted by certain expressions which are not quite appropriate renderings of the Prākṛit original, uccatthala (65.10), Sk. uccala (*21.35), correctly uccasthala. — kūvavaṃdra (50.20), Sk. kūpapadra (*15.20), correctly kūpavṛnda. — Khettabhaḍo (50.22), Sk. Kṣatrabhaṭaḥ (*15.21, perhaps following the reading of P, Khattahaḍo), correctly Kṣetrabhaṭaḥ. — cittaviyā ādiyattiyā (65.14) does not seem to be correctly rendered, if the equivalent is as in Sk. vahannādikādattapadaḥ (*22.4). — Dappaphaliha and Bāhuphalīha (104.8), Sk. Darpaphalika Bhujaphalika (*58.36), but correctly, Darpaparighaḥ and Bāhuparighaḥ (See Hema. Prākṛta Grammar, I. 232, 254). — Bārayāurī (185.9), Sk. Pārāpurī (*67.35), correctly Dvārakāpurī. — Bhaddaseṭṭhī (70.28), Sk. Rudrasreṣṭhī II. § 25): this has arisen from the orthographical confusion between bh and ru which are alike (p. 73, reading 7). — mahāsunṇāraṇṇa (53.27) is rendered as mahāpuṇyāraṇya (*17.6), really sunṇa stands for śūnya. — Vairagutto (247.2), Sk. Vairiguptaḥ (*80.35), more appropriate Vajraguptaḥ. — Sattibhaḍo (50.28), Sk. Śāntibhaṭaḥ (*15.25), correctly śaktibhaṭaḥ (nti and tī are very similar in writing).

It is seen that J and P present almost two Recensions of the Text of the Kuvalayamālā. The Kmk of Ratnaprabha deserves to be studied in comparison with these two recensions and see which of them is being followed by it. Below are listed a few crucial contexts from J and P and the corresponding one in Kmk.

- i) 32.30: J. imassa cammarukkhaṣṣa dīṇārāṇaṃ addhalakkham; P imassa su (= mu) rukkhassa keāraṇe (= rāṇa) addhalakkham; Kmk *11.34: kedārāṇaṃ laksārdham tvaritaṃ dāpaya.
- ii) 47: J. komkī; P koṃṭī; Kmk *14.16: koṭi-saṣṭra.
- iii) 50.22: J Khettabhaḍo; P Khattahaḍo; Kmk *15. Kṣatrabhaṭaḥ.
- iv) 50: J omits but P has tassa a se puttassa Sattibhaḍo ṇāma; Kmk *15.25: tasyāpi śāntibhaṭaḥ sūnur asti.
- v) 54.11 f.: J omits cintayanto maggālaggo so vi Vīrabhaḍo which is found in P; Kmk *17.23 f. has iti cintayan so'pi teṣāṃ mārga lagnaḥ.
- vi) 61.17 f.: J omits imiṇā Māyāicceṇa to thoya-salilaṃ peccai, kūvodaraṃ Thāṇū found in P; Kmk *20.6 f.: bhanītaṃ Māyādityena etc. which closely corresponds to the above.
- vii) 67.2: J omits thāviyaṃ laggaṃ found in P; Kmk *23.2: sthāpyate lagnaṃ.
- viii) 74.26 f.: J omits jāva tuṃaṃ āgao tti to tao tuha pacchā found in P; Kmk 26.29-30: some ideas corresponding to the above are there.
- ix) J Sabarasiheṇa, P Sabalasīleṇa; Kmk 27.35: Śabarasīleṇa.

The above points clearly indicate that Ratnaprabha is composing his Campū with the recension of P before him.

Just as Ratnaprabha composed a Sanskrit digest, namely, Kmk, Āmradeva (A. D. 1134), who wrote a Vṛtti on the Ākhyānamānikośa of Nemicandra

(A. D. 1073-83)¹, includes therein the tale of Māyāditya in Prākṛit verses, (97 gāthās and 1 śloka in Sanskrit) which is based on Uddyotanasūri's Km, §§ 110-125. Āmradeva closely follows this text while writing his gāthās in which many words, poetical devices etc. are inherited from the Km. He is interested in the narration of the story and its moral, so he passes over conversational contexts. The gāthā No. 21 is obviously a quotation, found also in the Vajjālaggaṃ (XIV.7). The concluding portion imitates Km too closely by repeating almost as it is katto tānaṃ tānaṃ mottuṃ etc. In another context, Āmradeva (p. 363, verses 35 f.) appears to have before him the text of Km (129.6 f.) while giving details from Sāmudraśāstra. There are no clear indications to say whether he is following the recension of J or P.

Ratnaprabha gives meagre details about himself in this work. In the colophons, he calls himself the śiṣya of Paramānandasūri, and further states that this Kmk was corrected by Pradyumnasūri. No other work of Ratnaprabha is known so far, nor do we get any more details about him from any other source. It is highly probable that this Pradyumnasūri² is the same as that great critic who corrected Vivekamañjarī-ṭīkā (c. 1222 A. D.), Śāntināthacarita of Munideva (c. 1265 A. D.), Dharmopadeśamālā-vṛtti (c. 1268 A. D.), Śālibhadracarita (c. 1278 A. D.), Upamitibhava-prapañcā-kathā-sāroddhāra (c. 1242 A. D.), Prabhāvaka-carita (c. 1278 A. D.) etc. He belonged to the Candragaccha. He seems to have been highly esteemed by his contemporaries as a critic of so much authority that some of them own to have submitted their works to him for correction. He is the author of the Samarāditya-saṃkṣepa (completed in A. D. 1268), a Digest in Sanskrit, of the Samarāiccakahā of Haribhadra in Prākṛit, as already noted above. Ratnaprabha was a contemporary of Pradyumnasūri at whose hands was corrected the Kmk; so he is to be assigned to the middle of the 13th century A. D.

6. UDDYOTANA: THE AUTHOR

Unlike many of our eminent authors, who are usually silent about their biographical details, Uddyotana has obliged the posterity with some factual information about himself and his contemporaries etc. All this is found in his Praśasti (§ 430) which is entirely biographical. It is not identical in both the Mss. But, as already noted above, the basic textual tradition in both of them goes back to the author himself; and the most significant feature is that the details in both being supplementary, and not at all in any way contradictory, give a more complete sketch of the situation.

At Mahādvāra, there lived a famous Kṣatriya, devoted to three karmas (viz., performing ceremonies, repeating the Veda and gifts), Uddyotana by name who, then, enjoyed (suzerainty over) it. He had a son Samprati by name, but far-famed as Vaṭeśvara. And our author Uddyotana is the son of this Vaṭeśvara. Thus Uddyotana hails from a ruling Kṣatriya family (from Mahādvara the identification of which is a desideratum), quite pious in its traditions. He was given the name of his grand-father, quite a normal practice in many a renowned family.

Uddyotana gives more details (going back a few generations earlier) about his dīkṣā- and śīkṣā-gurus, i.e., his ascetical and tutorial parentage, as distinguished from the natural one noted above. In the Uttarāpatha, there is a famous town, on the bank of Candrabhāgā, Pavvaīyā by name. It is from there that Torarāya, or Toramāṇa, enjoyed suzerainty over his kingdom (over the earth). His preceptor was Ācārya Harigupta who hailed from the Gupta-vaṃśa; and at that time (i.e., when Toramāṇa was ruling there), he had his camp (possibly during the rainy season) in that town. His famous pupil was Devagupta, a mahākavi: according to Ms. P, he was expert in various Kalās, well-versed in the Siddhānta and a poet whose fame persisted (even at the time of Uddyotana). Devagupta's pupil, Śivacandraṇin, who in his wanderings for paying respects to (the temples of) Jina, stayed, like a veritable wish-fulfilling tree, in Bhillamāla-nagara. Śivacandra's pupil was Yakṣadatta, a kṣamā-śramaṇa, of great glory and far-spreading fame. This Yakṣadatta had many pupils endowed with penance, spiritual ability and miraculous gift (in their words); and they rendered the Gūjara country beautiful by (being instrumental in constructing Jaina) temples. Amongst them the following pupils were like the six faces of Ṣaṇmukha: Nāga, Vṛnda, Mammaṭa, Durga, Agniśarman, and the sixth Vaṭeśvara. This Vaṭeśvara had got constructed in the town of Ākāśavapra an attractive temple of Jina the very sight of which would pacify the Karmas of even an Abhavya. He had a pupil Tattvācārya by name who was highly merited, effective with penancial lustre and firm in his religious practices even under adverse times. It is his pupil (namely Uddyotana, having a pen-name or title) Dākṣiṇya-ciḥna that composed the Kuvalayamālā, with the presence of Hrī-devī in his heart.

The ascetic genealogy of Uddyotana stands thus:

As to the instructional heritage of Uddyotana, he received lessons in Siddhānta (i.e., in Jaina scriptures) from Ācārya Vīrabhadra who was like a moving wish-fulfilling tree satisfying all (spiritual needs) and shining with great fame; and his Guru in Pramāṇa and Nyāya (i.e., yukti-sāstra) was Haribhadra who has propounded most of the principles (of Jainism) in his vast range of works.

Uddyotana gives some specific details as to where and when he composed the Kuvalayamālā. Comparable to Aṣṭāpada, or mount Kailāsa, there is Jābālipura (possibly including also the township on the hill itself) which is lofty, insurmountable, charming with Jina-temple(s), full of Jaina house-holders (sāvaya=śrāvaka) and inaccessible. Vīrabhadra had got constructed a temple (there) dedicated to Ṛṣabha-jinendra which is lofty, white and fluttering with charming and rich banners. While staying there (at Jābālipura, in that temple) this Kuvalayamālā, which is expected to be instructive and enlightening to all the pious people, was completed on the fourteenth day of the kṛṣṇapakṣa of Caitra, during the afternoon, when one day was less for the śaka year 700. At that time (jaiyā) the (ruling) king was (Śrī-) Vatsarāja, the (proud) elephant on the battle-field, who crushed the enemical and loved the friendly.

In conclusion, Uddyotana expresses his modesty and acknowledges his inspiration to Hrīdevī: he calls himself (at the fag end of his career, perhaps when or after he completed the Kuvalayamālā) an Ācārya of the Cāndrakula.

That Toramāṇa, or Torarāya, is referred to by Uddyotana is an important piece of information.¹ He was the chieftain of a Hūṇa invasion of India and is known to have been established as a ruler of Mālwā in Central India prior to A.D. 500. Lately we have some detailed study about Hūṇas and their invasion of India.² Dr. D. C. SIRCAR observes: "That the Hūṇas were a potent force in the social and political life of the Punjab—Rajasthan—Malwa—Gujarat region during the early medieval period seems to be clear from their mention in a large number of epigraphical and literary records." Toramāṇa assumed the style and titles of an Indian 'sovereign of māhārājas.' He died about A.D. 502. His dominion passed on to his son Mihiragula whose capital in India was modern Siālkot in the Punjab. His Guru was Harigupta who came from the Gupta-Vaṁśa and was initiated as an ācārya, in the Jaina order of monks. Harigupta stayed at Pavvaīyā, the capital of Toramāṇa. It is not pretty clear what exact relation he had with the then Gupta dynasty. Any way the age of Harigupta is to be assigned to c. A.D. 500. Taking into account the general longevity of life among Jaina monks, a period of 250 years, for six generations, between SIRCAR: Select Inscriptions, pp. 396 f., University of Calcutta, Calcutta 1942. Dr. N. SHASTRI alleges (Haribhadra ke Prākṛta kathā-sāhitya kā ālocanātmaka pariśīlana, p. 64, item No. 8, Vaishali 1965) that the Kuvalayamālā gives historical facts like the looting by the Hūṇa king Toramāṇa; but nothing like this is found in our text.

Harigupta and Uddyotana, is quite natural. Harigupta's pupil was Devagupta who is called Mahākavi and who seems to be identical with one referred to by Uddyotana at 3.28. Devagupta also came from the Gupta-vaṁśa, a ruling family, for he is called rājarṣi: possibly he had composed a work with some title like Su- or Tri-puruṣacarita.

The note on Toramāṇa by N. C. MEHTA¹ who depended mainly on an article of Muni JINAVIJAYAJI has been sharply criticised by some scholars; and their views require to be scrutinised at this stage. Some of the statements of N. C. MEHTA are half-truths, and some bold conjectures. K. P. MITRA² has been hypercritical and is not quite fair to the facts. N. C. MEHTA apparently considers that Uddyotana was a southerner, because he writes a kind of Prākṛta which is of the southern type Māhārāṣṭrī, because he uses the Śaka era, and because he is dakṣiṇa-cihna. All these are partial truths. Once Māhārāṣṭrī became a literary language, it could be used by any author, staying anywhere. As a matter of fact, Uddyotana tells us that he composed his work in Prākṛta (pāyīya-bhāsā-raīyā, 4.11). Some Jaina authors have used Śaka era in the north as well, for instance, Jinasena just five years later, uses the śaka era; and he is writing his Harivaṁśa at Vardhamāna.³ Lastly, the title dakṣiṇa-iṁdha really stands for dākṣiṇya-cihna which has nothing to do with his being a southerner. Ratnaprabhasūri, who prepared the Sanskrit Digest of the Kuvalayamālā, clearly describes its author as dākṣiṇya-cihna-munipa. So MITRA'S argument how Uddyotana hailing from Deccan could have known about Toramāṇa loses all force. Now as to the readings, J gives Torarāyeṇa and P Toramāṇeṇa: s and m are very much alike in appearance. In the light of what I have observed about the authenticity of the readings of both P and J,⁴ I do not see any reason why this reference to Toramāṇa should be doubted. It is true that Kuvalayamālā is a religious romance: this reference does not come in the story of the text, but occurs in a paragraph where Uddyotana is giving biographical details, almost at the close of his work. He is primarily mentioning his ascetic ancestry. His Teacher-ancestor, Harigupta, an Ācārya of the Jaina Church six or seven generations earlier, was camping (obviously during the rainy season) at Pavvaīyā, the metropolis of Torarāya or Toramāṇa. This Harigupta is described as the Guru of Toramāṇa and as having hailed from Guptavaṁśa. There is no eulogy bestowed on Toramāṇa by Uddyotana, nor there is any hint that the king was converted to a creed of 'kind-heartedness'. All that Uddyotana says is that Harigupta was a Guru of Torarāya or Toramāṇa; and if one is aware of the rigorous life of detachment which a Jaina monk leads, there is nothing improbable that Toramāṇa respected him as Guru, even as a matter of expediency, as some have tried to understand it. There are many instances of Jaina Teachers winning royal respects like this. There is no doubt that Uddyotana tells us that Harigupta came from Guptavaṁśa and Devagupta was a Mahākavi (who elsewhere is assigned to Guptavaṁśa and is called Rājarṣi): but there is no sufficient evidence before us to connect them with one or the other namesake from the Gupta dynasty known to us. What was a conjecture put in a question form has been taken almost as a fact by MITRA and elaborately refuted. This all belongs to the realm of conjecture and probability. We must wait for more positive evidence. There might have been many persons belonging to the Gupta family, and we have hardly any contemporary census to come to positive conclusions. We should not hesitate to accept what is plainly stated by Uddyotana.

Though the Indian capital of Mihiragula was known to be Sākala or Siālkot, Uddyotana is the first to tell that Toramāṇa ruled from Pavvaīyā and it was on the bank of the river Candrabhāgā. The Candrabhāgā is the modern Chinab, the Asikni of the Vedic literature and the Acesines of the Greeks. Ptolemy calls it Sandabala or Sandabal.¹ It sometimes stands for the united stream of the Jhelum and Chinab.² The location of Pavvaīyā is to be sought on the bank of this river. A territory in Punjab to the north-west of Multan between the Ravi and the Sutlej was called Parvata:³ may be Pavvaīyā = Pārvatikā⁴ was located in that area, down the stream where Sutlej conflows into Candrabhāgā. Pt. DASHARATH SHARMA⁵ has drawn our attention to a very good context that Sīharas⁶ had established four maliks, or governors, in his territories. The first at Brahmanābād and the forts of Nīrūn, Debal, Lohāna, Lakha and Samma, down to the sea (daryā), were placed in his charge. The second at the town of Siwistān: under him were placed Būdhpūr, Jankān, and the skirts of the hills of Rūjhān to the borders of Makrān. The third at the fort of Askalanda and Pābiya, which are called Talwār and Chachpūr; under him were placed their dependencies to the frontier of Būdhpūr etc. According to ELIOT 'Māībar and Chachpūr still exist, under the modernised names of Mīrbar and Chāchar, close together at the very junction of the Acesines and Indus, on the eastern side of the river, opposite to Mittankot.' All this means that Pābiya is possibly our Pavvaīyā and identical with modern Chāchar. The Chachera, but he does not give any evidence of his source. The Prākṛit passage quoted on p. 193 is very badly printed and some names are wrongly written. He adds in a foot-note on p. 195: Another plausible identification of Pavvaīyā may be with Padmāvati (or Pawaya near Gwalior) and in that case Candrabhāgā might be identical with river Chambal. Is Chambal called Candrabhāgā anywhere?

only difficulty, I feel, is that Pābiya, in ELIOT'S extracts, is often described as 'south of the river Bīās', 'on the southern bank of Bīās' etc. Any way Pt. SHARMA'S suggestion is quite welcome.

Śivacandra is moving probably from the area of Pavvaīyā towards Bhillamāla¹ with a view to paying respects to Jina-temples: this shows how Jainism was well rooted and neatly established in the Gurjara-deśa corresponding to modern Rajasthan of which the capital was Bhilmāl or Śrīmāla about fifty miles to the north-west of Mount Ābu. Vateśvara had a temple constructed in the town of Ākāśavapra² by name. Shri HEMASAGARASURI suggests in his

¹ Bhillamāla (the ancient Śrīmāla), written variously as Bhīnmāl, Bhīlmāl, Bhinnamāla, Bhilmāl etc. (Pi-lo-mo-lo, of the Chinese traveller) finds plenty of references in Jaina works: it must have been a thriving cultural centre for the Jainas. According to the Nisīthacūrnī (10.255) of Jinadāsagani-mahattara (c. 676 A.D.) king Varmalāta had a silver statue of Jina (made or installed) in Bhillamāla. An inscription of A.D. 625 of a king of this name is found; and it is plausible that Suprabhadeva, the grand-father of Māgha, was a minister of this king. The famous astronomer Brahmagupta (A.D. 628) is called Bhīl (l) a-mā (lā) cārya and was a contemporary of Vyāghramukha of Cāpavamśa or Cāvaḍā family who ruled possibly at Bhillamāla. Siddharṣi refers to Bhillamāla as a prosperous town with a gorgeous Jina-temple. It is in this very town that his grand-preceptor Durgasvāmi passed away and that he completed his Upamitibhava-prapañcā kathā in A.D. 906. Vāmana, son of Jajju, who belonged to the Prāgvāta family hailing from Bhillamāla (had got) constructed a beautiful temple of Jina in 1034 A.D. at Kāyandrā. Vādivetāla Śāntiācārya (A.D. 1038) wrote his commentary on the Uttarādhyayana at Anahila-pāṭaka (Pattan in Gujarat) in the Jina-temple constructed by Amātya Śānti of Bhillamālakula, possibly a famous family hailing from Bhillamāla. Āṣaḍa, the author of Vivekamañjarī (A.D. 1191), refers to himself as the son of Kaṭukarāja of the Bhillamālakula. Those who migrated from Śrīmāla or Bhillamāla mentioned this as their family name or vaṃśa. It is learnt from an inscription of A.D. 1276 that a statue of Mahāvīra was brought to Śrīmāla or Bhillamāla after the fall of Valabhī (mod. Valā) and since then Śrīmāla became a mahāsthāna. Even a branch of Jaina monks, Bhinnamāla-gaccha, is referred to in an inscription of A.D. 1506. References to the discovery of an image of Pārśvanātha, with miraculous powers, are found in records of the beginning of the 17th century A.D. Epigraphical records show that Jayantasimha (Sam. 1239), Udayasimha (Sam. 1262-74), Cācigadeva (Sam. 1333-4), Sāmantasimha (Sam. 1339-45) ruled over Bhillamāla (See for the above details L. B. GANDHI: Aitihāsika Lekha-Samgraha, pp. 153 ff., Baroda 1953.) Shri RATIBHAI DESAI, Ahmedabad, has given me some notes in Old-Gujarati. Their language is as much interesting as their contents. They are from the family records (vaiyāvaṭa) of Mahātmā NARASIMHAJI of Radhanpur, and their writing may be assigned to the beginning of the 19th century of Saṃvat era. Possibly they are copied from older notes. The first note claims to give an episode which occurred in Sam. 503. One Virasūri instructs a Rāṭhoda ruler in Jainism. The ruler gets a son by fasting and propitiating a Śāsanadevatā, and subsequently becomes a good Śrāvaka. A second note refers to Devabhadrasūri's arrival to Śrīmāla or Bhinnamāla in Sam. 785 where a statue and temple of Ādiśvara were consecrated. Later, he came to Jalor and a similar statue and temple were constructed there. Thus Bhinnamāla and Jalor were centres of Jaina cultural activities; the śrāvakas were pretty rich; and the propitiation of Śāsanadevatās was sufficiently popular in this part.

² Muni JINAVIJAYAJI and others proposed that it might correspond to Vadanagar, the old Anandapur. Ākāśavapra means a city which has the sky for its walls, i.e., unfortified town. Anandapur got a wall around it only in 1157 A.D. during the reign of Kumārapāla,

Gujarati Translation that it stands for Ambarakoṭṭa or Umarakot.¹ It looks quite apt ambara and koṭṭa being rendered as ākāśa and vapra. Now a town of this name is shown in the maps in Sind; there is one Ambargadh in Rajasthan; and a place Amarakota has Jaina associations even in later days.² The exact identity needs, however, further confirmation, just as Mahādvāra requires identification.³

Uddyotana calls himself Dākṣiṇyaciḥna (280.18, 282.16), perhaps his pen-name, as many others have called themselves Vimalāṅka, Abhimānāṅka, Parākramāṅka, Sāhasāṅka, Virahāṅka etc. It has nothing to do with his alleged connection with the South, as explained above, but refers to his quality of dākṣiṇya.

Uddyotana composed this Kuvalayamālā while he was staying at Jābālipura, modern Jalor, which is situated about 75 miles south of Jodhpur city on the left bank of a river called Sukrī. It is now a Railway station of the Northern Railway on the Bhildi-Raniwar-Samdari line at a distance of thirtythree Kms. from Bhinmal or Bhillamāla. As Uddyotana describes it, Jābālipura included the hill as well as the township at the foot of it: that alone explains better the adjectives tumga, alamgha, aṣṭāpadam va and śrāvakākulam. Perhaps the hill-fort was the best part of that place; and it is on the hill that Vīrabhadra must have got constructed a temple dedicated to Rṣabha.

¹ Published in Śrī-Ānanda-Hema Granthamālā, No. 10, p. 457, foot-note 2, Bombay 1965. In this context Dr. DASHARATH SHARMA writes to me thus (his letter of 17-6-68): 'Ambarakoṭṭa (mod. Amarkot). Here amara=ambara=ākāśa. The identification was proposed by Muni KALYANAVIJAYA. Amarkot belonged at one time to Jodhpur State and is now in Western Pakistan. Akbar was born here. The exact position is 25.21' N. and 69.46' E. It was a medieval Rajput fort. Today there are a few Jaina families. Some old images are said to have been discovered there. Dr. N. J. SHAHA, Ahmedabad, reminds me, in this connection, of Amber, the ancient but now decayed capital of Jaipur at a distance of 7 kms. to the north-east of Jaipur. Some Jaina temples also are there. It has a fortified hill and a fine lake. Ptolemy also refers to Amber. 'The picturesque situation of Amber at the mouth of a rocky mountain gorge in which nestles a pretty lake, has attracted the admiration of all travellers including Jacquement and Heber. Founded by primeval Minas, it was flourishing in A.D. 967 (See The Imperial Gazetteer of India, Vol. I, by W. W. HUNTER, pp. 228-9, also A Handbook to India, Pakistan, Burma and Ceylon by L. F. R. WILLIAMS, pp. 181-2, 472.). Shri A. P. SHAHA, Ahmedabad, draws my attention to Amargadh in Rajasthan as the possible modern equivalent of Ākāśavapra. It is not far away from Śrīmāla; and it has Jaina associations. Without or in the absence of more positive clues one can only conjecture that Ākāśavapra may be either Amarkot in Sindh, Amber near Jaipur or Amargadh in Rajasthan.

² In Sainvat 1561, a statue of Sumatinātha is consecrated at Amarakoṭa (m) nagare. See Jaina Inscriptions, Jaisalmer, by P. C. NAHAR, Part III, No. 2487, Calcutta 1929.

Today the town Jalor, at the foot of the hill Sovangiri or Songiri,¹ is gradually extending towards the Railway Station; it has quite a modern look on the outskirts of the old part of the town adjacent to the hill-fort. I am given to understand that in the population of the town there are more than two thousand Jains, mostly of the Mūrtipūjaka Śvetāmbara section: some of the Jaina families have trade contacts with big towns like Bombay, Bangalore etc. Besides the Śaiva temple, Masjid etc., there are, in the town today, a dozen Jaina temples: one on the Station Road still under construction is an eloquent proof of the traditional religious zeal of this ancient locality. On the hill, within the fort, there are four Jaina temples: i) Of Mahāvīra, known as Candanavihāra, renovated some time earlier than thirteenth century A.D., perhaps at the time when Kumārapāla constructed the Kumāravihāra in this fort. This is considered to be the same as the Yakṣavasatiprāsāda. ii) Of Śāntinātha, popularly called Aṣṭāpadāvatāra. The garbha-grha etc. are older than thirteenth century A.D. iii) Of Pārśvanātha, rebuilt on the remains of the Kumāravihāra constructed by Kumārapāla in 1164 A.D. iv) Of Ādinātha, which is a place for the annual festival of the locality. None of these can be definitely proposed for identification with the temple of R̥ṣabha, which was got built by Vīrabhadra and referred to in the Kuvalayamālā.

According to Merutuṅga's Vicārasreṇī, it was during the reign of king Nāhaḍa,² the temple of Mahāvīra, called Yakṣavasati was built on the Suvarṇagiri, i.e., the hill-fort of Jalor. As the story goes, this Suvarṇagiri was inhabited by the richest section of the society: those who were worth less than a crore even by one lakh had no accommodation there. The gāthā in this respect runs thus:

नवनवह - लकख - धणवह - अलद्ववासे सुवण्ण - गिरि - सिहरे ।
नाहड - निव - कारवियं थुणि वीरं जक्ख - वसईए ॥ ८० ॥

After this traditional information about Nāhaḍa, the history of Jalor is in dark till Uddyotana's time. According to Top's information the ruler lent his help to Rānā Khomāna when Chitor was besieged by foreign armies some time between

¹ Dr. S. N. Vyas, in his Hindi monograph Universal Poet Kālidāsa: A Study (Gwalior 1957), pp. 71 ff. puts forth his view that Alakā, the Yakṣabhūmi, referred to by Kālidāsa in the Meghadūta, is this Suvarṇagiri with its Yakṣavasati and its inhabitants each possessing not less than a crore. He has shown some common points in the description of Kālidāsa and of Jalor and its premises. The following is the description of the Jalor fort from the Rajaputana Gazetteers, Vol. III-A, pp. 189-90, The Western Rajputana States Residency and the Bikaner Agency, Allahabad 1909: 'On a hill to the south and entirely commanding the town stands the fort, one of the most famous in Rajaputana. Built early in the Christian era by the Parmar Rajputs, its walls, composed of huge masses of cut stone remain even now in a perfect state of preservation, although the place has been many times besieged. The fort is about 800 by 400 yards in extent, and accessible only by an ascent of three miles up a steep and slippery stone roadway, passing three distinct lines of defence, all of considerable strength; it is amply supplied with good drinking water from a couple of tanks within the walls, and possesses several handsome palaces and temples, as well as the tomb of Malik Shah, a noted Muhammadan saint.'

² Nāhaḍa stands for Nāgabhaṭa, and he is to be put in the first half of the 8th century A.D. See Rajasthan through the Ages, pp. 122 etc., Bikaner 1966.

A.D. c. 801-35. At the close of the 10th century A.D. Muñja of Mālwā appointed Candana as the Governor of Jalor. Then in 1026 A.D. Buddhisāgara refers to Jalor as a prosperous town in his Sanskrit grammar (sa-śrīka-Jāvālipure). A number of inscriptions are locally available from which it is learnt that in 1164 A.D. Kumārapāla had the image of Pārśva installed there with due ceremonies. Some more events of the later years are also recorded. During the last part of the 12th century Kīrtipāla and Samarasimha ruled from Jalor: the latter built the extensive ramparts of the fort. About 1310 A.D. Alāuddin Khilji took advantage of the feudal factions among Rājputs; and Jalor and Suvarnagiri came under him with the result that the temples and statues there suffered terrible damage at the hands of the iconoclasts and adversaries. In 1608 Jahangir had the enclosure of the fort rebuilt. It is only at the beginning of the 17th century, when Jalor became a part of the Jodhpur State after the death of Aurangzeb, renovation and reconstruction of the temples started on the Sovangiri under Jayamalaji Muhnot of Jodhpur. This 'Muhaṇota Jayamala was a great warrior and philanthropist. The Mughal emperor gave two districts of Jalor and Sanchor to Mahārāja Gajasimha who appointed Muhaṇota Jayamala as the governor. Jayamala carried on the administration successfully. He defeated five hundred Marathas who invaded Sanchor. When a dreadful famine broke out in 1630 A.D., he distributed grains free of charge among the needy and distressed. Besides, he spent his entire property in these charitable activities.¹ He used to stay at Jalor.²

² For these details about Jalor, see Jaina-tīrtha Suvarnagiri by Muni KALYANAVIJAYA in the Silver Jubilee Number of the Jaina, pp. 42-55, Bhavnagar Sam. 1985, i.e., 1928. Dr. K. C. JAIN gave me a typed note on Jalor from his dissertation on the ancient towns of Rajasthan for which I feel very thankful to him. Shri RATIBHAI DESAI, Ahmedabad, kindly sent me a translation into Hindi of a note on Jalor from the Jaina-tīrtha-sarva-saṃgraha, Vol. I, part ii, pp. 187-92 by A. P. SHAHA, (in Gujarati) and published by Anandaji Kalyanaji, Jhaveriwad, Ahmedabad 1953. Since I read the prasaṣṭi of Uddyotana and his reference to Jalor, I was yearning to visit that place which was once hallowed by the presence and movements of Uddyotana. Thanks to Pt. DALASUKHBHAI MALAVANIA and Shri RATIBHAI DESAI our trip was very comfortably arranged, and Pt. BECHARDASAJI and his daughter also accompanied us. After the session of the International Congress of Orientalists we all left Delhi on the night of 10-1-1964. We reached Jawai Bandh Rly. station at about 3 p.m. next day. Some Śrāvakas from Jalor had already come there to receive us. We reached Jalor by evening. We paid respects to Muni KALYANAVIJAYA. He knew me through correspondence for the last many years. He stays in Jalor nowadays, and he is very old. He gave me a good deal of information about the locality and its past history. He mentioned to me his Gujarati article, noted above, and obliged me with copies of some local inscriptions. Even though he is very old, he has a good memory for a number of details. Next morning we three (Pt. DALASUKHBHAI, Shri RATIBHAI, and myself) accompanied by some local śrāvakas and a guide started climbing the hill fort, Songir, at about 9 a.m.; and we were on the top of it by about 10.30 a.m. We saw all the temples, the palace, rampart etc.: the town below gives a picturesque view; and so many anecdotes are narrated about the fort and brave fighters during the Rajput and Mugal periods of history. Some of the temples have an appearance of antiquity, but they are often renovated, We came down late in the noon. In the afternoon we visited some more temples in the town: some are old, some new, and some under construction, dedicated to different Tīrthakaras. They all speak for the wealth and religious zeal of the local Sangha. The new Nandīśvara temple on the station road is worth a visit, both by the pious and the artistic. Next morning we started by train for Ahmedabad and on the way passed Bhinmal, the ancient capital of Gujarat. Any way my impressions about Uddyotana and his associations with Jalor were given a more concrete form by actually visiting this place and by moving about in the fort in a temple of which the Kuvalayamālā was composed more than eleven hundred years ago.

Uddyotana refers to a contemporary king Vatsarāja (whom he calls raṇa-hatthi) who crushed the frowny soldiers of the enemy and who was a source of joy to his own people. The word jayā only shows that Vatsarāja was the king at that time; Jalor was possibly a part of his territory; and it cannot be inferred, without additional evidence, that he was ruling at Jalor.

This title, raṇa-hastin, of Vatsarāja is quite important. Some nine coins bearing the Brāhmī legend Śrī Raṇahastin have come to light. One was found in Kanauj; one was discovered in Rajasthan; five of unknown locality, now in the Indian Museum, Calcutta; one obtained from somewhere in Saurashtra; and one more coming from Uttara Pradesh or Rajasthan. The characters appear post Gupta-Brāhmī. According to P. L. GUPTA 'the characters are not earlier than eighth century A.D.' RAPSON suggested once that this ruler is identical with Mahārāja Hastin of the Parivrājaka family. Dr. DASHARATH SHARMA has already suggested that this Raṇahastin is the same as Vatsarāja who is qualified with the adjective Raṇahastin by Uddyotana. This identification is accepted as quite plausible by P. L. GUPTA. The provenance of the coins points to Vatsarāja having ruled in the West.¹

King Dhruva of the Rāṣtrakūṭa dynasty prided himself on his defeat of Vatsarāja whom he made to enter upon the path of misfortune in the centre of the desert of Maru. He despoiled Vatsarāja of two white umbrellas taken by him from the king of Gauḍa, perhaps Gopāla, who had suffered defeat at the hands of Vatsarāja, the Gurjara king of Bhinmāl.² There is no doubt that Uddyotana is referring to this Vatsarāja in A.D. 779. Five years later, in Śaka 705 (c. 783-4),³ when Jinasena completed his Harivaṃśa at Vardhamāna-pura,⁴

⁴ The identification of Vardhamāna-pura has become a matter of controversy which is linked with the interpretation of the famous verse from the Harivaṃśa of Jinasena on which the scholars have differed. After much thought and studying respectfully the views of my predecessors (For my earlier observations, see Bṛhat-Kathākośa, Bombay 1943, Intro. pp. 121 ff.), I would understand the verse as noted above. Jinasena, in my opinion, is speaking in general and noting the directions without any particular locality in view. He has in view four rulers in the four directions in general: Indrāyudha in the North; Śrīvallabha, the son of Kṛishṇa in the South; the king of Avanti in the East; and the king Vatsarāja in the West. Some have taken Avanti-bhūbhṛt, -rāja or -nātha as the name of the king himself, and parallels can be quoted from literature (For instance, Raghuvamśa, VI 32: Avantinātho'yamudagrabāhuḥ etc.). Or politically it was a period of instability, and no outstanding ruler could be specified. * Jinasena does not stop here, but goes on further to add that Sauramaṇḍala was ruled by Jaya Varāha. The reason why he is not satisfied by merely mentioning four rulers in four directions he tells us that Indrāyudha was ruling (in) the North, Śrīvallabha, the son of

is that the place where he is writing, namely Vardhamāna(-pura), is located in Sauramaṇḍala, also known as Saurāstra-maṇḍala (as in the Una grants), roughly corresponding to Kathiawar. Vardhamāna gets correctly equated with modern Wadhwan in that area. When any other place outside is suggested for identifying Vardhamāna (-pura) the significance of mentioning Sauramaṇḍala, in addition to the general directions of the country with their rulers, is missed; and any such attempt, therefore is out of context. Thus in Śaka 705, Jinasena associates Vardhamāna(-pura) with the Punnāta Saṃgha of his own and with the local chief Jaya Varāha.* In this connection, the Haḍḍālā grant is of special significance. This was discovered in Eastern Kathiawar. It refers to Dharanī Varāha resident in Vardhamāna 'who was samadhiḡat āṣeṣa-mahāśabda-Mahāsāmantādhipatiḥ, and who through the favour of Rājādhirāja-Parameśvara-Śrī-Mahipāladeva ruled the Aḍḍānaka-deśa named after his own grand-father.' It is dated in Śaka S. 836. This Aḍḍāna is the same as modern Haḍḍālā 'a large village on the old road from Dholkā to Dhandhukā, but belonging to Eastern Kathiawar.' The contents of this grant confirm what Jinasena says that there was a Varāha Sāmanta at Vardhamāna, (a subordinate of Mahipāladeva); this Vardhamāna is in Eastern Kathiawar and obviously to be identified with mod. Wadhwan (G. BÜHLER: The grant of Dharanīvarāha of Vadhvān, I. A., July 1883, pp. 190 f. H. C. RAY: The Dynastic History of Northern India, Vol. I, pp. 582-3, Calcutta 1931, P. C. BAGCHI: Baurah or Baruzā? I. H. Q., XIX. iii. pp. 266 ff.). *Then in śaka 853, Hariṣeṇa, like Jinasena, belonged to the Punnāta Saṃgha and completed his (Brhat) Kathākośa while staying at Vardhamāna(-pura). There are good reasons to believe that this Vardhamāna(-pura) is the same as the one mentioned by Jinasena and referred to in Haḍḍālā grant. First, Jinasena and Hariṣeṇa belong to the Punnāta Saṃgha. Secondly, if Jinasena speaks about Vardhamāna (-pura) as kalyāṇaiḥ parivardhamāna-vipula-śrī-Vardhamāne pure, Hariṣeṇa adds kārtasvarāpūrṇā-janādhivāse. Both Jinasena and Haḍḍālā grant refer to the ruling local family of -varāhas; and the Haḍḍālā grant (in śaka 836) and Hariṣeṇa (in Śaka 853) rightly refer to successive rulers Mahipāla and Vināyakapāla. If Hariṣeṇa has not mentioned any -varāha ruler, either he did not think it necessary or the rulers of that family had lost their prestige after Dharanī Varāha. The linking is so perfect in the details supplied by Jinasena, Haḍḍālā grant and Hariṣeṇa that one is perfectly justified in identifying Vardhamāna(-pura) with modern Wadhwan in Kathiawar.* The other locality which has been suggested (H. L. JAINA: Indian Culture, XI. 4, pp. 161 ff., April-June, Calcutta 1945; also Madhyabhūratī, No. 3, pp. 1 ff., Jabalpur 1965) for identification with Vardhamāna(-pura) is Badnawar(Dhar): North of Dhar, on Mhow-Neemuch road; 12 miles from Baruanagar, a station between Rutlam and Indore on the W. Rly. Numerous remains like images, mosque, fort, temples etc. are discovered there (Central India State Gazetteer Series, V, P1. A 1908, and also The Bibliography of Madhya Bhārata Archaeology). The claims of this place to be identified are to be judged on their own merits. First, the corruption of Vardhamāna (-pura) into Badna(war) is not at all intelligible: the proposed change is speculative acrobatics of vowel and consonant changes. The fact is obvious that Badnawar is a natural corruption or changed form of Vardhana(ā)pura as local inscriptions mention it (Lekhas 1-3). Secondly, no clear-cut evidence has come forth from the locality to show that the place was called Vardhamānapura. The quotation from Dr. H. TRIVEDI's report only shows that Badnawar possesses Jaina antiquities. The inscription on which the proposed identification is based is Lekha No. 3 (of Sam. 1229, p. 168) which clearly mentions Varddhanā-pura and not Vardhamānapura, as claimed. In fact, Dr. TRIVEDI plainly says (Jaina Antiquary, XVII, p. 72, foot-note 10): 'The inscription is important as it records the ancient name of the place which is Varddhanāpura'. A few months back I was in Ujjain. Shri SATYANDHAR SETHI is a zealous upholder of the view that Vardhamānapura=Badnawar. He showed me some images from Badnawar in the Ujjain Museum in a Jaina temple there, and gave me a typed copy of some 17 short and long inscriptions which cover those reproduced in the papers referred to above. On the images and in the inscriptions the reading is Varddhana(ā)pura. In some records there is a reference to Vardhamāna-vara (-pura) anvaye. As a rule, an anvaya

Kṛṣṇa (in) the South, the king of Avanti (in) the East, the king Vatsarāja (in) the West, and Jayavarāha over the Saura-maṇḍala.¹ I agree with Dr. DASHARATH SHARMA² and Dr. H. L. JAIN that Vatsarāja need not be connected gets mentioned in a locality with reference to a Teacher who hails from a different locality: a man mentions the locality as a part of his surname only when he migrates to some other place. This reference, therefore, cannot be adduced as an evidence to show that the place was called Vardhamānapura. Thirdly, the equation of Dostatikā with Dotāriya is tempting (apart from its conjectural etymology), but it cannot be proposed without first proving that Vardhamānapura-Badnawar. Fourthly, to bring ūrjayantālaya-simhavāhini to Ujjain and associate her with Mahākāla there is only a forced conjecture. Fifthly, in none of the epigraphs found at Badnawar is mentioned the Punnāṭa Saṁgha with which both Jinasena and Hariṣena are associated. Sixthly, the Badnawar records mention neither any local Varāha ruler nor any suzerain -pāla king referred to by Jinasena and Hariṣena and also in the Haddālā grant. Seventhly, Badnawar presumes an earlier form of its name to end in -pura (like Varddhanāpura, as the local records show). But the locality which Jinasena (Vardhamāne pure, and not Vardhamānapure) and Hariṣena (Vardhamāna+ākhyā-pure) mention (along with the Haddālā grant which I am using from a second hand source) Vardhamāna is really the name of the locality, and the term pura is more a descriptive appendage than a part of the name of the town proper. So it cannot be equated with Badnawar but it can be with Wadhawan with greater justification. Lastly, the list of Nannarājas is quite welcome, but no specific evidence is brought forth to prove that any one of them had built a temple either at Vardhamāna(-pura) or at Badnawar. Proposing identity based on similar names either in the case of Jaina Ācāryas or dignitaries is always fraught with uncertainty, because our information is necessarily limited. Lately, a scholar (see the Introduction of the Pārsvābhyudaya by Shri M. G. KOTHARI, Bombay 1965) has identified Nannarāja, in whose name a temple stands at Vardhamāna-pura in Śaka 705, with Nanna, the patron of Puṣpadanta who completed his Mahāpurāṇu in Śaka 887: all this on the basis of similarity in name. Thus the well-established dates of these authors are upset. The above discussion shows that Badnawar has no claims for being identified with Vardhamāna (-pura) of Jinasena and Hariṣena. For verifying the details of the political history discussed in this connection, I do not have here the necessary material on which the theory is built; nor is this discussion needed for the identification of Vardhamāna (-pura). Some historians have not taken this discussion sympathetically (B. N. PURI: The History of Gurjara Pratihāras, p. 35, Bombay 1957, where these theories are considered to be highly speculative.). Dr. V. V. MIRASHI (Studies in Indology, Vol. IV, pp. 137 ff., Varanasi 1966), however, would like to endorse the view of Dr. H. L. JAIN, merely because he has not examined the basic facts on which the structure of arguments is based. Some of these facts have been duly scrutinised above. There is one more inscription found in Ujjain and assigned to the time between the Vikrama years 1197-1200. It mentions Jayavarmadeva residing in Vardhamānapura and informing his officials. He was dethroned soon after his succession by Ajayavarman. The various places mentioned there including Vardhamānapura are not identified. May be that Jayavarman was staying at Vardhamānapura perhaps during the period of his exile: the identity of this place in Malwa is still to be proved (Indian Antiquary, Nov. 1890, p. 350, and reference to this in the article of Dr. V. V. MIRASHI noted above). For a reference to Vardhamānanagarī in the South, see I. A. XI, January 1882, pp. 11, 18.

with Avanti, the name of the ruler of which is not obviously mentioned by Jinasena. Vatsarāja is ruling over or in the West. Uddyotana does not clearly specify that Vatsarāja ruled at Jalor; and it is not unlikely if he ruled at Bhilmāl, the traditional capital of the Gurjaras. Had Vatsarāja been the ruler of Avanti, Uddyotana would not have depicted (in the Kuvalayamālā) a Mālava prince brought as a captive and put in a humiliating condition.¹ If any further inference is justified, Uddyotana indicates that the ruler of Avanti (or Mālava) might not have been on good terms with Vatsarāja in whose kingdom Jalor was included.

While mentioning his parentage, Uddyotana only specifies that he hails from a Kṣatriya family and nothing about his lunar lineage. But when he describes himself as an Ācārya, he mentions that he was an avayava or member of the Candrakula. The Ms. P describes Uddyotana as śvetapaṭa-nātha-muni; so Candrakula is the name of the Gaccha of which a number of authors are known from the 10th century onwards.² Some of them have later changed over to Rāja-, Kharatara-, Khaṇḍilla-gaccha etc. This Kula seems to have split into other branches like Bṛhad-, Paurṇimika-gaccha etc.

Uddyotana specifies the Śaka year in which he completed the Kuvalayamālā; and as worked by H. JACOBI (see Notes on 283.6) it corresponds to March 21, 779 A.D.³ Jinasena writing at Vardhamāna(pura) also uses Śaka era, 705; and Hariṣeṇa who composed his Bṛhat-Kathākośa (931-2 A.D.) at the same place gives both the Śaka (853) and Vikrama (989) eras.

After knowing so much from Uddyotana about himself and after critically scrutinising these details, it is interesting to see what Prabhācandra⁴ says about him in his Prabhāvaka-carita (1277 A.D.) while writing the biography of Siddharṣi (906 A.D.):

¹ Though this is accepted, Dr. H. L. JAIN's suggestion that Vinitā = mod. Bink in the old Sonapur State is contradicted by Uddyotana himself for whom Vinitā is Ayodhyā. See Kuvalayamālā 8.27, 180.18, 156.26, 177.7, etc.

⁴ Prabhāvakacarita of Prabhācandra, pp. 123-4, ed. JINA VIJAYA MUNI, Singhi Jaina Series, Ahmedabad-Calcutta 1940.

As to the gist of the above verses, Siddharṣi composed the Bālāvabodhinī Vṛtti on the Upadeśamālā; and he was obviously proud of it. But his guru-bhrātā (both Uddyotana and Siddharṣi being presumed to have been the pupils of Haribhadra), Dākṣiṇyacandra, who had composed his Kuvalayamālā full of erotic sentiment, laughed at his new literary feat. He incidentally referred to the Samarādityacarita (of Haribhadra) which is so much flooded with flavour that its readers would forget their hunger and thirst (while reading this śāstra), and also to his own (Kuvalayamālā-) Kathā, quite worthy for its contents and flavours. He derided Siddharṣi's performance as a scribe's stuff. Siddharṣi was quite modest about his poetic gifts as compared with those of Haribhadra; but this worked as an inner challenge, and he composed consequently his Upamitibhava-prupañcā kathā. Then the Saṃgha gave him a title of vyākhyātr. That Siddharṣi was a contemporary pupil of Haribhadra is a myth exploded long back.¹ Prabhācandra's statement that Siddharṣi (906 A.D.) and Uddyotana (779 A.D.) were contemporaries is an anecdote devoid of any historical foundation.²

The Kuvalayamālā is the only work of Uddyotana so far known to us. The references like the above clearly show that very few Ācāryas seem to have read the whole of it. Very few authors like Guṇapāla (c. 11th century A.D.),³ Āmradeva (1134 A.D.) show some acquaintance with it.⁴ The dakṣiṇhaimdha is misunderstood both by Devendra (A.D. 1103)⁵ and Prabhācandra (1277 A.D.).⁶ The Mss. of it are few, so far known, only two. After Ratnaprabha prepared its Sanskrit Digest, very few authors appear to have touched the Prākṛit original. There is no wonder, therefore, that what were just characters in a religious and diadactic romance came to be looked upon as Religious Heroes, great Saints of yore in flesh and blood who attained liberation after practising penances (see Notes on 280.17, the details about Pañca-ārādhana-prakarana). For Prabhācandra, Dākṣiṇyacandra was just a title and his Kuvalayamālā had a little romantic halo with the result that he put both Uddyotana and Siddharṣi as contemporaries of Haribhadra.

After studying the various aspects of the Kuvalayamālā, quite a clear-cut personality of Uddyotana as a man of letters stands before us. His aim is to elevate man to his highest spiritual height by eliminating the baser elements in him and by cultivating the more sublime qualities. Man's baser instincts are anger, vanity, deceit, greed and infatuation; and if they are not kept under proper restraint, they run amuck to his ruin and also to that of humanistic qualities so needed for an orderly and balanced society. This basic problem is handled by Uddyotana in this Dharmakathā. The characters which Uddyotana introduces can be seen anywhere in our Indian society under the environments so well sketched by him with personal experience and observation and study: this invests the story with some eternal values which need sympathetic understanding and renewed explanation for the betterment of man as a social being. Uddyotana is a good teacher; he knows the psychology of the audience; and he tells us how the minds of people are to be captured for better ends (§ 9).

Uddyotana is typically modest. His literary gifts and equipments have not made him vain. He has regard for his critics, but their alleged criticism does not undermine his faith in his involvement in and dedication to a purpose, namely, composing a Dharmakathā to instruct men and women in correct behaviour in their social set-up. He has as much regard for the appreciative critics as he has faith in his pursuit (6.11-2). In fact, he anticipates what kinds of flaws might be found in his Prabandha, and tries to explain them in a way (§§ 427-8). All the details, howsoever discordant, are justified in a dharmakathā, because they ultimately lead to Samyaktva. He wrote this only as a Dharmakathā, not out of any pride of his poetic abilities and not with the intention of composing a Kāvya, a piece of ornate poetry. He is prepared to admit grammatical lapses here and there. He adds that he was merely a mouthpiece in composing this work which was all inspired by Hrī-devī dwelling in his heart (§ 429): otherwise how could he compose 100 granthas within a prahara. The work is meant primarily for reciting by those who know desī-bhāsā and the style of Gāthā, otherwise it may be read from a Ms.

Despite his modesty, Uddyotana exhibits significant poetic talents throughout his work. His descriptions are often of the Varnaka type, rather ready-made for setting up wherever needed; so now and then some ideas get repeated (49.7 f.; 72.20 f.; etc.). Long metres and heavy descriptions add to the dignity of his verse and prose which often go together in this work as is the style of a Campū.¹

¹ On the Campū style see A. B. KEITH: A History of Sanskrit Literature, Oxford 1948, pp. 332 f. K. K. HANDIQUI: Yaśastilaka and Indian Culture, pp. 85 ff., Sholapur, 1949; Ch. TRIPATHI: Campū-kāvya kā ālocanātmaka evaṃ aitihāsika adhyayana, Chowkhamba Prakāśana. No. 83, Varanasi 1965. The Campū style is characterised by a natural blending of prose and verse both of which flow out spontaneously for the poetic effect of the narration. One or the other cannot be detached without harming the current of composition: in fine, both are inseparable constituents of the poem. It is but inevitable from the trends of literary currents and from the age-old literary training and habits of our poets that prose would be used for narrating events and the verse would be better impregnated with poetic flash and flavour. Still it is not that they cannot serve each others' functions. Judged in this light, many works could not be called Campū simply because of the mixed presence of prose and verse. In the Pañcatantra, for instance, the verses stand detached; and the narration does not suffer, even if they are omitted. Likewise in the Samarūccakahā of Haribhadra many verses are introduced for descriptions, religious instructions and moral exhortations: some of them can be skipped over and the narration is not affected. To a less extent, however, the same tendency is seen in the Kuvalayamālā. Here and there Uddyotana adds a description for heightening the effect of the context: he does not hesitate to duplicate such descriptive sections in verse and prose. Comparatively speaking the Kuvalayamālā has better claims for being called a Campū than the Samarūccakahā. Some earlier Kannāḍa Kāvyaas like the Ādipurāṇa and Bhārata of Pampa (A.D. 941) are in the Campū style. Though Trivikrama and Somadeva are pioneers of this style, it is rather in later works like the Bhārata-campū that the style becomes more effective.

He is quite at home in strings of similes, rūpakas, utprekṣās, śleṣa etc. The śrīkhalā-yamaka is often used. His descriptions of towns, seasons, natural scenes etc. are a significant contribution to the poetic wealth of the Kuvalayamālā. At places, his style is appropriately swift and catching on account of short sentences (199.30 f.). In certain descriptions more than one piece is added, for instance, that of Narmadā (§ 206, also § 118). As in oral delivery some looseness in construction is seen (§ 143, cimṭiyam, cimṭium etc.). His conversational style is throughout successful (§ 104, § 129 etc.). The talk between the prince and Vetāla (§ 380), amongst water-carrying ladies (§ 243), in the circle of boys in the Maṭha (§ 245) and between ladies at the sight of Kuvalayacandra (§ 59) are quite poetic and attractive. Sometimes the style suits the context (§ 61) with apt expressions and similes.

Uddyotana is a master of Prākṛit expression, not of the rigid type seen in the Rāvaṇavaho etc. but elastic enough to absorb popular traits from Apabhraṃśa as well as Deśī styles. His illustration of the Mid-Indian Colloquial (§ 245) and the bazaar talk (§ 246) in eighteen deśa-bhāṣās are a speciality of this work, and not found anywhere else. He uses a string of verbal forms with a slight shade of difference in meaning (18.26 f.).

As a religious teacher, he has packed his work with details about Jaina doctrines put in the mouth of Tīrthakaras, eminent teachers and offered by himself at suitable contexts. The painting of samsāra-cakra is a fine occasion to project in details the picture of life and illustrate the law of Karman and retribution (§§ 292 ff.). There are pieces of advice full of ethical rigour and moral elevation (§ 85). Then throughout the work stand scattered gems of moral maxims and worldly wisdom, more or less arthāntaranyāsas (10.17, 12.24, 13.16, 18.20; 34.1, 48.14, 51.19, 57.9-10, 61.31-2, 127.24, etc.).

Though the society depicted in the Kuvalayamālā, on the whole, is an affluent one with plenty of comforts, pleasures and pastimes (§ 209 f.) for which Uddyotana has a keen eye, he has uniformly held detachment, equanimity and renunciation as the highest values. In fine, ascetic attitude is writ large in various contexts. All the characters, whatever their antecedents, renounce the world and attain better status by their life of piety and austerity. The author does not want the defaulters to be duped by priestly prāyascittas, but puts them on the path of good conduct, placing before them a philosophy of hope and spiritual progress on their own strength. It is a touching context that even birds are talking the language of renunciation when their kith and kin are trying to dissuade them from entering the order of asceticism (§ 402 f.). The parable of kuḍamgaddīva (§ 166), the juga-samilā dṛṣṭānta (§ 326), symbolic interpretation of certain popular notions (§ 306), the episode of Priyaṃkara and Sundarī (§ 349), the biography of raṅgamdura (§ 181), Ratnamukuta trying to save the butterfly from dying (§ 230) etc. give good finishing touches to the general atmosphere of renunciation in this work.

Uddyotana is deep in his learning, cosmopolitan in outlook and broad-based in his information. His exposition of Jaina dogmatics and religious doctrines (see pp. 67 f. above) shows his thorough study of Jaina scriptures. He shows good knowledge of aśva-sāstra (§ 56), rāśi-phala (§ 48), khanya-vāda (§ 187), sāmudra-sāstra (§ 216), dhātu-vāda (§ 311) etc. He is quite conversant with traditional and contemporary philosophical tenets (§ 320 f.) and religious practices (§ 157), modes of worship (say that of Kātyāyanī, § 32), customs and rituals (§ 286) etc. His similes are homely and apt (113.22 f.) drawn from various walks of life and different layers of literature and mythology (§ 19). His work thus reflects the entire society more than an isolated socio-religious sector to which he might belong. He has an open eye for everything, and presents the same in a catching manner. He depicts in a pleasing style a number of scenes noticed by the prince when he enters Vijayāpurī (§§ 243 f.).

Uddyotana has introduced many episodes which are instructive, engrossing and entertaining. He has a keen insight into the workings of human mind; and his experience of human relations and patterns of behaviour is realistic. The way in which Mānabhaṭa behaves while striking a Pulinda prince who unintentionally occupied former's seat in the Durbar of Āvantivardhana is typical of feudal vanity (§ 98). Kāmagajendra's love-madness is well caricatured; and he is duped in his trap for his spiritual benefit (358 f.): his love-mad mood and his transportation to Aparavideha are a fine study in contrast. The activities of kāminī-sārtha (§ 158), the conversation between the taruṇa and yuvati (§ 161) and the dedicated love of a self-willed lady moving about with a purdah (§ 163) are remarkable for their erotic touch which gets diluted as it were by a fine comparison, in that context, between the behaviour of monks and courtezans (§ 160). The first night of Kuvalayamālā and Kuvalayacandra and the arbitration of friends on the robbery of heart is skilfully worked out (§ 275). If the meeting of Kuvalayamālā and Kuvalayacandra in the park, even with previous appointment, depicts a tense mood of the loving parties (§ 269 f.), the scene of Vyāghradatta and Mohadatta fighting for the hand of Vanadattā has a thrilling effect: all this becomes simply tragic when the gifted monk discloses their mutual relation (§§ 151 ff.).

Uddyotana has a balanced mind for logical deduction (about the sound etc., § 269) and a sense of humour. The latter is obvious when the king cuts a joke (15.12) even with the goddess who is sportive enough to take it as a parihāsa and bless him with the boon of a son. Likewise, Anaṅga's enacting a counter-situation by presenting a dead body of his beloved (Māyādevī) and by declaring that she eloped with (dead) Priyaṅkara is at once amusing but effective enough to bring Sundarī to her senses and to herald the dawn of enlightenment about the vanity of attachment and inevitability of death (§ 349 ff.). The conversation between the Prince and Bhillapati is logical and jocular enough to bring out a serious conclusion and correct understanding (§ 228). Uddyotana has a knack of probing into the minds of his characters and then give out fine specimens of loud thinking (§ 256). To this category belong the thoughts in the minds of men and women who are witnessing the prince and the princess on the back of an elephant (§ 287 f.).

Uddyotana is primarily a religious moralist, out to teach lessons in good behaviour. He is endowed with deep learning, wide experience of men and matters, mastery over catching expression and entertaining style and earnestness of purpose. As such, he deserves to be ranked, as the author of the Kuvalayamālā, with the great classical writers of our country.

A CULTURAL NOTE ON THE KUVALAYAMĀLĀ OF UDDYOTANASŪRI

By

[The Late] Dr. V. S. AGRAWALA¹

The Kuvalayamālā is a Prākṛit Campū written by Uddyotanasūri (779 A.D.). It is full of cultural material which gains in value because of the firm date of its composition. It had long been known in Mss. form. It has been edited and printed by Dr. A. N. UPADHYE who has very kindly invited me to make a study of the text from the cultural point of view. Obviously the material belongs to the post-Harsha period when the three great empires of the Gurjara Pratihāra in the North, Rāshṭrakūṭas in the Deccan and Pālas in the Eastern India had been established. That played a magnificent rôle in the glorious rehabilitations of art, literature, philosophy, culture and commerce. Uddyotanasūri was a writer of a very keen observation gifted with the same pictorial memory as Bāṇa; and his knowledge of men and matters was of a wide character as shown by the description of the Kuvalayamālā.

The Campū opens with salutations to the great Tīrthaṅkaras on the occasion of whose birth even the gods take part in the great festival, clapping their hands with bejewelled bracelets (maṇi-valaya, 1.2). The personified beauty mentioned as māhava-sirī, gimha-lacchī, pāṇsa-sirī, saraya-lacchī and hemaṃta-sirī is full of beautiful expression not found elsewhere (1.9-14).

There is a reference to gold of highest purity (jacca-suvaṇṇa=jātya-suvaṇṇa, 2.2). Whatever impurity or dross was contained in the gold brought to the goldsmith was removed by the latter by subjecting it to different processes of testing it on the touch-stone (kasa), cutting (cheda), heating under regulated fire (tāva), beating out into flat sheets (tāḍaṇa), filing the sheets and the same process of beating it into a different shape, giving it a shape of round bar and dividing into several parts for final testing (vihadāṇa). The purest gold (jacca-suvaṇṇa) was styled as dohdahi in Persian. In India it was called Bārahvānī (bārahi vannīya) as in Dravya-parīkṣā, 17 (Jodhpur 1961) of Thakkura Pheru, i.e., gold refined to the twelfth degree which was regarded as the standard gold (bhittikanaka). In the pre-Muslim period, the highest purity was of sixteen degree, and such gold was called ṣoḍaśa-varṇaka (Kāvyaṁīmānsā of Rājaśekhara, Śaka 900, chapter 17) which must have been the jacca-suvaṇṇa of Uddyotanasūri. We also find reference to ṣoḍaśa-varṇa gold in the Mānasollāsa (yat syāt ṣoḍaśa-varṇākhyam koṣe sthāpyam tad eva hi, 1.2.398, Mysore ed. p. 797) from which was derived the Hindi word solaha vānī which in Rājasthānī became solamo soṇo referred to as solen in the Jñāneśvarī (1290 A.D.). For more details see my article: The highest purity of gold in India, (The Journal of the Numismatic Society of India, Vol. 16, pp. 270-74). This seems same as the śṛṅgī-kanaka mentioned in the Kādambarī (§ 85).

On page 2.9 occurs a list of peoples in a country in which persons are born: i.e., Śaka, Yavana, Barbara (the Negro tribe), Kirāta, Khasa, Pārasa (the Persian name given to the Sassanian rulers upto their extinction by Muslims in the 7th century and continued even later), Bhilla, Muramḍa (a branch of the Śaka which the author must have borrowed from some varṇaka list, since there were no Muramḍas left in the 8th century A.D.), Oḍḍa, Bokkasa (a mythical tribe called Bhokas in medieval Hindu literature), Śabara, Pulimḍa and Siṁghala.

On pp. 3.18-4.12, Uddyotanasūri gives the names of a number of Kathās and their authors, in Sanskrit, Prākṛit and Apabhraṁśa, i.e., Pādalīpta and his Taraṅgavatī, Hāla (Sālāhaṇa) and his Kośa, the club of poets known by the term Chappañṇaya, Bṛhatkathā of Guṇādhyā, Vyāsa and Vālmīki to whom we owe Bhārata and Rāmāyaṇa: that was the usual practice of all writers like Subandhu, Bāṇa, Daṇḍin, Haribhadra, Svayaṁbhū etc. We are able to know the names of about fifty works including romances. Dr. A. N. UPADHYE has dealt with these in his paper entitled 'Works and Authors referred to in the Kuvalayamālā of Uddyotanasūri' submitted to the A.I.O.C. Session at Gauhati. There is an important reference to a story book named Supurisacariya written by Devagupta of the Gupta dynasty.

The poet mentions five kinds of Kathās (4.5): Sayala-kahā, Khaṁḍa-kahā, Ullāva-kahā, Parihāsa-kahā etc. His disquisition on the nature of the different Kathās according to the metres, topics, serious or humourous, and style of writing is very enlightening and shows the richness of Kathā literature during his time. It is noteworthy that the topics of these were cast into the mould of the Rāsa literature that carried forward the Kathā-sāhitya in Apabhraṁśa, Avahaṭṭā, Old-Gujarātī, Old-Rājasthānī, etc. and later in Avadhī, Br̥ja-bhāṣā and Rājasthānī languages. It is a fascinating subject worthy of classified investigation.

It was customary with the poets beginning from Kālidāsa, Bāṇa etc. to prefix their narration with an account of durjana-nindā and sajjana-prasaṁsā; and Uddyotanasūri too has done the same at some length. Kālidāsa gives it in the minimum way, while Gosvāmi Tulasīdāsa at much length. Uddyotanasūri gives durjana-nindā in nineteen lines and sajjana-prasaṁsā in fifteen lines. Several of the epithets of this topic were common; so, in that, he has followed a conventional description of varṇaka nature.

On page 7, § 13, we find an exhaustive description of the Madhyadeśa which closely follows in spirit and word the description given in the Mūla-sarvāstivāda-vinaya of Sanskrit Buddhism. A bunch of architectural terms is available (7. § 14): tumga-bhavana, maṇi-toraṇa, dhavala-dhaya, maṇi-sihara in the description of the city Vinīyā. There were usually eightyfour market places in a medieval town of which a list is given in the Pṛthvīcandracarita (Saṁ. 1161 [?]; but here [§ 15] some names of shops according to articles displayed in them is given, i.e., 1) kuṁkuma-kappūra-agaru-mayaṇa-abhivāsa-paḍavāsa; 2) elā-lavaṅga-kakkolaya; 3) mattāhala-suvaṅṇa-rayana; 4) ṇetta-juyala; 5) vasaṇa (= cloth); 6) viḍāo; 7) saṁkha-valaya-kāya-maṇiya; 8) sara-sarāsaṇa; 9) saṁkha-camara-ghaṁṭā; 10) viḍha-osahāo; 11) siṅgha-ṇiraṁtara-bahu-khajja-pejja; 12) haliddī; 13) surā-mahu-māsāo. Thus Uddyotana has in his view a complete form of a medieval market place with the number of lines full of different commodities on the basis of which was compiled later on a list of 84 caihattas.

There is (9. § 20) a reference to abbhaṁtarovattthāṇa-maṁḍava, Hall of Private Audience, corresponding to bhuktāsthāna-maṁḍapa of Bāṇa, or Darwār khāsa of Mughal architecture. There (9.20) is a reference to vettalayā paḍihārī which throws light on the Mathurā railing figure (No. 2) in the Mathura Museum showing that such attendants actually existed in royal palaces. Later (11.15), there is a reference to bāhirovattthāṇa-maṁḍava, the Hall of Public Audience, to which all people were admitted and which was known as Darwāre Ām in Mughal times. That was also known as savvāvasara (= sarvāvasara) in Apabhraṁśa texts. On page 11.21 there is a clear statement that the king, after dismissing the public Durbar, entered the private apartment of his palace known as vāsa-bhavana. At 12.1 there is a reference to kovahara (= kopa-gr̥ha). On page 12, line 11, there is a reference to suvaṅṇaddha-sahassam, five hundred of Suvaṅṇa. At 12.27 there is a reference of Mahākāla Śiva of Ujjain which had a crowd of joya-joyaṇī-siddha and of those who were proficient in Tantras and Mantras. This is a welcome reference to Mahākāla about a century and half later after Bāṇa's Kādambarī. The description given by Uddyotanasūri is much more detailed about the bloody offering and sacrifices and use of wine and the skull of human beings and Vetāla-sādhanā carried on in the temple.

On page 14. § 34, there is repetition of gods mentioned at 2.23. At 14.13-7, there is a Stotra of Rāyasirī Bhagavaī describing her beauty and ornamental glory. On p. 15.18 there is again a reference to bhoyana-maṁḍava and abbhaṁtarovattthāṇa-maṁḍava; and further at 16.18, there is again a reference to bāhirovattthāṇa-bhūmi which are already mentioned. There is also a reference to rayana-viṇimmaviya-mahariha-sihāsaṇa, i.e., the siṁhāsana of the king, also called Indrāsana. On the same page a graphic account is given of Rājasabhā which included Maṁṭiṇo, Mahāṇarimḍā, Mahāvīrā, Mahāvejjā, Mahābambhaṇā, Mahākaiṇo, Mahāseṇāvaiṇo, Mahāpurohiyā, Vāravilāsiṇiṇo and authorities on different subjects of learning of which the list is given. At 17.24 there is a description of festivities; and at 18.26-8 there is a reference to cast fabrics and coins. At 20.28 there is a reference to āvāṇaya-bhūmī and again to bhoyanattthāṇa-maṁḍava and attthāṇa-maṁḍava.

An important topic during early medieval times was the education of princes. We have a detailed description in the Kādambarī of the education of Prince Candrāpīḍa. The description presented by Uddyotanasūri is no less important. The prince was sent under an auspicious star to his vijjā-ghara (21.14). The prince spent twelve years in receiving instructions from his Teachers. The author has given a list of 72 Kalās (kalā-kalāve, 22.1-10).

At page 23.22 f. there is an enumeration of 18 kinds of horses, e.g., 1) Mālā, 2) Hāyaṇā, 3) Kalayā, 4) Khasā, 5) Kakkasā, 6) Ṭaṃkā, 7) Ṭaṃkaṇā, 8) Sārīrā, 9) Sahajāṇā, 10) Hūṇā, 11) Semdhavā, 12) Cittacalā, 13) Camcalā, 14) Pārā, 15) Pārāvayā, 16) Hāmsā, 17) Hāmsagamaṇā, and 18) Vatthavvayā. Further, there is a very important reference of three kinds of horses named Vollāha, Kayāha and Serāha. These were Arabic names of horses introduced by Arab Horse-Traders. The first mention of Vollāha is found in the Samarāiccackahā of Haribhadrasūri in the beginning of the 8th century A.D. The Arab traders entered into very good relations with the Rāshtrakūṭa rulers who depended on them for the supply of the horses. Gradually the names of Indian horses as given by Bāṇa and Daṇḍin were taken from the market terminology, and they were replaced by Arabic names until the author of Mānasollāsa and Hemacandra in his Abhidhāna-cintāmaṇi completely left out the Indian names and replaced them by the Arabic terms. Hemacandra was so ignorant of their origin that he considered them of Sanskrit origin and has treated them in his Sanskrit commentary (See my article: Indian Names of Hoses [?]).

Page 33, § 70: The Puṣpakaraṇḍaka Udyāna at Kosambi is elaborately described as of a Varṇaka type. Page 35, § 74: it is an important passage describing an assembly of followers of the different religious schools discussing from the point of views of sorrow, although the names of those schools are not mentioned: only their several views are given. In this context a list of hells is also given.

On page 55.11 f., there is a description of poor home (aṇāha-maṃḍava) in the city of Mathurā. In its population there was a sprinkling of disabled persons: leprosy (koḍḍhī), suffering from leucoderma (valakkha), tuberculosis (khaiyae), extreme poor (dīṇa), extreme helpless (duggaya), blind (aṃdhala), lame (paṃgula), slothful (maṃḍula), hump-backed (maḍaha), short in stature (vāmana), clipped or cut-nose (chiṇṇa-nāsaya), clipped-ear (toḍiya-kamṇa), cut-lips (chiṇṇoṭṭha), scorched (taḍiya, better taṇuva), a parasite (kappaḍiya) and several classes of mendicants. The invaders of the orphan home exchange their views as to which sin may be washed at which holy place. Some one said that the sin of leprosy could be washed out at Vārāṇasī. Another said that it could be done better at the Sun temple of Mūlasthāna (mod. Multan). Another one said that six months' stay at Mahākāla would wipe this sin. Another said even long accumulated sin could be washed at Akṣaya-vaṭa of Prayāga. Some said that even the most horrible sin of killing one's father and mother could be cleaned at Gaṅgasaṃgama, i.e., at the holy confluence of Ganges with the sea and paying homage to the deity Bhairava Bhaṭṭāraka there.

Page 56.27: There is a description of the holy city of [Vānārasī, in the territory of] Kashi where, among other subjects, there was provision of the teaching of Arthasāstra of Kauṭilya (Cānakka-satthaim). Uddyotanasūri does not mention by name any other text except the treatise of Cāṇakya which shows that the Arthaśāstra of Kauṭilya was existing and formed an important subject of study by young men at the educational centre at Varanasi.

Page 57.13-15: There is an expression of views about the relative importance of Trivarga consisting of Dharma, Artha and Kāma in which emphasis is laid on Artha, according to individual precipitation, adding that wealth should be earned even by crooked means. It was a topic on which the political thinkers usually express their opinions.

Page 57.27: There is a vivid description of a commercial prosperity of the city of Pratiṣṭhāna where rich merchants earned plentiful of gold and jewels.

Page 58.32: There is a reference to racchā-caūkka or Police posts which were like defence citadels garrisoned by soldiers and were a common feature of medieval administration Thāṇe. These were also known as gulma-sthāna, the garrisoning contingent of the government, in Gupta administration and found in Mṛcchakaṭīka. In the medieval period, the rakṣā-cātuṣkika had come into existence and is recorded in the inscription of Vastupāla and Tejapāla (Tejāpāla-praśasti, about 1225 A.D.). According to Malika Muhammad Jāyasi, Allauddin also continued this practice of establishing defence posts (thāṇe) along the path of his marching army which suggested the means of his occupations. Abul Fasal in the Ain Akbari also refers to this practice in the time of Akbar (Ain Akbari, BLOCHMAN'S Trans., Vol. I, p. 369, foot-note). The words thāṇe and chaukī are still current terms in Hindi languages, sometimes used together as an instance of poly-glottism showing that the origin of the word sthāna, which is also used by Kauṭilya, proceeded by cātuṣka to denote this meaning.

Page 59.4: There is a reference to a gujjara-pahiya, that is, a traveller of the Gujjara clan which seems to be one of the earliest references to the Gūrjara settled down in the region of south Rajasthan and Gujarat.

Page 59.5: This is a Dvipadī: a new metre is availed in Prākṛit in which the first and the second line agree in tukānta; and each line consists of 24 moras with a yati at 13 and 11 moras which correspond exactly Dohā-chanda of Apabhraṁśa and Hindi languages.

Page 62.5: There is a reference of Pallī, which was a forest settlement, and to its śabara chief, the description being partly modelled after Bāṇa's Harṣacarita.

Page 63. § 124: The author has given specimen of spoken dialects as used by the village people. In line 22 there is a reference of Kāpālika sect as a means to get rid of sins. The details of this religious practice are not given; but it appears to be quite familiar. It implies the assumption of Śaiva practice of eastern character and roaming about the country visiting great teachers and centres of pilgrimage. There are references to Kāpālika mendicants in contemporary literature. In line 24 there is a reference to Jyeṣṭha Mahā-mahattara who was placed in charge of all the Drangas, or defence posts, in that area. The word is very often used in the Rājataranṅinī of Kalhaṇa to denote an institution which was common in the North-west. Its mention by Uddyotanasūri is significant as showing its extension to Rajasthan area.

Page 64. § 127: There is a description of the capital city of Taksila which seems to have been resounding with its fame during the 8th century, about 150 years after the visit of Yuan Chuang who found it in flourishing condition. The Kuvalayamālā describes Taksila with its deep mote (parikhā) and high city-walls and as a centre of Jainism where the Samavasaraṇa of the first Tīrthaṅkara was being held.

Page 65.13 f.: This is a brilliant description of a Sārthavāha taking his caravan, or a trading expedition, from Taksila to Sūrpāraka which was the biggest sea-port. Here there are two motifs well-known from Gupta time, firstly, relating to the ardent desire (11.5 f.) of a young son of a rich merchant to earn wealth by his own diligence. His father at first dissuades him from undertaking the journey saying that there was wealth enough in his house to last for several generations, but, in the end, allows the young man to travel to foreign country for earning wealth. The second motif is the description of the caravan consisting of an army of horses and wheeled vehicles for transport of merchandise. In Sūrpāraka he sold away the excellent horses of the northern breed which he had brought with him and earned large profits thereby. At Sūrpāraka there was the merchant Bhaddasetṭhi whose wealth lasted for several generations, and there was also a guild of local merchants. It was their custom to hold a reception in honour of merchants from outside and to learn from them the country of their origin, the destination, field of trade, the nature, value and volume of commodity in which he is interested and all such matters relating to his business. It was the ancient and traditional custom of the great emporium city of Sūrpāraka which was also a flourishing sea-port for oceanic commerce with the western world. He was offered essence, betel leaf and perfume as a mark of honour.

An interesting record is preserved here (65.27 f.) of the conference of the merchants relating to the conditions of their trade. The topic was the countries visited and the goods brought on return journey. One said: 'I went to Kosala with a troop of horses. The king of the country gave one she-elephant-calf equal in value to my horses.' Another said: 'I went to Uttarāpatha with a load of betel nuts, and I bought horses out of the earned money profits.' Another said: 'I went with pearls to the eastern country (probably Assam) and brought fly-whisks.' Another said: 'I went to Dvāravatī and brought conch-shells from there.' Another said: 'I went to the coast of Barabarcum (a region along the sea-coast of Sindh) taking fabrics with me and brought superior pearls (probably of Persian gulf) and ivory (of African origin).' Another said: 'I went to Suvarṇa-dvīpa (Sumatra) taking flowers of the Palāśa tree (Butea frondosa) and brought gold from there (contemporary with the Śailendra emperor of Sumatra and Java).' Another said: 'I went to China (Indo-China) and Mahācīna (great Chinese mainland) taking buffaloes and the naval deer and brought from there two kinds of fabrics named gaṅgāpaṭṭa and netrapaṭṭa. This information is important; and Gaṅgāpaṭṭa seems to have been a special kind of silk manufactured for export to India which was here famous under the name of cīnāmsuka. It seems to have been white silk known in India as gaṅgājul. The other fabric known as Netrapaṭṭa is a colour-silk mentioned for the first time in the Raghuvaṃśa of Kālidāsa (7.39). Bāṇa mentions Netra about 150 years before Uddyotanasūri, and it appears that Netra was a special kind of figured and coloured silk which according to Śaṅkara was synonymous with pr̥ṅga. It is new information that figured Chinese silk was given the new trade name of Netra in India (See Harṣacarita: A Cultural Commentary [in Hindi], pp. 78-9 and 149). Somadevasūri (959 A.D.) refers to Netra as a superior silken fabric that was in use in the Rāshtrakūṭa empire. The Vaṇaratnākara of Jyotirīśvara Ṭhakkura (about 1400 A.D.) mentions two kinds of Netra cloth mostly according to their different colours. Jāyasī (circa 1528 A.D.) mentions Neta as a superior silken fabric used in the royal houses. Another said: 'I went to Mahilārājya, the kingdom of women, taking men with me and brought gold in exchange.' Mahilārājya was a name applied to several kingdoms; but this was probably the state of Kerala in South India ruled by amazon chiefs. Another said: 'I went to Ratnadvīpa with leaves of the Nimba tree and brought gems from there.' The above is a graphic cross section from the commercial life of India during the 8th century drawing a picture of trade from China to Barabarcum and from Taksila to Sumatra within which brisk commerce was maintained and valuable goods were exchanged by international merchants.

Page 66.28: sijjhau jattā is a Prākṛit rendering of the Sanskrit siddha-yātrā that was applied to sea-journey including going and safe return. This had become a technical phrase in medieval literature.

Page 67.1-3: Details of preparation for sea-voyage are given which include the following items relating to preparatory ritual and the equipment of the ship: i) arrangement of boats or ships (jānavattāim); ii) loading of merchandise (bhamḍāim); iii) bringing together other sailors (niijāmayā); iv) calculation of the duration of the journey both outward and inward (gañijae diyaham); v) fixation of the date and time of departure (laggaṇ); vi) observation of portends whether favourable or vice versa (ñirūvijjamti nimittāim); vii) making announcements about the journey (kīramti avasūo); viii) prayers to proper deities (sumarijjamti iṭhadevae); ix) feeding the Brahmins (bhumjāvijjamti bam̐bhane); x) paying respects to select persons (pūijjamti viṣiṭṭhayaṇe); xi) worshipping of deities (accijjamti devae); xii) arrangement of sails (sajjijjamti seyavade); xiii) raising of the mast (ubbhijjamti kūvākham̐bhae); xiv) fitting the furniture for sitting and sleeping (sayane); xv) collecting loads of timber for plank and fuel (katṭhasam̐cae); and xvi) filling the containers with fresh sweet water (jala-bhāyaṇe).

When the ship was to take off auspicious musical instruments were sounded, conch-shells were blown, auspicious songs were sung, Brahmins muttered the āsīsā; and thus in the sound of invocation and jaya jaya the ship took off its voyage, the sails were unfurled, the ropes and riggings were pulled up, the oars began to be operated, the helmsman took observations, the ship fell into its course, favourable winds began to blow: thus the ship started its journey being tossed on the high sea waves.

The ship reached to its destination. It touched the landing, and the merchant got on the coast. It was then the custom to pay a visit to the king by making suitable presents, while obtaining from him his consent or tacit charter to trade in his territory. They paid all the customs, charges and taxes (diṭṭho rāyā kao pasāo). In the trade of precious stones and gems, it was customary not to utter the value loudly by word of mouth but through a piece of cloth or a scarf on the jewels and pearls to be sold and then the buyer and seller put their hands under the cloth, both of them negotiating by means of some signs conveyed through the fingers of the hands (diṇṇā hattha-saṇṇā). It is also stated that after taking other goods in exchange and before leaving the place the foreign merchant makes some charitable gifts to the local religious teachers and establishments (diṇṇaṃ dāṇāṃ).

On the return journey the greedy merchant pushed his friend in the mid-ocean and raised a false cry of his having slipped into the sea. The pious merchant after struggling for some time against the waves sank under the water and lost his life. He however became a Vyantaradeva who, in order to revenge himself against the mischief-making merchant, caused the storm leading to ship-wreck. This had become a literary motif as appears from Jāyasī (1527 A.D.) describing a similar situation of a storm and ship-wreck brought about by a Rākṣasa when Ratnasena was returning from Singhala (Padmāvata, dohās 389-90, p. 68.12). A vivid description of the storm is given consisting of rushing or gathering of clouds, dashing of waves, splashing of sea-monsters, etc. As a result the ship was tossed from side to side, the masts were broken, etc. In such a plight the men on the ship uttered prayers to their respective gods of motley pantheon, e. g., reciting a stotra to Nārāyaṇa, promising an annual sacrifice or offering to Caṇḍikā, a holy pilgrimage to Śiva and prayers to Mātrkas, Sūrya, Viānyaka, Skanda, Yakṣa (probably Kubera), Revanta (the son of Sūrya), Buddha and others. Others vowed to feed Brāhmaṇas on their return. The ship was split into splinters and completely lost into vicious sea, the goods under water, and the sailors all died.

Page 69.18: A strange reference is found to the capture of the floating merchant by some people on Tārādvīpa and preparing from his blood and flesh an ingredient considered essential in making of gold. This ingredient was known as momāi in Muslim time and was highly praised by Unani physicians.

The motif of the Bhāruṇḍa bird darting from the sky and catching hold of and carrying a human victim to another place otherwise difficult of access was well-known in medieval time story-literature and occurs in the Brhatkathā-slokaśaṃgraha of Budhasvāmi, ascribed to Gupta period.

Page 71.1-8: There is a mention of four major languages, namely, Sanskrit, Prākṛit, Apabhraṃśa and Paisācī; and during the 8th century, vast body of Apabhraṃśa literature appears to have been already produced. The Paisācī language seems to have been represented by the Brhatkathā which had survived in its original form upto the time of Uddyotanasūri. This appears to be very probable since the original Paisācī Brhatkathā was known to Kṣemendra who based his Sanskrit version on it.

Page 77.16-28; There is a reference to Madana Mahotsava on the madana-trayodaśī day in the bāhyodyāna where there was a temple at which the festival was held.

Page 80.17: There is a reference to Cāraṇa Śramaṇa who moved alone in the air from place to place, whereas the other kind of teacher was gaccha-pariggahi who took his whole Gaccha or Gaṇa with him while on the move. In line 18 there is a reference to the holy mountain Śatrumjaya which seems to have become a famous religious centre before 779 A.D. when Uddyotanasūri was writing.

Page 82.30: Here is a list of religious establishments of different denominations as Mantra-jāpa-maṇḍapa, Brāhmaṇa-śālā, Rudra-bhavana, Dhārmika-maṭha, Home of Kāpālikas, Holy platforms of Yakṣas, Nāgas etc., Brahmanical songs were sung in āvasati, Jinagrha, Buddha-vihāra or Buddhist monasteries, Shrine of goddess Koṭṭavī, Temple of six-headed god Kārttikeya and temple of other deities. In this list mention of Koṭṭajjā-ghara is most important as Koṭṭavai was the most ancient goddess of Tamil land whose worship is spread towards many centres in North India upto the Himālayas where, at Koṭṭal Garh, in Almore District, there was a shrine dedicated to her. She is mentioned in Bāṇa's Harṣacarita as a nude woman. According to the Vāmana-purāṇa, Koṭṭavai was the name of ancient Goddess at Hingulas in Baluchistan who was later on renamed by Scythians as Nani and by the Hindus Carcikā during the Gupta period. It is gratifying to note that Uddyotanasūri refers to the shrine of Koṭṭavi [Koṭṭajjā]. In the Deśināmamālā (12th century) Koṭṭā is given as the name of Pārvatī (2.35) which seems to have been due to a later religious synthesis of Goddess' name.

Page 83.3-9: Here is the description of the house or the sleeping chambers of young ladies which were beautified for the reception of their husbands. The select items in this list are as follows: cleansing the dust from the painted walls citra-śālikā (papphodesu citta-bhittīo); dropping pieces of Karpūra in madirā; arranging pendant garlands in the houses; painting scroll-designs on the floor (koṭṭime pattalayāo); arranging of flower-beds; burning of incense pots; placing the pet birds in the cages (janṭa-saiṇṇae); prepare clusters of nāgavallī leaves in their cases; filling camphor sticks in boxes (kappūra-phadā-samuggae); placing of Kakkola globules; spreading of coverlets and seats in the jāla-gavākṣa (airel windows); putting on the śrṅgātaka and valakkhala necklaces and round earrings ornaments; lighting of lamps; collecting wine on the drinking tables; dressing the hair and pouring the jugs; handing over the drinking cups; and arranging of eatables by the side of the beds.

Page 87.14: There is a reference to Khaḍga-vidyādhara, the other classes being Mālā-vidyādharas wearing garlands, and Gulikā-vidyādharas, wearing necklaces of beads as depicted in an Ajanta painting.

Page 87.20-28: Here is a vivid description of the intellectual and spiritual life in the Āsrama of a Jaina Muni, somewhat similar to that in the hermitage of Diyākara Mitra described by Bāṇa in the Harṣacarita where scholars studied, devoted and held controversies, disputations and exchange of views on several points of religion and philosophy. A similar atmosphere is envisaged by Uddyotanasūri writing a century and a half after Bāṇa. He gives a list of twentyone methods of study and discussions and approaches to the tenets of religion and philosophy, e.g., self-study, teaching, reflecting, resolving doubts, exposition by those who had grasped the meaning, listening to the texts after reciting them, composing new poems or Stotras, practising meditations and attending to the service of teachers, learning of rules of Vinaya, observing of Triratna in the form of darśana, jñāna and cāritra, extolling the knowledge of the Tīrthakaras and their Gaṇadharas, interrogating about points of doubts about the scriptures, practising the art of disputation, developing points of controversies in matters relating to Dharma and Adharma, deliberating about Bondage and Salvation of souls, pursuing the stages of Śukladhyāna and Dharmadhyāna, condemning the evils of egoism, pride and anger and greed, and speaking against the suffering of the world.

Page 88.32: Here is a reference to Kuḍaṅgadvīpa to which had floated three merchants after experiencing shipwreck on return journey from Ratnadvīpa, Suvarṇadvīpa and Laṅkāpurī. It is stated that those merchants mounted a lofty tree and brandished remains of the wrecked boat to attract the attention of the passing ship. It happened that certain merchants noticed their sign and despatched the sailors in a small doṇī to take them.

Page 92.24-31: A Devī-vimāna is described as being decorated with rubies, pearls-pendants and festoons, rows of bells (kiṅkiṇī-mālā) attached to banners (dhvaja-pata), rows of vaijayantī flags fixed on the top, lotus-medallions formed by the inset work of rubies (maṇi-pomarāya-ghaḍiyam), figures of the lotus-pond and thus giving appearance of Padma-vimāna. Such was the external appearance of Vimāna but in its middle portion or inside (vimāṇa-majjha) there were living apartments with rooms or retiring chambers beautified all-round with pearl-festoons (mauktika-jāla-mālā) furnished with a bed spread (sayana) of chalcedony and blue stone, foot-stool of emerald, placed on a floor of precious stones and furnished above with a devāṅga cloth and upper canopy like devadūṣya cloth.

Page 93.17-8: There is a list of eight auspicious girls holding respectively sprouted water-jars, fan-palm, fly-whisk, parasol, mirror, mṛdaṅga, harp, drum and cloth and ornaments. These were regarded as eight celestial nymphs of Indra's heaven and frequently referred in literature as aṣṭakanyā or sabhā-kanyā. They are mentioned as forming part of the articles collected for Rāma's coronation (Ayodhyā-kāṇḍa 15/8) and that of Sugrīva where their number became sixteen. King Yudhiṣṭhira looked at these auspicious maidens as amongst the objects seen by him every morning (svalaṃkṛtāḥ subhakanyāḥ, Droṇa-parvan 58/20). These were regarded as auspicious to be seen before starting on a journey (prāyātrika-maṅgala-dravya 2/28). It is stated in the Vālmīki Rāmāyaṇa (Sundara-kāṇḍa 18/11-4) that these eight auspicious girls moved in the train of Rāvaṇa holding respectively: i) a golden lamp; ii) fly-whisk; iii) fan-palm; iv) golden water-pot; v) sword; vi) rolled-up seat; vii) platter of gems; viii) parasol with golden star. These were depicted on the railing pillars at Mathura during the Kushan period some of which were obtained from the Jaina Kankali Tīla and others from Buddhist Stūpa, they being accepted in both religions as auspicious. The list of eight auspicious girls also occurs in the Lalitavistara (VII, p. 71) where their names are: 1) Pūrṇakumbha-kanyā; ii) Mayūrahastakanyā; iii) Tālavṛntaka-kanyā; iv) Gandhodaka-bhṛṅgāra-kanyā; v) Vicitrapāṭalaka-kanyā; vi) Pralambaka-mālā-kanyā; vii) Ratnabhadraṅkārakanyā; and viii) Bhadrāsana-kanyā. These were also known as the eight women of Indra's court (aṣṭau yoṣitaḥ or aṣṭau apsarasah).

consisting of enclosures, gateways, beautified by figures of Śālabhañjikā women and in the centre of all was placed on a high terrain the throne of the Tīrthakara furnished with three parasols, fly-whisks, a rain of heavenly flowers, an Aśoka tree and halo (bhāmaṇḍala).

Page 103.15: Here is a reference of the Kaumudī Mahotsava celebrated in the city of Campā on the Śaratpurnimā day (line 32). It was attended by great festivities of music, dance and drama. In the city-square a Naṭa gave demonstration of his dance. The Naṭa is called Bharata-putra, i.e., the follower of Bharata or an adept in Nāṭya-śāstra.

Page 103.20: It is said that a Subhāṣita listened got the award of one lakh of money. This is the earliest reference to such a practice and also indicates the high value put on Subhāṣita literature in that age.

Page 104.26: There is a reference again to a sea-voyage undertaken by Sāgaradatta of Campā with his starting from a big sea port of south India named Mahāsamudra-nagarī Jayaśrī with its destination to Yavana-dvīpa. Details about the taking off of the boat are similar to those already given. Sāgaradatta sold the goods in Yavana-dvīpa and purchased from there gems and precious stones and took emerald, pearls, gold and silver as his pratibhāṇḍa of the value of seven crores. A special official of the ship is named as pañjarapurusa (106.6), the person who made observation from the high top of the mast. In the time of a storm the ropes and riggings were unfastened, the sails were rolled up, the goods on the ship were consigned to the hull, and the ship was brought to a standstill.

Page 107.34: Here is a reference to lakkhavai kirāḍa in which the word kirāḍa means a retail merchant who was not regarded much, thus spoken of as lakṣapati and not a koṭipati. The word is used for the first time in the Pañcatantra, and it is still in use in the dialects of western U.P.

Page 112.28-33, also 113.1-26: There is a description of the summer season which is extremely rare both in Sanskrit and Prākṛit literature, the only other instance known to me is in the Horṣacarita of Bāṇa.

Page 113.27 f.: There is a description of Vindhyāṭavī. The other comparable examples being that of Bāṇa in the Kādambarī and that of Bhavabhūti in the Uttararāmacarita, the latter having been written about fifty years before Uddyotanasūri.

Page 119.3-4: There is a reference to colossal image of Tīrthakara made of white marble (muttāsela-viṇimmiyā, see also p. 115.3-4). A similar big image was made by the Yakṣa for himself on the crown of which he depicted a miniature figure of Tīrthakara (nivesio esa maūlte bhagavaṃ jñayamaṇḍo) (120.16). This is important as showing the use of white marble for making Tīrthakara images during the 8th century, a practice continued later throughout the medieval period.

Page 124.27-30: There is a short inset of Ujjayanī with its rich market place, city gates, rampart and moat. There are also references to some famous cities as Bhṛgukaccha, Nandipura (mod. Nāndeḍa), Padmanagara (mod. Paunāra), see pp. 125.29-30, 126.1.

Page 128.6: There is a reference to ratnamaī mahāpratimā. By the time of Uddyotanasūri the distinctive signs (laṃchana-laṃchiya) of Tīrthakaras (line 11) had come into existence. They did not exist on the image of the Kushan period but appear to have been introduced in the religion and art of the Gupta period.

Page 128.17-8: There is a reference to a Śabara and his wife who knew the desi-bhāsā, probably a reference to the dialect of the Śabarās. There is also a reference to Patra-śabarās or Paṇṇa-śabarās who were foresters living in much greater wilderness.

Page 132.1-3: The special cult-practices and beliefs in Mantras amongst the tribes of Pulindas, Kāpālikas, Mātaṅgas, Rākṣasas, Vānaras on hilltops and forests formed part of the Śabaravidyā. This was a cult involving occult practices like the muttering of śabara Mantras and uttering the same through the ear (133.5). It appears that during the 8th century, in the time of Uddyotanasūri, Jaina occult religion and mysticism brought into close touch such practices as Śabaravidyā of which Vidyādhara godlings were considered medium of transmission (133.9-10). The shrine of Ṛṣabhanātha became a centre for performance of sādhanā and for the perfection of Vidyās.

Page 134.32-33 f.: There is a description of a caravan with a large number of camels, bullocks, horses and donkeys. It had come from Vindhyāpurī and was going to Kāñcīpurī.

Page 135.6: There is a reference to Vijayā Mahāpurī which was situated on the sea shore and the same as Nagarjuna Kunda, the famous capital of the Ikshvāku kings as stated in their inscriptions. It seems to be a historical fact that the monument of Vijayāpurī stood intact and the place enjoyed wide celebrity. The leader of the caravan was one Vaiśramaṇadatta. There follows (lines 27 f.) a description of the attack on the Sārtha and its plunder by wild Bhillas.

Page 150.17 f. & 151.1-5: There is described an educational institution (mahaṃtaṃ maḍhaṃ) which included students from Lāṭa, Kaṇṇāṭaka, Mālava, Kaṇṇujja, Godāvarī (Nasik), Mahārāṣṭra, Saurāṣṭra, Śrīkaṇṭha (Thanesvar) and Sindha. The courses of study comprised Vyākaraṇa, Buddhism, Sāṃkhya, Nyāya, Anekānta or Jaina and Lokāyata or Cārvāka philosophies. At another place (151.6-11) the prince came across persons who cultivated the seventytwo arts and sixtyfour sciences, such as, Nimitta, Mantra, Yoga, Añjana, Black magic, Dhātuvāda, Yakṣiṇīsiddhi, Military Science, Yogamālā, Yantramālā, Jyotiṣa, Rasabandha, Rasāyaṇa, Metre, Vṛtti-nirukta, Patraccheda etc. Further (12 f.) there is a caricature of the fattened Vedic students (dālivatṭā catṭā) committing to memory the Vedic texts, who were of robust, sturdy body with developed muscles, living by rough exercises a care-free life and were of violent dispositions. And they were a set of fools (vijjā-vimāṇa-nāṇa-viṇaya-virahiyā) and bereft of upright morals (para-juvāi-damsaṇa-maṇā).

Page 152.24 ff.: Here we have a specimen of eighteen Deśī dialects spoken in: 1) Region of Godāvarī (Nasik), 2) Madhyadeśa, 3) Magadha, 4) Antarvedī (region between Ganges and Jumna), 5) Kīra (Kullu Kangra), 6) Dacca, 7) Sindhu, 8) Maru, 9) Gujarat, 10) Lāṭa, 11) Mālava, 12) Kaṇṇāṭaka, 13) Tāpti, 14) Kosala, 15) Mahārāṣṭra, 16) Āndhra, 17) Khasa, and 18) Pārasa. These different idioms of speech were spoken by the shop-keepers in the market place of Vijayāpurī which was thus a big cosmopolitan town where merchants from all over the country displayed their goods. This reminds us of Ujjainī where the citizens knew the languages and scripts of many countries as stated by Bāṇa in the Kādambarī (sarva-deśa-bhāṣā-lipijñā).

Page 157.2: The situation of Vijayāpurī is given as south sea coast (dāhiṇa-samudda-velā). Vijayāpurī was actually situated on the bank of Krishna [?] a few miles above the sea coast upto a point the river was navigable to big ships which landed on docks. The distance from Ayodhyā to Vijayāpurī was mapped out in successive stages and covered in one month and three days (ekkaṃ māsaṃ tiṅṅi vāsāratassa) (157.11).

Page 160.13: There is a reference to stencil cutting in which a figure of Rājahaṃsī and the name of prince Kuvalayacandra were reproduced. It was one of the seventytwo arts. The prince Kuvalayacandra himself cut a stencil design of a water pond with haṃsa, sārasa, caṅkavāka, nalini, śatapatra, bhramara and also cut a Gāthā verse on it (169.8).

Page 170.21 f.: Twentyfour items are mentioned in connection with the marriage of Kuvalayamālā, for instance, pounding of grain, arranging the palace, building high pavillion, colouring of the fire altar (vedī), decorating the floor of the interior of the palace, white-washing the wall, making ornaments of gold, sowing of barley off-shoots in wide mouthed pots for decorating the Vedī (as mentioned in the Harṣacarita on the occasion of Rājyaśrī's marriage), sewing of Kūrpāsaka garments (as sleeveless or half-sleeved for female body), hanging of buntings and flags, making of beautiful fly-whisks and bundles of peacock feathers.

Page 171.1 f.: There is a beautiful description of marriage festivities; and the author has chosen for it a new metre of the Amṛtadhvani type carrying the last part of the foregoing stanza into the first part of the succeeding stanza II.18 f.).

Page 173.31 f.: We have here a conventionalised description of sea as it was visible from the top of the Vijayāpurī palace.

Page 175.10: Here is a reference to Jaina Śāsana in which the word Jaina has been used for the teaching of religion of the Tīrthakaras. During the 7th century, in the writings of Bāṇa, the terms Jina, Jinendra, Jinanātha and Jaina were used with reference to Buddha and Buddhism, and the same is the case in the Amarakośa and the Lalitavistara, etc. It is an open question as to when for the first time the word Jaina was used in its present meaning.

Page 185.21 f.: Here follows a description of two printed scrolls, one illustrating the Jaina conception of Saṃsāracakra and the other of Bhavāntaras. The Saṃsāracakra was also painted by Buddhists on a ceiling at Ajanta. It is stated in Divyāvadāna that Bhavacakra was painted in the dvāra-prakoṣṭha or the entrance of the royal palace. It is little surprising that the different parts of the painting were explained by being pointed out with a long stick. The Saṃsāracakra illustrated the three worlds of hell, human world and the world of gods.

In the portion about the various hells, the beings undergoing sufferings were also painted: The figure of a king riding on a horse and going for hunting; then the various animals trembling for fear of impending death; then a crowd of people making noise to bring the animals together, i.e., engaged in what is now known as hānkā; then a way-farer captured by the robbers and subjected to various tortures, torments, splitting, hanging, scorching etc. Then, in another portion, were painted the agriculturists engaged in ploughing their field with plough, bullocks with pierced nostrils and with ropes tied round their necks, having ploughs on their necks, and bleeding owing to their having been pricked with sharp pointed whips (totta); farmers engaged in tearing the walls of earth and becoming sinful thereby; other house-holders engaged in field operations and undergoing much suffering for their sons and wives; farmers harvesting ripe crops and collecting heaps of pulse and paddy and crushing them with bullocks tied to the middle of the post: people suffering from many kinds of diseases like fever, pain and burning, and lying on their cots and meeting their deaths, to gather their mourning servants, wives and friends; coffins (sava-sayana) being borne by their relatives and the body being cremated on the funeral pyres of wood and grass; bemoaning relatives seated round and setting fire to it; the devoted wife crying and weeping for her departed lover, the old father sitting nearby with tears flowing from eyes and his mother becoming unconscious in a swoon; visit of dear ones in condolences; all the dear ones and relatives going to the water tank and performing the obsequies; a young couple engaged in at-random talk and the young women scratching the earth with the toe and smiling; a young man embracing with deep affection his young wife; a number of congruous poses between the male and the female; birth ceremony attended by auspicious rites and music; parties of dancing and singing men and women taking part in birth celebrations; wrestlers with stout bodies giving demonstration of their art; persons proud of their beauties bearing perfumed ornaments; persons puffed with pride of their high families; persons in the grip of greed; persons although ignorant feigning knowledge and holding scriptures in their hands; persons shooting animals with bow and arrow; a person holding a naked sword and showing feats of swordsmanship; parrots and magpies put in cages for amusement; a pregnant woman thinking of the birth of a son or daughter and experiencing dohada and labour pains; birth of a son accompanied by female festivities; a young boy amusing himself with the fight of cocks, male parrots, rams; a young man enjoying the company of young girls and maidens; an old man surrounded by his family; a beggar asking for food; a mendicant clothed in tattered garments; a recluse sitting on a palankeen and invited by the king; a soldier fighting with weapons on the battle-field; a king seated on his throne and surrounded by his feudatories and feeding on five mouthfuls of food offered in a leafy cup by a woman; a man entering the sea to save some drowning relation; a man stealing others' money; a fisherman catching a haul of fish with his net; traders engaged in false dealings and not realising the sinful nature of their actions; persons renouncing the world in a state of detachment: these were some of the topics depicting scenes of human life which were painted on the scroll.

Then follows a description in 19 verses of scenes of bird and animal life depicted in the painting, e.g., fight between lion and elephant (as depicted in the Kailāsa temple at Ellora); fight between a tiger and a wild bull, and killing of a tiger with bull horns; fight between wild buffaloes; fighting antelopes; a serpent being swallowed by a large monster; large fish swallowing smaller fish; crocodiles swallowing their own species; wounded beasts attacking the other wounded ones; peacock swallowing a serpent; a number of animals making a composite form, one upon another: spider caught in the web of another spider, the latter catching an insect pursued by a lizard and the latter caught by a black bird (sāmā) which flying in the sky with its feed was caught by a bird of prey, and the latter falling to the ground was caught by a wild cat which in turn was attacked by a wild boar, the latter was being attacked by leopard, and the leopard was attacked by a tiger, the latter instantaneously by a lion and the lion by a wild Śarabha (stronger than a lion and said to have eight feet). The animals, reptiles, insects and birds described as locked in mutual engagements create a very strange atmosphere of their buoyant life and activities; and Uddyotanasūri deserves credit for creating such a motif in a painted scroll in the 8th century A.D. Then follows a description of the various hells depicted in the painting on cloth (p. 189.18-9). There is given also a description of the Svargaloka or the heavenly abode of Devī, Devakumāra and Indra seated in the Āsthāna or Saudharmasabhā (p. 189.32-3, p. 190.1-19).

Pages 190 ff.: Here we have a description of the second Citrapaṭa. It was a painting depicting the city of Campā with its people, houses, citizens, beautified with jewelled ornaments, market places, its rich merchant and his wife and detailed account of one's bhavāntara or past life.

Page 191.28-32: Here is a reference to various Siddhis practised in medieval times, for example, Dhātuvāda, Añjana-siddhi, Bila-praveśa, Mantra-siddhi, Devatā Ārādhana. The Añjanasiddhi conferred the occult power of seeing treasures (mahānidhāna). We get some details about Dhātuvāda (p. 195), i.e., the art of making artificial gold, being practised in a secluded part of the Vindhya forest. It is said that the red colour of flames of the fire indicated the making of copper, yellow of gold, white of silver, black of iron and colourless of bronze. Others thought that its true technique was an unknown secret. If the fire is of lower heat, lead was produced, but if the heat became excessive, then granular gold (phuṭṭaṇaṃ kaṇayaṃ) was manufactured. If the fire was of moderate heat, the metallic contents of the crucible (mūsā) just drained in liquid form. If the flame was greasy, the contents would turn black. After putting the requisite content in the crucible, some kind of herbal powder (cuṅṇa-joga) was added. It is said that the assembled Dhātuvādins or alchemists (kemiyāgāra) were failing in their attempt. Prince Kuvalayacandra tried his own knowledge and succeeded in the making of gold. It appears that one of the epithets of the Dhātuvādins was Narendra, meaning a master of charms or antidotes. The word is also used in this sense in classical Sanskrit literature. Dhātuvāda is also called Narendra-kalā (narimda-kalā, 197.16).

Page 199: Here is described Yuvarāja-abhiṣeka-mahotsava when the city of Ayodhyā put on gala appearance by means of beautifying streets, sprinkling of scented waters on its roads, hanging of flower-garlands, putting up golden gates, adorning the palace, decorating the floor in front of the entrances, making paintings on the walls of the public audience (cittijaṃti rāya-sabhāo), making offerings on the cross roads, beginning dramatic performances, hoisting of the lion banners (siṃghavaḍāe), installing canopies (caṃdoyave), cloth pieces were being torn in proper pieces pāṭī for being wrapped round the post, pendants like the Kaṭisūtra ornaments were hung from the ceilings of doorways and walls of the houses, the great jewels were being taken out and put on show in the treasury, the pearls-strings were hung as festoons, so also were hung the flower-pendants. In the Āsthānamaṇḍapa was placed a big royal throne which was occupied by prince regent Kuvalayacandra and decked with golden pitchers studded with many kinds of jewels and covered with golden lotuses (kaṇayā-paiṃma-ppihāṇāim).

Page 201.26: There is a reference to Kanakaśilā engraved with the doctrines of a Dharma which was offered to the king by the Kuladevatā of the Ikśvākus.

Page 203.20 f.: There is a detailed description of about 60 doctrines of different religious sects and schools of philosophy that had developed before the time of Uddyotanasūri, for example, Agnihotra, Gomedha, Bhṛgupatana, Guggula-jvalana, a Pāsupata sect, Paṃḍara Bhikkhu, an Ājīvaka sect (also mentioned in the Pañcatantra), abstaining from all kinds of dairy products like milk, curds and clarified butter, Sāṃkhya who believed in the twentyfive categories including Īśvara known as Pañcaviṃśati Sāṃkhya in the Liṅgapurāṇa and Matsyapurāṇa, Leśyādharma (blue, yellow and white), living on wild fruits and putting on bark garments like the Ṛṣis of old. This list of different sects of Uddyotanasūri's may be compared with the lists given by Bāṇa in the Harṣacarita (Books 5, 8).

Page 217.11: Here is a reference to the city of Kākandī which was a pair word with Mākandī.

Page 233.7: There is a mention of a young painter bringing a cloth-painting on which was depicted the portrait of the daughter of the king of Ujjayinī (paṭṭe lihiyā citta-puttaliyā). The painting was marked with the purity of lines, richness of colours, according to different compositions, beautiful stripling or seedling to show the effect of surroundings or high and low surfaces and right measurements and representation of different lines of painting like sādrśya. In the Citrasūtra, rekhā, varṇa, vartanā and bhūṣaṇa are mentioned as four qualities of a good painting (rekhāṃ praśaṃsānty ācāryā vartanāṃ ca vicakṣaṇāḥ/striyo bhūṣaṇam icchanti varṇādhyam itare janāḥ!). A motif of a princess of a Citrapaṭa was popular in medieval literature and also found in the Tilakamañjarī.

Page 247.27 f.: Uddyotanasūri has introduced the Mahāmāmsa motif and created an atmosphere of the Kāpālika Dharma. That was an age in which it was predominant from Bengal to Rajasthan as also painted in the works of Bhavabhūti. Uddyotanasūri gives his comments from the Jaina point of view that the Vetāla and Piśāca as Vyantara classes of Devas did not eat flesh and blood but enjoyed it like playful children. This can hardly be said to be satisfactory, and it would have been better if the author had refrained from depicting such hedious picture in his story at all.

Page 249.19: There is a reference to mineral colours used in painting and made from the powder of stones of different colours. Such mineral colours were used in the wall paintings of Ajanta and also at Ellora during the 8th century. Perhaps Uddyotanasūri was working on facts as had reached his ears. There actually was in the erstwhile state of Shakti in Madhyapradesh a place named R̥ṣabhapura which is mentioned in the Āraṇyakaparvan as a place of pilgrimage and visited by many persons to which the Pāṇḍavas also went with their teacher. It is probable that the place was notorious for its Kāpālika practices.

Page 251.24: Here is a motif of a magical sword being exposed from inside the earth as in the case of Puṣpabhūti in the Harṣacarita.

Page 256.31-2 ff.: Here is a mixed list of 25 gods and godlings of all religions. These were worshipped and propitiated to obtain favours. The list includes Govinda (Nārāyaṇa), Khamda (Skanda), Rudra, Vyantaradevas, Gaṇādhipa (Gaṇeśa), Durgā, Yakṣa, Rākṣasa, Kimpuruṣa, Gandharva, Mahoraga, Candra (moon), Tāraka (stars), Uḍu, Grāha, Āditya (sun), Nāga, Udadhi, Suparna, Agni, Vidyut and Indra.

Page 261.7-8: Here is a reference of various processes of heating and firing of base gold to convert it into gold of the highest purity called jacca-suvarna, the same as ṣoḍaśa suvarṇa of Hindu period.

PREFACE

To the Edition of the Sanskrit Text

The text of the Kuvalayamālā-kathā of Ratnaprabha-sūri is based on the following material:

C-This stands for the printed edition of the Kuvalayamālā-kathā edited by Śrīmac Chaturavijayamuni, published by Śrī Jaina Ātmānanda Sabhā, Bhavanagar, Śrī Ātmānanda Granthamālā, No. 54, and printed at the Nirnayasagar Press, Bombay 1916, Crown pp. 10-250. It is carefully edited; prose and verses are neatly separated and presented; proper nouns are put in black types; and additional punctuation-marks like the comma, dash, sign of interrogation and interjection etc., which are quite helpful in understanding the text, are introduced. Verses are numbered group to group wherever they come. In places where the readings are obviously obscure, fresh ones are proposed in brackets, round or square; and in doing so, the editor claims, the original Prākṛit text is consulted in different contexts. The editor would prefer the name Dṛḍhavarma, though the Mss. indiscriminately write Dṛḍhavarma or Dṛḍhadharma. He suggests that the opening expressions, 'namaḥ Śrī-Hrī-devatāyai etc. to Om Arham' belong to Ratnaprabhasūri himself, and that is highly probable.

In preparing this Bhavanagar edition, it is stated that the following three Mss. were used; and now and then important readings from them are noted in the foot-notes. Their readings are also adopted in this edition, and they are indicated as below, their description being taken over from the Preface of C, p. 9.

Ck: It belongs to Paṁnyāsa Śrīmat Siddhivijaya; it contains 29 leaves; and it is written in Saṁvat 1466 [-57=] 1409 A.D.

Ckh: It belongs to Śrīmat Kantivijaya; it contains 73 leaves; and it is written in Saṁvat 1961 [-57=] 1904 A.D.

Cg: This was secured through Paṁnyāsa Śrīmat Ānandasāgara from the Bhaṇḍāra at Stambhanapurī or Cambay; it contains 42 leaves; and it is written in Saṁvat 1487 [-57=] 1430 A.D. The concluding passage runs thus:

एवं श्लोक ३८९४ परं मया किमपि किमपि स्तोकं कुत्रचिद्वर्णनादिकं मुक्तमस्तीति ज्ञेयं सर्वैः । संवत् १४८७ वर्षे भाद्रपदमासे कृष्णपक्षे एकादश्यां तिथौ बुधवारं मालवकदेशेऽद्देह श्रीगोरीखानराज्ये सीण-उराग्रामे पूज्य-प्रभुभट्टारकपुरन्दरसोमसुन्दरसूरिस्तच्छिष्यपण्डितहर्षमूर्तिगणियोग्यवाचनार्थं कुवलयमाला-चरित्रं श्राद्धपद्येन लिखितमिदम् ।

It is clear that this shows abridgement in descriptions here and there.

P-This is a paper Ms., so kindly lent to me by Muni Śrī Punyavijaya (camp Ahmedabad). It is well preserved: only in some corners and in the middle of some folios, it is bored by white ants. It measures 12.5 by 4.25 inches and contains 54 folios written on both sides, the first page being blank. Each page has 16 lines and each line about 78 letters. The Devanāgarī hand is neat, and paḍmātrās are used. There is a square black spot at the centre and black margin on all the four sides of a page with border lines on the right and left. Here and there red chalk is used to spot the numbers of verses and beginning of sentences etc. In many places it leaves blank space showing its agreement with C which makes additions in square brackets. Though neatly written there are scribal errors arising out of auditory and visual reception, while writing the Ms. The only punctuation-mark used is a single or double danḍa. Letters to be scored off are dotted on the head. Visarga is often misunderstood as a danḍa. Often visarga, instead of ṣ, is used before k, p and ph. In a conjunct group with r as the first member, the other consonant is written as double almost uniformly. As the Ms. does not use commas or inverted commas, it has saṁdhi wherever possible, though it is not rigorously adopted always. Generally, anusvāra is used and not para-savarna, and it stands even at the end of a pāda. Often ṣṭ and ṣṭh are not distinguished; ś and s are mutually confused; and ṣ and kh are interchanged. The opening and concluding portions are already reproduced in the foot-notes on pp. *1 and *87. The Ms. is more than 525 years old, being written in Śaṁvat 1489 [-57=] i. e., 1432 A. D.

B-This is a paper Ms. belonging to the Govt. Collection now deposited in the Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, Poona. It is numbered 1327 of 1891-95. The colour of the folios has turned brown, and some portions of the edges have marks of dampness. Total number of folios is 65 of which the first four are missing; the opening words are: trāṁ apy acalāyate, coming on p. *61.5 of this edition; and the pages are renumbered in pencil from 1-124/33. The folios measure 14.5 by 4.5 inches. There is a square blank spot in the centre, and margin is left on all the four sides. Most of the border-lines are filled with red chalk with which are also spotted nos. of verses and beginnings of sentences etc. Each page has 17 lines and each line some 56 letters. The Ms. is written in Devanāgarī with paḍimātrās. The letters are squarish and the hand is uniform. Additions and glosses are noted on the margin: some of the latter are given in the foot-notes of this edition. Some spots are left unwritten whenever the ink from the other side has percolated. There are scribal errors now and then. The use of saṁdhi and the position of danḍas are rather loose. Very often ś and s are confused; visarga is put for ṣ before k or p; and ṣ and kh are interchanged. Often, when r is the first member of the conjunct group, the other consonant is double (rvv, rmm, rpp, but nirbhara). Generally anusvāra is used and not para-savarna. In many places words which are separated in this text by commas, danḍas and inverted commas are joined in saṁdhi. The concluding portion is reproduced in the foot-notes on p. *87 of this edition.

The Ms. is about 570 years old, being written in Śaṁvat 1445 [-57=], i. e., 1388 A.D.

It is interesting to compare C, P and B mutually. In many places P and B agree between themselves as against C in their readings, but in having or not having sandhi and in putting the daṇḍas they do not agree. Now and then B gives some independent readings; marginal glosses are its speciality; and in one place at least it is B alone that supplies a line which is not found in any other Ms. P shows blank space in some places where C makes additions in square brackets. May be that P preserves some older readings than those of B, but B has its independence in many crucial contexts; and as such, it has proved useful in building the critical text.

The text is presented here according to some uniform standards of editorial discipline. The main features of the excellent edition of Muni Śrī Chaturavijaya, called C here, are basically adopted. In the Mss. there is no uniformity in the numbering of verses; and their being numbered in groups does not serve any useful purpose for reference. So, in this edition, the verses are continuously numbered in each chapter; besides, lines are numbered on every page and paragraphs are marked out for practical convenience. All this will be useful for referential purpose. One can refer to the Prastāva and paragraph or verse as required, or the page and line. Most of the gaps in C are filled after collating the two new Mss. Only one line is left blank on p. *61; and even there I am wondering whether the author did have three lines in an anuṣṭubh unit. It will be seen that a better and more authentic text is presented in this edition by collating the Mss. P and B, the latter genuinely of an independent tradition. The various readings are selective; and if their number is more, it is only to help the critical reader to judge for himself the basic readings from which the deviations might have originated.

With the publication of the Kuvalayamālā of Uddyotanasūri (Singhi Jaina Series, No. 45), greater interest is sure to be taken by scholars in this important religious romance in Prākṛit. The stylistic digest of it in Sanskrit by Ratnaprabhasūri obviously serves as a companion volume for its thorough study. The excellent edition of this digest by the late lamented Muni Shri Chaturavijaya, however, is long out of print. Muni Jinavijaya suggested, therefore, that it might be republished along with the text of the Kuvalayamālā. So a critical edition of this Sanskrit text is presented here after collating some new and independent Mss. It is hoped that this Sanskrit text, presented along with its source, would prove helpful in studying the Prākṛit Campū of Uddyotanasūri. Some of the problems connected with this Sanskrit digest, namely, how far it is a summary of the original work, whether it has got any additional matter, and on which of the two Mss. J and P, it is directly based, will be discussed in details in the Introduction to the Kuvalayamālā, Part II, which is to be published soon. This work is also included in that volume, but some copies are separately issued for the benefit of those who are interested only in the Sanskrit Text. My sincere thanks are due to Muni Shri Punyavijayaji who kindly lent to me the Ms. P and to Muni Shri Jinavijayaji who generously published this work in the famous Shinghi Jaina Series.

NOTES

Page 1—lines: 2-18) To begin with R̥abha, the first Tīrthakara is saluted. Then is saluted Mahāvira with special reference to the attempts made by god Saṃgama to disturb his meditation. For more details about Saṃgama, see the Mahāvira-carīya of Guṇacandra (Surat 1929), Prastāva VII, pp. 226 ff. The Jaṃbucarīya of Guṇapāla (c. 11th century of the Vikrama era) is influenced by the Kuvalayamālā; and it refers to the episode of Saṃgama in the opening Maṅgala (Bombay 1959). Lastly, Tīrtha or Dharma is saluted.

Page 2—lines: 5) Compare Uttarādhyāyana III. 7—कम्माणं तु पद्धानाए आणुपुञ्जी कयाइ उ । जीवा सोहिमणुप्पत्ता आययंति मणुस्सयं ॥ 8) Thinking that it is a Gīti, I tried to adjust some vowel values. As Prof. H. D. VELANKAR points out to me, it is a Gītikā with its 3rd and 7th caturmātrās having in fact five mātrās. So we may read संसारए, पावएहि जम्मयं and पुण्णएहि. 20) The reference to Kāmasāstrakāra has perhaps no specific work in view. 22) अट्टु, a kind of silver necklace. 27) Note काउं जे. 28) The verse has an Apabhraṃśa ring; its structure is that of a गीति 12+18/12+18. But with a little adjustment, अत्थो, अणत्थओ, विरसओ, सोखओ and पयत्तएण it will be a गीतिका like that in line 8 above. 29) Some deities (रुंद = रुइ?) and teachers (कपिल, कणाद) are mentioned here.

Page 3—lines: 8) The term भावना is used in quite a wider sense than the one connoted by अनुप्रेक्षा. Obviously, the study of a work like this comes under भावना. 16) This verse is included in the वज्जालगं, 748, with the various readings: दोसं चिय, पसंसह (which agrees with that of P) and उवही. 18) Here are referred to पालित्तय = पादलिप्त, सालाहण - शातवाहन, popularly known as हाल, and छप्पण्णय, the exact Sanskrit equivalent of which is far from definite. 19-20) These two lines supply some details about पादलिप्त whom उद्द्योतन appears to put as a contemporary of Hāla. Some words in the first line are to be construed both with पालित्तएण and हारेण. He is the author of the तरंगवई, which is compared with गंगा; and some words with double meaning are to be suitably construed with both. The original तरंगवई is lost, but we possess a Prākṛit digest तरंगलोला or संखित्त-तरंगवई-कहा by a pupil (Jasa by name) of Nemicandra (श्रीनेमिविज्ञानप्रथमाला ९), Surat 1944. पादलिप्त and his तरंगवई have enjoyed great reputation, and are referred to by various authors: It is already referred to in the अनुयोगद्वार for mentioning its author: तरंगवइक्कारे (Sūtra 130). Jinabhadra in his विशेषावश्यकभाष्य mentions तरंगवई thus: जह वा निदिदुवसा वासवदत्ता-तरंगवइयाइ । तह निदेसगवसओ मणुरक्खवाउ त्ति ॥ १५०८ ॥ The तरंगवई is likewise referred to in the निशीथचूर्णी of जितदास (c. 598 Śaka 676 A.D.). In his दशवैकालिकचूर्णी, he refers to तरंगवई thus: तत्थ लोइएसु जहा भारहरामायणादिसु वेदिगेसु जन्नकिरियादीसु सामइगेसु तरंगवइगाइसु धम्मत्थकामसहिताओ कहाओ कहिज्जति ॥ धनपाल (c. 10th century A.D.) speaks about तरङ्गवती thus in his तिलकमञ्जरी (Bombay 1903)—प्रसन्नगम्भीरपथा रथाङ्ग-मिथुनाश्रया । पुण्या पुनाति गङ्गव गां तरङ्गवती कथा ॥; some of the phrases remind us of the description by उद्द्योतन. लक्ष्मणगणि (c. 1142 A.D.) in his सुपासनाहचरिय says:—को न जणो हरिसिज्जइ तरंगवईवइयरं सुणेऊण । इयरे पबंघसिधुं वि पाविया जीए महरत्तं ॥. Further Candraprabha in his Vāsūpūjyacarita says thus: गंग व्व तरंगवई तेहि कहा निम्मिया पवित्तपया । ते सिद्धसेवियपए पालित्तयसूरिणो वंदे ॥ ९ ॥. Then the प्रभावकचरित of प्रभाचन्द्र quotes an old gāthā: सीसं कह वि न फुट्टं जमस्स पालित्तयं हरंतस्स । जस्स मुहनिज्ज-राओ तरंगलोला नई वूढा ॥. For the traditional biography of पादलिप्त, the प्रभावकचरित्र of प्रभाचन्द्र and प्रबंधकोश of राजशेखर may be consulted. See also WINTERNITZ: HIL, II, p. 522. 21) Better बोविकल्ले, full of dance, for चोविकल्ले. Or are we to read बोल्लिकके? Note the reference to हलिय. Bāna also confirms that Hāla's selection was based on the poetry of village folk. A poet Hālika is quoted in Hāla's Kośa (No. 116). 22) This line has to go with the previous one because of the pronoun जस्स. The sequence (पादलिप्त, हाल and छप्पण्णय) may suggest that this might be a reference to the कोश of छप्पण्णय; but further छप्पण्णय is specifically mentioned below in line 25. 23) Here are referred to Guṇāḍhya and his Vaḍḍakahā (= Brhatkathā). For details about them see M. Winternitz: HIL, III, 1922 (German), pp. 312-20; A. B. KEITH: A Hist. of Sanskrit Lit. 1928, pp. 266-81; and A. N. UPADHYE, Paisācī Language and Literature, A.B.O. R.I. Vol. XXI, parts I-II, Poona 1940. According to Ājaḍa (Āṣaḍa), the commentator on the सरस्वतीकण्ठाभरण of भोज, the Paisācī quotation given by हेमचन्द्र in his Prākṛit grammar (iv. 3.46), पनमथ etc., is the आदिनमस्कार of the बृहत्कथा. This information is interesting though it cannot be verified in the absence of the original Brhatkathā in Paisācī (भारतीयविद्या III. i, pp. 228-30, Bombay 1945). 24) Here भारत and रामायण of व्यास and वाल्मीकि are remembered, see M. WINTERNITZ: HIL, I. 25) The term छप्पण्य occurs thrice in this work, here, in line 18 above and at p. 177, line 2. On this topic see my detailed paper 'Chhappannaya-gāhāo' in the Journal of the Oriental Institute, Baroda, Vol. XI, No. 4, pp. 385-402. 26) Here Bāṇa and his Kādambarī are mentioned. 27) Here is a reference to Vimāla, the author of पद्मचरित (Bhavanagar 1914; Varanasi 1962) which is विमलांक, and his प्राकृत language is called sa-rasa like nectar. The metrical forms from it are analysed by Dr. C. SHARMA in his paper on the metres of the Rāmākāvya published in the University of Rajasthan Studies (Sanskrit and Hindi), July 1967. 28) Here is a reference to the royal saint Devagupta, from the family of Guptas; possibly he is the same as the one mentioned at p. 282, line 8, and styled Mahākavi, possibly the author of 'Supurisacariya', not discovered so far. 29) In this verse J reads हरिवरिसं and P reads हरिवंसं. Earlier scholars had no reading हरिवरिसं before them; so this was taken to be a reference to the हरिवंश of विमल. I would not call this impossible, because either way the verse presents some difficulties of interpretation. But J, the older Ms., clearly gives the reading हरिवरिसं which cannot be ignored. The repetition of the term हरिवंसं presents great difficulty; and the translation of this verse given by the late lamented Pt. PREMI (जैनसाहित्य और इतिहास, 2nd ed., Bombay 1956, pp. 113-14) and followed by some others (Pt. A. M. BHOJAK, चन्द्रमहापुरिसचरित, Ahmedabad 1961, प्रस्तावना, p. 46) is sufficiently elusive, if not defective. I had discussed this verse with Pt. PREMI, and in the light of an authentic reading of a genuinely old Ms., he was in a mood to reconsider his earlier interpretation. I would present the rendering of the constituted text thus: 'I greet respectfully Harivarṣa, though indeed (well-) respected (बन्धमपि खलु), who is loved by thousands of wise men, who is the first author of the हरिवंशोत्पत्ति and who is in fact of spotless expression'. Some of my friends who have discussed this verse lately with me have to suggest some improvement in readings also. They say that पिहु = पृथु, great, or reading पहु (= प्रभु) for पिहु might be an adjective of हरिवर्ष. The second alternative involves the change of the available reading. In the Gujarati Translation of श्री हेमसागर-सूरि, वंदिय = बन्धिक is taken as the name of an author. 30) Here is a reference to a धर्मकथा, सुलोचना by name. The verse itself does not mention the name of the author, but has a pronoun जेण which, usually, should go with the author mentioned in the earlier verse. In that case हरिवर्ष will have to be taken as the author of सुलोचना(-कथा), which so far, has not come to light. Jināsena completed his Harivamśa in 783 A.D. and he says therein thus: महासेनस्य मधुरा शीलालङ्कार-धारिणी । कथा न वणिता केन वनितेव सुलोचना ॥ I. 33. Further Dhavala, in his हरिवंश (circa 11th century A.D.) composed in the अपभ्रंश dialect, specifically refers to the सुलोचन of महासेन thus: मुनि महसेणु सुलोचणु जेण पद्मचरित मुणिरविसेणेण । जिणसेणेण हरिवंसु पवित्तु जडिलमुणिणा वरंगचरित्तु ॥ (HIRALAL: Catalogue of Sk. and Pk. Mss. in C.P. and Berar, p. 764). Whether both उद्योतन and धवल are referring to the same work is not beyond doubt. We should wait for more facts in this context. 31) Here are referred to प्रभञ्जन, a royal saint, and his यशोधर-चरित. Among the यशोधर-चरित texts, so far listed, this seems to be the earliest (P. L. VAIDYA: जसहरचरित, Karanja 1931, Intro. pp. 24 f.). As noted by Dr. VAIDYA, वासवसेन (earlier than 1308 A.D.), the author of the यशोधर-चरित in Sanskrit, also refers to प्रभञ्जन.

Page 4—lines: 1) Here are referred to the वराङ्गचरित (which styles itself as धर्मकथा) and पद्मचरित of जडिय (= जडिल), i.e., जडिल and रविषेण respectively. For details about them, see the वराङ्गचरित, Bombay 1938 and पद्मचरित (c. 776 A.D.), 1-3, Bombay 1928, both published in the मा. दि. जैन ग्रन्थमाला Nos. 40 and 29-31. A Hindi translation of the former has appeared from Varanasi, and a new ed. of the latter, 1-2, along with Hindi translation is published lately by the भारतीय ज्ञानपीठ, Varanasi 1958-59. 2) समरमित्तिका कहा (= समरमित्तिका कथा) is only a synonym of समराइच्छकहा. On this equation see my paper in the Proc. and Trans. of the A.-I.O.C., XIII, pp. 381-2, Nagpur 1946 and with revision, Bhāratiya Vidyā, VII, pp. 23-4, Bombay 1947. Its author is Haribhadra whose favourite अङ्क is the term विरह duly mentioned here by श्लेष उद्योतन calls him a गुरु from whom he had studied a number of शास्त्रs. Render समय or स्वमत-शत (or स्वक)-शास्त्रगुरोः. 3) Is it that the author has in mind some poets who have for their अङ्क terms like अभिमान, पराक्रम and साहस? 5) Of the five कथाs enumerated the first two appear to be types of कथा, and the next two, perhaps the last also, possibly refer to the mode of narrator or narrating. The संकीर्णकथा is a mixed type which inherits the characteristics of all these; it is this type that is adopted for the कुवलयमाला by the author (see lines 13-4). Gunapāla follows this in his जंबुवृत्तियं, p. 2. For more details about the classification of कथास in early Prākṛit writers, see my notes on the Lilāvāī, pp. 327.28 (Bombay 1949). Hemacandra notes a pretty large number of types of कथास—उपाख्यान, आख्यान, निदर्शन, प्रवह्लिका, मन्थल्लिका (of two types), मणिकुल्या, परिकथा, खण्डकथा, सकलकथा, उपकथा and बृहत्कथा. He defines खण्डकथा and सकलकथा (which he has common with our author) thus—मध्याद्युपान्ततो वा ग्रन्थान्तरप्रसिद्धमितिवृत्तं यस्यां वर्ण्यते सा 'इन्दुमती' आदिवत् खण्डकथा ॥ समस्तफलान्तेतिवृत्तवर्णना 'समरादित्य' आदिवत् सकलकथा. काव्यानुशासन, Bombay 1938, pp. 463-5. Haribhadra, however, describes his समरादित्यकथा as धर्मकथा. उल्लाव primarily means 'sweet' and 'coaxing' conversation; परिहास-कथा, an amusing story; the last type is वर-कथा. 7) Here onwards, in the next six lines or so, the author is explaining the stylistic, poetical, metrical and linguistic components that go to constitute his present composition, the कुवलयमाला, which is a संकीर्णकथा. रूपक may refer to the अलंकार of that name, i.e., metaphor, or may indicate the dramatic form of the narration. The marginal correction उल्लाल for उल्लाव (which again occurs in line 10 below) is justified. 'उल्लालक is a very important metre. It seems to be very commonly employed by the bards and the name उल्लालक was given to it by them (cf. हेमचन्द्र p. 43, line 19) [छन्दोनुशासन VII.3.1]. Two main varieties of this metre are again given by हेमचन्द्र and the author of कविदर्पण. They are कुडकुम and कर्पूर. The former contains 27 and the latter 28 Mātrās in each of the two lines. In both, the Yati appears after the 15th Mātrā, so that the line is practically divided into two parts, one consisting of 15 Mātrās occurring before the Yati or the caesura and the other containing 12 or 13 Mātrās according as it is कुडकुम or कर्पूर. Both छन्दःकोश [of रत्नशेखर] and प्राकृत पैङ्गल treat this as a well-known metre' (H. D. VELANKAR: Apabhraṃśa Metres, Journal of the University of Bombay, II, iii, pp. 36, Nov. 1933). कुलक is a group of five or more verses upto fourteen which grammatically constitute a unit (काव्यानुशासन, VIII.12). 8) गथा 30 (12-18) and 27 (12+15) Mātrās in each line, द्विपदी (in four lines; 28 Mātrās, 6, 4×5 and Guru, in each; the first and the last of the 5 Caturmātrās must either be a जगण or contain all short letters, and गीति (30 Mātrās = 4×7, 2, Yati after 12, in each of the two lines). दुवल्य, चक्कलय and तियलय refer to groups of two, four and three verses, sometime of a special pattern. 9) दण्डक has four lines, each having 32 Mātrās (4×8). There are no special restrictions, but in practice the even Caturmātrās show generally the जगण (छन्दःकोश of रत्नशेखर, 30). According to the वृत्तजातिसमुच्चय, IV.46, दण्डक has four पादस, each containing six short letters at the beginning followed by the same number of जगणस. गाराचक has four lines, each having 12 Mātrās (ज, र, and short and long, see वृत्तजातिसमुच्चय, IV.58, ed. H. D. VELANKAR). तीटक has four lines each having four सगणस. वृत्त is to be distinguished from जाति. The former is governed by the number of syllables, their quantity and their fixed order of their position in a line; the latter, however, is regulated by the number of syllabic instants or मात्रास. According to the वृत्तजातिसमुच्चय, IV.22, तरङ्गक has four lines, each having 20 Mātrās, 4 भगणस and two long Mātrās. According to हेमचन्द्र (छन्दोनु० IV.74), each line has 21 Mātrās (6, 1, 2, 1, 4, 2, Guru, 3): Metres like नकुटक etc. are called तरङ्गक with a little variation. 10) मालावचन may refer to a metre or अलङ्कार of the name माला or मालादीपक; or it might indicate the शब्दालंकार called संदृष्टयमक (काव्यादर्श III.52) or what JACOBI has called शृङ्खलायमक. 11) The entire work is composed in Prākṛta-bhāṣā. The Varṇaka or the prototypical descriptions as current in महाराष्ट्रदेश (महाराष्ट्रदेशी(य)वर्णकनिबद्धा) are employed. In the Ardhamaḡadhī canon, it is seen that the descriptions of the Town, of the King, of the Queen etc. are of a fixed pattern; and when they are not fully given, we get the phrase जहा वण्णओ. The texts like the वसुदेवहिंडी clearly show that the descriptions are in a heavy style and stand in a way detached from the text. That can be experienced even in this work. The author describes certain situations because he is out to present a description. It is not unlikely that the poets were required to master such pattern descriptions which varied possibly from place to place. Uddyotana is employing pattern-descriptions which were in vogue in महाराष्ट्रदेश. Lately some collections of such settled descriptions have been published. It is true that they belong to the post-Apabhraṃśa period of Indian literature, but they presume earlier traditional patterns on the same line. The वर्णकसमुच्चय edited by Dr. B. J. SANDESARA (प्राचीन गुर्जर ग्रन्थमाला, ४, Baroda 1956) contains pattern description of the town (p. 2), elephant (24), serpent (26), ocean (27) etc. which are in fluent Sanskrit: That only shows that these descriptions were common in Sanskrit, Prākṛit and Apabhraṃśa. In this connection, Vaṇṇaratnākara ed. by Dr. S. K. CHATTERJI (Asiatic Society, Calcutta 1940) may also be seen. A learned poem like the रावणवहो was already written by that time; under the Vākāṭakas even some kings contributed to Prākṛit poetry; and it is under these auspices that the वैदर्भी style was thriving. So it should be presumed that महाराष्ट्रदेश had its patterns of description which उद्द्योतन is adopting here. Dr. A. MASTER has taken this phrase to refer to the script: 'The script of the original Ms. is named Maratṭhaya desi vaṇṇaya, in all probability that to which the name Nāgari was afterwards given.' As it is seen, there is no reference to script here, nor would the context justify his interpretation. In the classification of कथा, given above, the author would put his work, namely, the कुवलयमाला, under सकलकथा; but because some other elements, as noted below, are introduced in it, it has become a संकीर्णकथा. In this सकलकथा are introduced तापस, जिन and सार्थवाह. 12) Though the work is composed in Prākṛit, just out of curiosity there are introduced Sanskrit passages by way of quotations or in the mouth of other characters (परवचनवशेन); some times अपभ्रंश is used; and in some places पेशाची भाषा is presented. My friend Dr. H. L. JAIN sees here a veiled reference to the लीलावई of कौकूल in which तापसजन and सार्थवाह are introduced and which is composed in मरहट्टुदेसिभासा. It is an ingenious suggestion: my only difficulty is that there is no context for the author to refer to any work or author which he has done and, I believe, finished, in the earlier section. 15) This classification is more or less in the manner of Haribhadra in his समराइच्चकहा which defines them in details. In this classification, कुवलयमाला is a धर्मकथा; but it has become संकीर्ण in view of the details about काम and अर्थ introduced here. 17) A सज्जन offers even 'life' when asked for, then why not give at least the 'ear': a nice appeal indeed! 21) आक्षेपिणी etc. are the tactical stages of imparting the धर्मकथा rather than the types of it. In आक्षेपिणी कथा the mind of the hearer is to be first captivated by narrating something pleasant or catching; in the second, विक्षेपिणी कथा, the mind of the reader which has already come under the teacher's grip is now to be distracted or dislodged from its attachment or addiction; in the third, संवेगजननी कथा, the mind of the hearer is made receptive for religious ideas; and in the last, निर्वगजननी, the mind develops positive detachment or renunciation. 23) According to the tradition recorded in the कल्पसूत्र, सुधर्म was the disciple of महावीर and all the निर्भ्रंश भ्रमण of the present time are his spiritual descendents, other Gaṇadhara being without any descendents. Many of the canonical passages show that सुधर्म is addressing them to जम्बू. The present context puts that verse (line 24) in the mouth of सुधर्म, but I have not been able to spot it in any canonical text: and Pt. MALAVANIA also writes to me to the same effect. It is not unlikely, therefore, that उद्द्योतन himself has composed this verse keeping in mind the contents of the स्थानाङ्ग in which we have a similar context. A detailed discussion of this topic is also found in the दशवैकालिकनिर्युक्ति (Chapter III), 199 ff. The phrase अक्खेदणि अक्खत्ता occurs in the निर्युक्ति, गाय No. 211. 25) Here possibly the author has in view the biography of Kapila (see JACOBI, S.B.E., 45, pp. 31-32, foot-note) who is said to have addressed the Eighth Lecture of the Uttarādhyayana. He 'sang the first stanza of this lecture, by which some robbers were converted, and he continued to sing, repeating his stanza after each following verse (as dhruva) till, at last, all the robbers were converted'. After Kapila attained omniscience, the event is explained thus by Nemichandra in his commentary on the उत्तराध्ययन (श्री आत्मवल्लभ ग्रन्थाङ्क-१२, Bombay 1937, p. 125): इओ य रायगिहस्य णयरस्स अंतरा अट्टारस्स जोयणाए अडवीए बलभट्टपामोक्खा इक्कडदासा नाम पंचचोरसया अच्छंति । नाणेण जाणियं—जहा ते संबुज्झस्संति । तओ पट्टिओ संपत्तो य त पएस । साहिण्य य दिट्ठो 'को वि एइ' ति । आसवीहओ नाओ जहा—समणो ति, अम्हे परिभविउ आगच्छइ । रोसेण गहिओ सेणावइसमीवं नीओ । तेण भणियं—खेल्लामो एएणं ति । तेहि भइइ—नच्चसु समणं ति । सो भणइ—वायंतओ नत्थि । ताहे ताणि पंच वि चोरसयाणि तालं कुट्टति । सो वि गायइ धुवणं—'अधुवे' इत्यादि । एवं सब्वत्थ सिलोमंतरे धुवणं गायइ 'अधुवे' इत्यादि । तत्थ केइ पढमसिलाग संबुद्धा, केइ बीए, एवं जाव पंच वि सया संबुद्धा पव्वइय ति । इत्यर्थाहितः संप्रदायः । Of course possibly with this incident in view, उद्द्योतन has composed a fine context to illustrate the fourfold aspect of the धर्मकथा. 27) The author calls this verse both चर्चरी and ध्रुवक. The second part has 28 Mātrās (13/15); but the counting of the first part may vary from 28 to 32. Identification with any recorded type presents some difficulty. The expression संबुज्झहि किं न बुज्झहि occurs in the सूयगडं 1.2.1.1.

Page 5—lines: 11) The author is adopting these four aspects of the धर्मकथा here; and if some amorous contexts are introduced, it is only the आक्षेपिणी aspect, inductive to the adoption of religious life. 14) दक्खिण्णइंधं=दाक्षिण्यचिह्न, the author himself. 21) The author wants to adopt a mixed style comprising both छेक and ऋजूक which alone would meet the need of the situation. 24) The beginning of the कथावस्तु, which the author wants to make in a grandiose style अत्यि चउसागरञ्जलमेहला etc., reminds one, if it is not an imitation or a parody, of Bāna who begins the tale proper thus: अस्ति पूर्वापरजलनिधिवेलावनलम्ना मध्यदेशालंकारभूता मेखलेव भूवो etc. (p. 19, ed. PETERSON, Bombay 1900); compare also लीलावई, 43, चउजलहिवलयरसणाणिबद्ध. 27) A discourse on सज्जन and दुर्जन was conventional at the beginning of a कथा; see the लीलावई 12 f. Here the description of the दुर्जन is in Apabhramśa, now and then contaminated with normal Prākṛit forms which could even be optional in अपभ्रंश. The दुर्जन is being compared with a dog, crow, ass, black serpent, poison, thrashing ground and dirt. Guṇapāla seems to follow this context in his Jambucariya, pp. 1-2; His verse No. 9, on p. 1 is closely drafted after line 12 here.

Page 6—lines: 6) The figure of speech is व्यतिरेक here. 11) The metre is उल्लाल with 27 मात्राs in each foot, with pause after the 15th. Hemacandra's illustration of कुङ्कुम (VII.3) shows the last syllable as short. It is in Apabhramśa. 15) Here onwards we have a description of सज्जन again with plenty of अपभ्रंश forms. 17) The second line is in Apabhramśa. It is perhaps defective, because, like the first, it does not conform to the Gāthā pattern. A सज्जन is compared with पूर्णिमाचन्द्र, मृणाल, दिग्गज, मुक्ताहार, समुद्र. Portions here and there have a metrical ring, for instance, उक्कलियासयपउरो.

Page 7—lines: 6) सिधूय=सिधूअ or सिधूएँ, or a contamination of the both, with यश्चुति. 7) In this descriptive passage we have शृङ्खलायमक. 21) विनीता is a secondary name of अयोध्या, see below pp. 8.27, 156.26, 177.7, 180.18 etc. 22) सा पुण कइसिय is a conversational and colloquial opening, and hence in अपभ्रंश. Some other forms also show vowel variation. 26) Here is a description of the roads in the market-yard. All the adjectives of the streets have a śleṣa and have to be construed with the objects of comparison as well.

Page 8—lines: 4) The use of turmeric by ladies from महाराष्ट्र is well-known; see लीलावई 61 and notes on it. Vākpati also refers to the profuse use of turmeric by Deccan ladies—णवकेयइघासियकेससजमा दक्खिणाओ णारीओ । इह ता अणायरुञ्जलहलिदराया विरायंति ॥ गउडवहो ३७९. 8) We have plenty of श्लेषालङ्कार here. 17) In § 17 there are some Apabhramśa forms and plenty of illustrations of the figure of speech known as परिसंख्या, often arising out of śleṣa. 22-23) The metre is मुखगलित्ता. 29) The metre is हरिणीकुल, having 30 मात्राs in a line (4×7, 2); in that case read मुत्तह्लो at the end of the first line. That disturbs the यमक a bit. The second line has no pause after 12 मात्राs, otherwise it would be a गीति.

Page 9—lines: 3) We have the figure of speech, परिसंख्या here. 12) Is the metre उपगीति (27)? The first line does not show pause after 12 मात्राs. 18) The उपस्थान-मण्डप is an Audience Hall. It is both आभ्यन्तर, as noted here, and बाह्य, as noted at p. 11.15. To the Inner Audience Hall some friends, ministers, queens etc. have an access; while the latter accommodated kings and others, and is the veritable Durbar of the king (§ 40). 21) The context reminds one of the कादम्बरी in which the प्रतिहारी is ushering in that चाण्डालकन्यका. Some expressions here are closely common: cf. कादम्बरी—'...देवदर्शनसुखमनुभवितुमिति । एतदाकर्ण्य देवः प्रमाणम् ।राजा समीपवर्तिना राज्ञामालोक्य मुस्मानि को दोषः प्रवेश्यतामित्यादिदेश । (PETERSON'S ed. p. 8).

Page 10—lines: 7) Here the passage contains some metrical units:

विषडंत - छत्तयं ।

णिवडंत - छिदयं ॥ [चाह, 10 (5, 5)];

पडंत-कुंजरं । रडंत-जोहयं ॥ [जंभेट्टिका, 9 (4, 5)];

खलंत-आसयं । फुरंत-कोतयं ॥ [Ibidem];

सरंत-सरवरं । दलंत-रहवरं ॥ [Ibidem].

17) It is a gāthā (30+27); better read होंति व्व कस्स. The second part of the first line as read by P is metrical and more regular, 25) This is a nice analysis of the reasons why ladies in a joint family get angry. गोत्रस्खलन means 'calling one by a wrong or bad name' which amounts to offending his or her family. The following sentence जेण इमीए चय गोत्तेण सयलमंतेउरिया-जणमहं सहेमि ति, however, needs further elucidation.

Page 11—lines: 30) The expression महाराइणो अण्णारुहिय देवीभूय ति is rendered by the Sanskrit Digest in this manner महामहीपतेरग्रेग्निमाविश्य देवी भूता । (p. *5.16). The idea that she entered 'fire' in the presence of the late king is not clear unless the author has to say that she observed 'Sati'. I would render the Prākṛit passage independently this way 'She became a goddess (in the next world) after taking leave (अण्णा-आरुहिय=आज्ञा:मारुह) of the great king (i.e., his father)'; or is there a reference to अनुमरण (अनु+आरुह्य=अन्वारुह्य=अण्णारुहिय)?

Page 12—lines: 8) Compare this context with समराइच्चकहा p. 66.12 ff. 12) मन्वुनौष्ठमालिन्वे णिव्वोलः । Hema. iv.69. 18) तइयं=तइएँ Instr. Sing., agreeing with गाहेण. 21) The metrical form presents some difficulty. Is it a गीति? Or perhaps prose. 28) Are we to omit कि?

Page 13—lines: 5) For some observations on these cults, see K. K. HANDIQUI: Yasastilaka and Indian Culture (Sholapur 1949) pp. 358 f., 391 f. 14) Note the form पइज्जा (P however पइण्णा) for प्रतिज्ञा, cf. वैज in मराठी. 20) Identical with 15.21. 21) The author refers to लोकशास्त्र, scriptures current among people. The Prākṛit sentence reminds one of the famous verse:—अपुत्रस्य गतिर्नास्ति स्वर्गो नैव च नैव च । तस्मात्पुत्रमुखं दृष्ट्वा पश्चाद्भवति भिक्षुकः ॥, which, with a slight change in the last pāda, is quoted in the Sanskrit Digest (*6.8). 22) Some expressions have a metrical ring.

Page 14—lines: 5) Here the author is referring to popular deities and orders of ascetics which were significant in his days. Compare अनुयोगद्वार, सू० 20. 7) कायल (=काक+ल), a crow, is considered to be a Deśī word; cf. कावळा in Marāṭhī. 12) The following group of verses is called कुलक. They are all of the गद्या type excepting the one (in line 15) which is a गीति. 26) Difference of opinion is possible on the identification of this metrical form. Each line has 32 मात्रास, with units of 4 मात्रास. In view of the internal श्रृंखलायमक I would take these lines as of समचतुष्पदी वृत्त, each line having 16 मात्रास (6, 4, 4, 2) and identify them as two संकुलकस. It is also known as वदनक.

Page 15—lines: 11) The goddess is राजश्री or राजलक्ष्मी; naturally, she is the spouse of great kings of yore; and some of their names are mentioned. माधव=कृष्ण, मंधाई=मांधातू and दिलीप=दिलीप. 21) Identical with 13.20. जावय and तावय could be even read जाव य and ताव य. 25) Better read एवं च विविह-सज्ज etc.; for a similar expression, see below 20.30-21.1. 26) Infinitive with जे, or जे is taken by some for पादपूरणे. Here we have a beautiful description of the sun-set. Pt. D. MALAVANIA has put together the descriptions of sun-set from the कुवल्यमाला, pp. 15, 73, 75, 82 along with Gujarati translation and appreciative remarks (स्वाध्याय 1, Baroda 1963).

Page 16—lines: 3) अनुप्रास is seen here and there. 10) Note the repetition of similar syllables which gives a pleasant ring to the prose. 17) This paragraph gives a detailed description of the बाहिरोवत्थाण, the Durbar, of the king. It is attended by dignitaries, experts etc. from the various sections of the society. The king is seeking advice from this body, an assembly of the chosen people. 19) The term दुग्गइय is a bit elusive; can it be दुग्गहय? 20) The term महाब्राह्मण has a good sense here. The comparison is with well-known standard figures like व्यास, षण्मुख and शुक. The poet व्यास is already referred to above (3.24); धन्वन्तरि, the ideal physician of yore. The king's council has eight members—मन्त्रिन्, महानरेन्द्र, महावीर, महावैद्य, महाब्राह्मण, महाकवि, महासेनापति and महापुरोहित. 22) Note Apabhraṃśa is being mentioned along with Sanskrit and Prākṛit. 23) भारह or भरह refers to the नाट्यशास्त्र. विसाहिल from विसाख, which is another name of कार्तिकेय, who is looked upon as a war-god. विसाहिल-मय may refer to some aspect of warfare. Specific branches are mentioned subsequently. विसाखिल is also known as an author.

Page 17—lines: 18) ऊणिस < उष्णीष. 20) दलथवणं or फलद्ववणं presents some difficulty: it refers to some ceremony, something like a 'collective prayer'. 27) परिहरंतए. Are these some containers?

Page 18—lines: 2) The metrical form is that we have two संकुलकस here; see the note on 14.26. 8) प्रियंवदिका is her name. 11) The four lines constitute a Daṇḍaka वृत्त. Each line begins with six लघुस, and there are 19 रगणस in the 1st and 3rd lines and 20 रगणस in the second and fourth lines. Different names are given according to the number of रगणस (8 अर्ण, 9 अर्णव, 11 जीमूत, 13 कङ्कल्लि, 14 सङ्ग, 16 or 17 भुजंग). No name is recorded for 19 and 20 रगणस as we have them here. These may be included under प्रचित (6 ल + any number of रगणस). 19) The rhyme indicates that it is a समचतुष्पदी, each foot having 16 मात्रास. It is वदनक or संकुलक (6, 4, 4, 2). The 9th मात्रा happens to be short as in मात्रासमक. 22) Better हेसा-रव-हसंतीओ. 26) The string of verbal forms perhaps presumes a ready made list of roots.

Page 19—lines: 1) सिद्धार्थ appears to be his name. 4) महासंवच्छर=महासंवच्छरिय, an astrologer, a जोइसि in para 40 above. These astrological details are quite interesting. 5) J has उद् but P उरु; but both have मगरो at 11 below. 10) रासी is f., but कण्णो and तुलो are Mas. 12) As to the source for the राशिफल, Uddyotana mentions बंगालजायग, i.e., a treatise on जातक composed by a saint बंगाल by name. Dr. Nemichandra, Arrah, drew my attention to the मानसागरी and also spared his personal copy (Banaras 1944) for my use for some time. Even on casual comparison one detects close resemblance in details and expression. The मानसागरी gives मेष-राशि-फल in this manner (p. 76): लोलनेत्रः सदरोगी धर्मार्थकृतनिश्चयः । पृथुजङ्घः कृतघ्न(ज्ञ?)श्च निष्पापो राजपूजितः ॥ कामिनीहृदयानन्दो दाता भीतो जलादपि । चण्डकर्मा मृदुश्चान्ते मेषराशौ भवेन्नरः ॥. The date of this मानसागरी is not known. It is not unlikely that it is a late compilation for practical purposes inheriting its basic material from Vaiṣṇava, Jaina and Muslim sources. The Hindi translation casually notes that this work was written during the Mughal period, and hence salutations are offered to Rahamāna along with Jaina and Hindu divinities. 13) The longer verses giving राशिफल are in the स्रग्धरा metre (म, र, भ, न, य, य, य); and they are intervened by a गायत्रि.

Page 20—lines: 2) Here is a reference to an author Vaṅgāla, who is also called Ṛṣi (line 24 below) and possibly to his work Vaṅgāla-jāyaga, बङ्गालजातक; see my paper 'Vaṅgākālakācārya: a forgotten Authority on Astrology' in the Professor P. K. Gode Commemoration volume, pp. 203-8, Poona 1960. 27) After bath, but before meals, the king is spending some time in the आपानक-भूमि, Drinking Hall, where he takes varieties of मधु, आसव and सुरा.

Page 21—lines: 2) Better संपण्णो for संपुण्णो. The usual canonical phrase is संपत्ते बारसाहे दिवसे. व्यास-महर्षि is taken obviously as a symbol of ideal qualities of a ब्राह्मण. 7) पंचधाई-परिक्खित्तो is a standard phrase of the Ardhamāgadhī canon, as in the passage तए णं से दढपइण्णे दारए पंचधाइपरिक्खित्ते, तं जहा—खीरधाईए, मज्जणधाईए, मंडणधाईए, अंकधाईए, कीलावणधाईए etc. (ओववाइय, Sūtra 105). 9) Compare the canonical expression हत्थाओ हत्थं साहरिज्जमाणे (ओववाइय, सूत्र १०५). 12) Cf. the canonical expression: तं दढपइण्णं दारगं अम्मापियरो साइरेगट्टवासजायगं जाणित्ता सोभणंसि तिहिकरणदिवसणवखत्तमुहुत्तंसि कलायगियस्स उवणेहिति । (ओववाइय, सू. १०६). 15) The prince studies for twelve years under his Teacher without even meeting his parents during that period (अदीसमाणो गुस्यणेणं). Uddyotana has, for the prince, 8+12 years' but Bāna 6+10 years' education. 24) The reference is to ऋषभ and his sons भरत and others.

Page 22—lines: 1) This list of 72 कलास enumerated here (lines 1-10) differs in details from the one given in the ओववाइयसुत्त १०७; for similar lists see जैनचित्रकल्पद्रुम (Ahmedabad 1935), pp. 13-4. These lists deserve to be compared in details, and their variations should be noted with reference to the place and date of the source. See also in this connection pp. 284 f. from भारतीय संस्कृतिमें जैनधर्म का योगदान by Dr. H. L. Jain, Bhopal 1962. 13) The second half of the first line is metrically defective? 28) वाषण=वामण.

Page 23—lines: 2) सिलिका is not noted in PSM; it reminds one of शलाका and चिलिका, the latter, a sharpening stone. 9) The king is addressing the stable-keeper, so there seems to be some propriety, if not significance, in using the Gen. sing. termination —हो in महिदकुमारहो etc. (Hema. IV. 338). 12) In the second part of the 2nd line, are we to read तुरंगमं तु देह? and then it is a गीति. 13) The description of the horse has some Apabhraṃśa form, especially the Nom. sing in —उ. Two वर्णक passages in prose seem to be put together. This has close resemblance with some portions of the tale of सनत्कुमार who is also carried away by a horse. This resemblance is also seen in the names of his friend महेन्द्रसिंह and of his horse जलधिक्ल्लोल. 14) अइणिरह Extremely frank or innocent; or are we to read अइणिरह? 22) Some treatise on horses, अइवशास्त्र, is being drawn upon. The list of the breeds shows that some names are regional and some indicate specific traits. These eighteen fall into three broad types बोलाह etc. On other names of breeds see वर्णकसमुच्चय ed. B. J. SANDESARA, part 1, pp. 92, 113, 161 (Baroda 1956). The Aśvāśāstram (Tanjore Saraswathi Mahal series, No. 56, Tanjore 1952) mentions 54 kulas of horses, pp. 66-7, which has some names like सैन्धव common with our list. See also some of the papers of P. K. Gode on this topic: 'Some references to Persian Horses in Indian Literature from A.D. 500 to 1800' Poona Orientalist, XI, i-ii, 1946, pp. 1-7. Page 24—lines: 12) केइ+इत्थ=केइत्थ. केइ+एत्थ=केएत्थ. 13) जंगएसु or जंगिएसुं? 15) Better read हर-हास-हार etc. 20) The metre is पञ्चचासर, with four lines (जरजरजग). 30) That is how the ladies are in confusion at the arrival of the prince on the street.

Page 25—lines: 9) कबोलवाली = कपोतपालि. 16) The first line is metrically faulty; if अह is taken out, the first part would be allright, but the second part will be short. A good alternative seems to be to take अह as prose, and read मग्गेण; in that case it becomes an उपगीति, the 2nd and 4th lines being of the same pattern. 19) सलोणए = सलावण्ये, पक्षे सलवणे. 23) विदिण्ण = वित्तीर्ण. 30) The metre is अधिकाक्षरा, having four lines, each line with 25 मात्रास (4×5, 5). As required, out of the five चतुर्मात्रास, the 2nd and the 4th are not a जगण.

Page 26—lines: 1) The prince is compared with अन्ज्ज, नारायण, पूर्णिमाचन्द्र, पुरंदर, त्रिनयन, सूर्य, and स्वामिकुमार, and shown how he has his speciality, if not superiority over every one of them. The author himself explains his procedure in line 14: In doing so, he has availed himself of the mythological details about them: नारायण is darkish in colour, चन्द्र is stained with the mark of a deer; पुरंदर has one thousand eyes; त्रिनयन has पार्वती in the left half of his body; and स्वामिकुमार has his body made of different pieces. This comparison is only partial. 4) Take अण्णए भणियं । 'हूँ हूँ' ।, and the verse begins with घडइ मियंको etc. 13) कक्कसो presents some difficulty. Is it a wrong reading for एक्कसो? 17) बन्नीसय, some musical instrument. गाहुल्लिया stands for गाहा with the स्वार्थे suffix —उल्ल (Hemacandra, VIII, iv. 429). 18) The first line has 27 मात्रास and the second 30 मात्रास of the Gāthā pattern; it is उद्गीति also called विगाथा. 26) सेयं नेण्ह, to perspire? 34) This conversational style deserves attention. The author writes or recites as if some audience is before him; and this brings a little detached character to the descriptions.

Page 27—lines: 7) This reminds of a similar context in the शाकुन्तलम् I-9; the author's imagination has a touch of reality. ओमं-धिय, upturned. Read सरा य अद्दयमेत्ताओ. 12) The reading wavers between विहूल (=विहूल) and वियल (=विकल). 17) Metre needs that we read व्व त्तेण with JP. 21) ओरल्ली or लिलि, sweet and prolonged. 30) The style of description reminds one here and there of Bāṇa's pattern of description of the विन्ध्याटवी (कादम्बरी, PETERSON'S ed. p. 19). Many words need to be construed with double meaning. What follows here with कहिं चि corresponds to Bāṇa's क्वचित्; of course the details vary, compare however रणभूमि etc. with Bāṇa's क्वचित्समरभूमि-रिव शरशतनिचिता; लंकाउरि-जइसिया etc. with क्वचिद्दशमुखनगरीव चटुलवानरवृन्दभज्यमानतुङ्गशालाकुला.

Page 28—lines: 11) The metrical form is दण्डक, with four lines, each having 6ल+17 रणणस; and it is named भुजंग. 12) We have here a good list of trees. 19) There are four feet, each having four सगणस; and it is called छित्तक or तोटक. 24) Two possibilities of interpretation are: अरण्य-द्विरेफमार्जारान् or अरण्य-उन्दुरैः मार्जारान्. Better read with P रण्णंदुरेहि मज्जारे. 25) Natural antipathy is forgotten even by the birds and beasts in the presence of a great monk. The author himself explains when it is and why it is so here. This is known as an atīṣaya in Jaina terminology. Compare also the Yogasūtra (II. 35) of Patañjali and the commentary of Vācaspati thereon: अहिंसाप्रतिष्ठायां तत्संनिधौ वैरत्यागः ॥ शाश्वतिकविरोधा अप्यश्वमहिषमूषकमार्जाराहिनकुलादयोऽपि भगवतः प्रतिष्ठिता-हिंसस्य संनिधानाच्चित्तानुकारिणो वैरं परित्यजन्तीति ॥ 29) संत = शान्त as against दित्त = दीप्त.

Page 29—lines: 13) The Yati is not clearly felt at the end of the 3rd Caturmātrā: this is a विपुला variety of the गाथा. 15) The Yati is not clearly felt at the end of the 3rd Caturmātrā: This is a Vipulā variety of gāthā; so also note the second half in line 16. 16) Read rather विणिज्जिओ-हामिण. 21) Again विपुला in the first line; so also in the next two gāthās. 27) Read rather किं व होज्जा उ. 31) Put into inverted commas 'केणाहं.....तुरंगमो'.

Page 30—lines: 2) सहाव-मुणिणो = स्वभावजानिनः. 6) The variation in the readings लंगूल and गंगूल is due possibly to the similarity of the written symbols for ण and ल in early Nāgarī script; see the chart of letters of Ms. J. For other cases of this change see FISCHER: Grammatik § 260. 18) Note the विपुला in the second half. 22) Note the विपुला in the first half, and also second half. 24) This is a common idea how in the perspective of large number of births and rebirths, all relations lose meaning or have a temporary meaning. Compare elsewhere: पुत्तो वि भाउ जाओ सो चिय भाओ वि देवरो होदि । माया होदि सवत्ती जणणो वि य होदि भत्तारो ॥ एयम्मि भवे एदे संबंधा होंति एयजीवत्स । अण्णभवे किं भण्णइ जीवाणं धम्मरहिदाणं ॥ कत्तियेयाणुप्पेक्खा, ६४-६५ (Agas 1960). 27) The metrical form shows some irregularity. The first line has 32 मात्रास (14+18, the latter half like a gāthā) and the second line 27 मात्रास.

Page 31—lines: 1) Here, it may be noted, मोह is added to the standard list of four कथास, namely, क्रोध, मान, माया and लोभ. 6) There is विपुला in the first line; also in line 10 below. There is a partial effort for शृङ्खलायमक which seems to be necessitated for achieving the figure of speech कारणमाला. 12) J reads तृण. In Apabhramśa there are some instances of this type. See the paper of Dr. A. M. Ghatage: An unassimilated group in Apabhramśa in the Proc. and Trans. of the All India O. Conference XII, Benares, Vol. II, pp. 444 f., Benares 1946. 14) Some forms show Apabhramśa trend, for instance विह्वहं. 15) Words like दिय, रायहंस, रायसुय, चक्कवाय and सावय have to be construed with double meaning. 18) Note the श्लेष here. 22) Here is a विपुला गाथा. 23) The second part of the first line is slightly defective: are we to read णीसम्मंतं, perhaps a wrong reading for वीसम्मंतं? 26) The metrical form is doubtful; may be it is a prose passage. There are some Apabh. forms here and there. 30) These four lines are in द्विपदी metre, each line having 28 मात्रास (6, 4×5, 7); and the 1st and the last of the 5 चतुर्मात्रास are either a जगण or contain all short letters. 33) Note the रूपक.

Page 32—lines: 1) जो etc. has a metrical ring, obviously a gāthā of which the 2nd pāda is short by two mātrās, one guru at the end. 5) The string of similies and the शृङ्खलायमक go together. It is P that uses पिव, इव, विय. 9) ओपत्तिया वेणइया कम्मया पारिणामिया । बुद्धी चउच्चिहा वुत्ता पंचमा नोवलम्भइ ॥ ६१ ॥ (नन्दीसूत्र, सू. २६); for their detailed explanation, see Malayagiri's commentary on the same. This महामन्त्रिन् is the Chief Minister among the ministers (§40). His post is obviously hereditary as stated by the author (line 9: पारंपर-पुण्व-पुरिस-कमागओ). Elsewhere the ministers are compared with सुरगुरु (16.19), and he is the chief among them, respected by all the ministers and feudatories. For the king, he was a good as a divinity, a Teacher or Preceptor, a Father, a friend, a brother and a relative (See also Rajasthan through the Ages p. 317, Bikaner 1966). 16) Now and then J shows the softening of त into द, सुईभूदस्त. 23) सेयलओवरि presents some difficulty; the Sk. text adds निजसहचरहस्ते समर्प्य. Is it सेवक-उपरि? or स्वेदलवोपरि? 26) The first lines of these three gāthās are of the विपुला type. 30) P has सुरुक्खस्स, a misreading for मुरुक्खस्स; but it is sarcastically more intelligent to call a man चर्मवृक्ष. It is interesting to note, in this context, that शूद्रक (in his मृच्छकटिकम् VIII. 6) calls a man मांसवृक्ष, विपर्यस्तमनश्चेष्टैः शिलाशकलवर्ष्मभिः । मांसवृक्षैरियं मूर्खैर्भारिकान्ता वसुंधरा ॥ 31) Either कज्जत्येण or कज्जत्थिणाजण, the long vowel in ठ्थिणा is euphonic.

Page 33—lines: 4) चारुपसज्जियं of P is obvious in meaning; but वारुआसज्जं of J presents some difficulty. There is a देशी word वारुया meaning 'a female elephant' which does not suit the context. There is another देशी word वारुअ 'quick'; so the phrase may mean 'quickly got ready'; वारुअ-आ-सज्जं. The royal road was awfully crowded, so the root फाल appears to be used specifically. 6) Note the विपुला in the first half of the गाथा. 16) वणुल्लए=वणे, with the meaningless appendage उल्ल(अ). 17) This is a गीति, with 30 मात्रास in each line (4×7, 2, with a pause after 12 मात्रास). If the reading दिट्ठिया and अप्पडिफलिया (based on P) are accepted, it would be a ललिता metre with 31 मात्रास in each line, having a pause after 13 मात्रास. 18) There is अनुप्रास in this expression. 21) Though in some gāthās here the pause is not suitably after 12 मात्रास (thus showing विपुला), the second halves of some of them have nice अर्थान्तरन्यास. 32) The monk divides his day into four parts (पोरिसी), of which the first and the last are devoted to सज्जाय or study (सुत्तथ here); cf. दिवसस्स चउरो भाणे भिक्खू कुज्जा वियक्खणो । तओ उत्तरगुणे कुज्जा दिणभासेसु चउसु वि ॥ पढमं पोरिसि सज्जायं बीयं ज्ञाणं झियायइ । तइयाए भिक्खायरियं पुणो चउत्थीइ सज्जायं ॥ उत्तराध्ययन 26. 11-12.

Page 34—lines: 11) Here we get an enumeration of the canonical texts, giving some idea of their contents. Somehow the 11th Aṅga Vivāgasuyam is missing here, and Ditthivāya, the 12th Aṅga, is duly noted. Among the Upāṅga texts seem to be mentioned only a few: जीवाभिगम(?), पणवणा, सूरियपणत्ति and चंदपणत्ति. (See SCHUBRING's enumeration, Die Leher der Jainas, §41). 20) This is a reference to ten-limbed and five-limbed syllogism. Compare कथइ पंचावयवं दसहा वा सव्वहा न पडिसिद्धं । न य पुण सव्वं भण्णइ हंसी सवियारमक्खायं ॥ दसवेयालियनिज्जुत्ती ५०. For details see the commentary thereon. 23) णिमित्त is an important branch of knowledge, and it has eight branches अयं सरो वंजणलक्खणाणि छिण्णं च भोम्मं सुमिणंतरीक्खं । एदे णिमित्तेहि य राहणिज्जा आणत्ति लोयस्स सुहासुहाइ ॥ Quoted in the धवला com. on the षड्खण्डात्म, Vol. IX, p. 72 (Amraoti 1949); compare also तिलोयपणत्ति, 4. 1002 ff. (Sholapur 1943). 24) Perhaps the author has in view a reference to the text जोणीपाहुड, see अनेकान्त, Vol. II, pp. 485 f., 611 f., 666f. 27) Both religious and secular studies were open to the Jaina monk. 28) पडिअं ठिया is equally better. 29) These are the different postures of meditation.

Page 35—lines: 9) It is a गीति, with two lines, each having 30 मात्रास. The pause after the 12 मात्रास is not happy, as also in the next verse. 30) The major types of हिंसा and the reasons or pretexts with which they are committed are enumerated here. 33) Compare बह्वारम्भपरिग्रहत्वं च नारकस्यायुषः । त. सू. VI. 16.

Page 36—lines: 7) Hereafter there is a description of the hell, compare सूयगडं I. 5. 1-2; उत्तरज्जयण 19, especially 47 ff. For a detailed exposition of the hellish region see तिलोयपण्णत्ति, अधिकार 2, especially 316 ff. (Sholapur 1943). Some lines have a metrical ring. 16) णिक्खुडाइ=बिल? 17) Obviously this line gives adjectives of णिक्खुडाइ, but they stand with Mas. termination. 32) The author gives a dramatic or conversational set-up to his description.

Page 37—lines: 6) असराल? 16) If it has no reference to monthly oblation, the reading of P can be adopted thus—मंसामिसरुहिरमीसाओ. 19) आणे आणे are colloquial pronunciation of आनय, Imp. 2nd p. sing. The Apabh. dialect admits forms of this pattern, the Imp. 2nd p. sing. terminations being इ, उ and ए. P solves this difficulty by giving the plural form आपह. 24) The expressions in the second line are a contraction of हणह णिहणह भिदह छिदह मारय मारय. 25) वेयरणी, also णई above (in 23) are in the Acc. Sing.

Page 38—lines: 2) Please read वेयालिय-पव्वए. 3) The consonant t could remain in words like बितिय=द्वितीय. If dropped, two similar vowels might coalesce and give rise to a word which would be of uncertain interpretation. Of course बिइय or बीय (which may stand for बीज, बीत etc.) are not unknown in Prākritis. 10) Stress is repeatedly laid on the five sins resulting from the violation of five vows (अहिंसा, सत्य, अस्तेय, ब्रह्मचर्यं and अपरिग्रह); see also above p. 37, lines 2-6. 14) P तरइ in the sense of शक्यते; but सरइ has its correspondence in Marathi, Gujarati and Hindi (from its synonym चलइ). 15) करे Imp. 2nd p. sing., usual in Apabhraṁśa as noted by Hemacandra (VIII. iv. 387). 21-2) The metre is तोटक (स स स स); in one line (खणमेत्त etc.) सइ is possibly to be read as से; it is also called छित्तक.

Page 39—lines: 1) Hereafter are detailed the various grades of तिर्यग्योनि and the miseries therein. 2) टंक is a coin. Compare माया तैर्यग्योनस्य । त. सू. VI. 17. 5) The doctrine of अहिंसा, in which हिंसा is defined as प्रमत्तयोगात् प्राणव्यपरोपणं हिंसा, has necessitated a detailed classification of Jīvas according to the organs of senses etc. In this context, see Uttarādhyayana X. 5 f., XXVI. 69 ff.

Page 40—lines: 9) The metre is स्रग्धरा in four lines, each with म र भ न य य य, with pauses after 7, 7. 13) Hereonwards are given the details about human birth. Compare अत्यारम्भपरिग्रहत्वं स्वभावमार्दवाजैवं च मातृष्य । त. सू. VI. 18. 24) For a study of similar lists, see OTTO STEIN: The Jinist Studies (Ahmedabad 1948) pp. 97 ff; J. C. JAIN: Life in Ancient India as depicted in the Jaina Canons (Bombay 1947), pp. 358 ff. These are anārya or म्लेच्छ people who never dreamt of any religious practice. 30) लल्लाय from लल्ल 'of defective speech' हल्ल and पंगुलय, cf. Marathi लुला and पांगळा. Compare this topic with the उत्तराध्ययन X. 16 ff.

Page 41—lines: 6) दुसह च्चिय=दुसहं चिय? 19) खदुया or खडुआ, a pebble? 33) This is a द्विपदी with 28 मात्रास (6, 4×5, म) in each line; the second line, however, seems to be little defective, since its first and second of the five Caturmātrās are not suitably constituted. 34) This is द्विपदी as above.

Page 42—lines: 1) This is a गीति, in two lines, each line having 30 मात्रास (4×7, 2) with a pause after 12 मात्रास. 4) कारिसि=कारीस. Here onwards are detailed the causes etc. of देवगति. Compare सरागसंयमसंयमासंयमाकालनिर्जराबालतपासि देवस्य । त. सू. VI. 20. 16) Read वज्जहरं ते सुरा. 25) Whenever inconvenient words or expressions are used, we have the विपुला type of गाथा.

Page 43—lines: 5) वेच्छामी is already noted by PISCHEL (Grammatik §§212, 534): so we have here वेच्छं, future 1st p. sing. For similar forms see Hema. VIII. iii. 171. 18) The metre is इन्द्रवज्रा with four feet (त त ज ग ग). 26) A fine piece of instruction of general virtues which constitute worthy behaviour without any special religious bias. 27) Perhaps अद्दिण्णं for the sake of metre? 28) Rather बहुमायं मा कुणसु रुवे with P.

Page 44—lines: 9) The metre is स्रग्धरा in four lines with 21 अक्षरस (म र भ न य य य) with pauses after 7, 7. 12) In the earlier section वर्मनन्दन described चउमइलवखणो संसारो, and now he explains the basic causes that lead to it. 15) This is identical with दसवेयालियसुत्त VIII. 39. 16) Obviously the author is adding मोह as the fifth to the basic list of four कषायस. As the author's explanation stands below, मोह has to go under लोह both arise out of the generic मुच्छा. 23) On the four degrees of कषायस and their illustrations, see त. सू. VIII. 10, especially the भाष्य (Bombay 1932); गोम्मटसार, जीवकाण्ड 283 f. (Bombay 1916); H. GLASENAPP: Die Lehre Vom. Karman in der Philosophie der Jainas (English version, Bombay 1942) pp. 9-10.

Page 45—lines: 9) भगवन्ते, Nom. pl. 10) Note the विपुला in the second half. भइणियं=भगिनी-काम्. 12) Note the similar opening set-up of these stories. 15) The author has in view the territory of Kāñci inhabited by Draviḍa people. The name रगडा is typically un-Sanskritic. 17) The description looks like decorative addition. It is full of śleṣa and in Apabhraṁśa, and obviously, a standardised description. 21) लीय or लीव, child. 25) Her name is णदिणी as noted below l. 27. 26) तीर्थयात्रा to Ganges is looked upon by Jaina authors as लोकमूढता; cf. आपगासागरस्तानमनुचयः सिकता-इमनाम् । गिरिपातोऽग्निपातरुच लोकमूढं निगद्यते ॥ २२ ॥ Ratnakaraṇḍaśrāvākācāra, Bombay 1905.

Page 46—lines: 1) A fine subhāṣita; read ईसाएँ. 5) Here is the description of the advent of autumn. 9) गृद्धिय (< गोष्ठिक) for मुद्धिय would be more appropriate in the context. In close writing ḡ is likely to be misread as m. 12) पस्सते=प्रशान्ते (perhaps contaminated with प्रशान्ते). 17) Note the use of जे with infinitive also p. 48 l. 3. 18) The form भेणी deserves attention. 28) Or even चंड-सहायणगाजाय-सकेण.

Page 47—lines: 5) The term गीयं appears to be used in a general sense 'song'. 6) There are two halves, with two parts in each. The final vowel each part may be read short or long: accordingly, the metrical form is either दोहक (13-11) or द्विपद्यक (4×3, -; 4,4, - -). Some have दोहक with 14-12. See VELANKAR: छन्दोज्जुशासनम्, p. 351. This is in Apabhraṁśa. The earlier Ms. has प्राण, but पाण in the later. For some remarks on this couplet see A. MASTER: BSOS, XIII/2, p. 412 f. 9) Because it is a देशी word, the spelling has become uncertain कौकी or कौटी. 18) °कपिय stands without any termination, perhaps a Prākṛit form for the subconscious °कपिय in Apabhraṁśa. 20) Such catch expression could retain the consonant त.

Page 48—lines: 4) Even the later Ms. P. retains some cases of the softening of intervocalic त to द, which is looked upon as a characteristic mark of Sauraseni, here, for instance, ओदारं. 5) Both the forms जल-थेवा and जलथेवा have grammatical justification. 7) मए=अहम्? 8) Better समासासिओ पुच्छिओ or even समासासियमुच्छाए or समासासियामुच्छाए तओ (=सो). 12) गेण्हह गेण्हह, रे रे, मा मा, वारेह, लेह णिवडंतं these constitute the collective cries of people (शब्दसमूहं): so obviously मा-मा does not go with वारेह. Read in the foot-note 10 'P हंती for महंती' and in 12 'P वारेह for मा मा'. The reading of P might have been रे रे वारे वारेह. 16) Here are being referred to स्मृतिकार etc.; and some of their mutually inconsistent statements are being quoted. The authorities mentioned are मनु, व्यास, वाल्मीक, मार्कण्डेय and the sources in view are भारत, पुराण and गीता. 18) Here we get four Sanskrit quotations, अनुष्टुभ् in metrical form, which appear to have been taken, may be even in a mangled form, from some स्मृति texts. The line जिघांसन्तं etc. is found in the वासिष्ठस्मृति III. 17. Vide my paper 'Sanskrit Passages in the KM., The Adyar Library Bulletin, Vol. XXV, parts 1-4, pp. 353-59. 23) Note the striking difference in the readings of J and P, the former easier for interpretation. अट्टिताई presents some difficulty, but indicates that he should not have a fixed residence at any one place. गङ्गाधार, भद्रेश्वर, वीरभद्र, सोमेश्वर, प्रभास and पुष्कर cover deities as well as places. The following observations from the Rājasthān through the Ages (Bikaner 1966), pp. 403-4, are useful: 'Of these the Gaṅgādvāra is the well-known site where the sacred waters of the Gaṅgā reach the plains. Prabhāsa might be either Prabhāsa-Somanātha or Prabhāsa-Kurukṣetra, more probably the latter, the sanctity of which dates from a very early period. Puṣkara is the well-known Tīrtha of this name near Ajmer. Lalita might be the Laliteśvara of Prayāga, mentioned in the Skanda-purāna. It speaks of Bhadreśvara on the Kāli as a vyotirlinga. Hemanta and Virabhadra are yet to be located.' The nature of the प्रायश्चित्त prescribed is given in prose in this paragraph; and the following verses constitute a criticism of it.

Page 49—lines: 1) Obviously people from distant south went to the Ganges. The practice of throwing into the streams the bones of the dead is being referred to in line 5 below. 15) Here the author mentions the Karma doctrine according to which one is responsible for one's Karmas, past and present; either one has to experience their fruits or exhaust them through penances. The favour or frown of the Almighty and priestly Prāyśacitta have no value at all. Such a philosophy cuts at the very root of priestly rituals, and hence that eternal antipathy between the priest (ब्राह्मण) and recluse (श्रमण). 16) This is a moral code, put in some details. 30) The beginnings of these tales have almost a common pattern, compare §§ 87 and 96, also 110, 126 and 141.

Page 50—lines: 2) Why the territory was named जवन्ती is explained here. 3) Note the style of putting things, the graded use of numerals and the colloquial expression at the close of the passage (especially the Apabhraṃśa forms in the last sentence). 5) गमिज्जति? 15) This question and-answer style is more suited, for recitation before an alert audience. There are some Apabhraṃśa forms. 22) Note some of the striking differences between J and P: क्षेत्र° and क्षेत्रभटः, शक्ति° and शान्तिभटः etc., as understood by the Śanskrit Digest. 29) पुरिसाभिमानी=पौरुषाभिमानी.

Page 51—lines: 1) J has both the readings परिभवो and परिहृओ while P has an uniform reading परिहृवो. 15) तयणुप्वेसो, Sk. text has तदनुप्रवेशः; does this stand for तपनप्रवेशः if not तपनोत्प्रवेशः? 21) Compare गीता—हृतो वा प्राप्स्यसि स्वर्गं जित्वा वा भोक्ष्यसे महीम् । 29) Here we have a description of the वसन्त season. 31) A bridegroom wears a red garment. 33) चच्चरी, see my Notes on the Līlavāi pp. 333-4.

Page 52—lines: 10) तगुयंगी Acc. sg. 12) The following metrical piece is called द्विपदीखण्ड The first four are द्विपदी lines, each having 28 मात्राs (6, 4×5, long): and the next unit is a गीति (4×7, 2;12). 27) The Ms. J writes the peculiar अ्रु which anticipates the present-day tendency Note the use of वोद्रह (line 4 above) and द्रह. The sunset and the spreading darkness are graphically described.

Page 53—line: 22) Better read सामंगी for सामलंगी.

Page 54—lines: 8) Is the metre अवस्कन्धक? 13) गेण goes with वीरभड; that is why perhaps J omits this. 17) Are we to read कूवंतं पिव? 22) Rather read पत्ता ससंमम । ता चितियं etc 28) वि चियरियं?

Page 55—lines: 4) The form हियवयं deserves notice. Hemacandra has noted the form हितपत्र as a speciality of Paisācī. 6) अत्तण =आत्मन्. 7) Rather जुत्तकालं. cf. मएल्लए and its Marāthi prototype मेले. 10) The passage beginning with सयलं and ending with गसन्ति (line 21 below) is edited (from J) translated and annotated by A. MASTER in the B.S.O.A.S. Vol. XIII, Part 4, pp. 1005 f. The dialect illustrated here is Mid-Indian colloquial and runs parallel to the Apabhraṃśa known to us from literature. The text differs here and there from the one presented by MASTER; ther eadings are exhaustively noted; and there would be a good deal of margin for difference in interpretation. Is the particle जे or ज्जे used in this passage to be spaced off from the word to which it is appended? 16) According to the Editor of Rajasthan through the Ages (Bikaner 1966), p. 384, the Bhaṭṭāraka of Mūlasthāna is the Sun-god of Multan. 'The story of Sāmba, as we have it in the साम्बपुराण भविष्यपुराण, बराहपुराण and स्कन्दपुराण, shows that it was साम्ब, a Yādava prince cured of leprosy who started the new form of Sun-Worship, brought the magas to Jambudvīpa and built the famous temple of Mūlasthāna or Mūltan.' Mahākāla Bhaṭṭāraka is the Śaiva temple of Mahākāla in Ujjain in Central India. 19) The reference to Prayāga-vaṭa is interesting, and the following observations from the Rajasthān through the Ages may prove useful: 'Suicide at Prayāga is mentioned in the Bālarāmāyaṇa of Rājāsēkhara. Yuān Chwāng speaks of it in the following words 'Before the hall of the temple there is a great tree with spreading boughs and branches and casting a deep shadow. There was a body-eating demon there, who depending on this custom (viz. of committing suicide), made his abode there. Accordingly to the left and right one sees heaps of bones. Hence when a man comes to the temple, there is every thing to persuade him to despise his life and give it up. He is encouraged thereto both by the promptings of the heretics and by the seductions of the evil spirit. From early days till now this false custom has been practised (Beal, I p. 232). Something similar must have been taking place at Gaṅgāsāgara where the pilgrims bathed at the junction of the Gaṅgā and sea, and if tired of life, hurled themselves to death by falling on the image of Bhairava.' See also the papers of P. K. GODE: Akṣayavāṭa, ABORI, Vol 38, pp. 82-9 and Religious Suicide at the Sangama, in the S. K. De Felicitation Volume, Bulletin of the Deccan College R. I. 25) The author lays more stress on सुद्धमण and अंतरभाव than outward purificatory rites which come under लोकमूढ. The Editor of the Rājasthāna through the Ages, while observing: 'Partially the Jaina practice of sallekhanā also seems to have been motivated by such a belief' has not taken into account the definition and the mental attitudes of Sallekhanā, see for instance, the Ratnakaraṇḍaka, vv. 122 ff. His reference to manoratha-kāmita-patana in the Sama-rāṭccakahā (p. 438) is not a Jaina practice, and cannot be connected with Sallekhanā as implied by the way in which the sentence comes after a reference to Sallekhanā. The quotations from the Bhagavatī Āśādhana, given in the footnotes, themselves do not justify this observation on the Sallekhanā practice.

Page 56—lines: 5) चरित्र of the usual enumeration is covered here by तपस् and संयम. 21) From this paragraph No. 111 we have the episode of मायादित्य. A running and close (wherever the original is followed) summary of it in Prākṛit verses (sometimes borrowing words and phrases) is found in the आख्यानमणिकोश of नेमिचन्द्रसूरि (c. 1073–1083 A.D.), with the वृत्ति of आनन्ददेव (1134 A.D.), ed. Muni Shri PUNYAVIJAYAJI, pp. 222-25, Prakrit Text Society Series No. 5, Varanasi 1962. Some passages are mechanically imitated. 22) Something like the शृङ्खलायमक even in prose (here) which shows some Apabhramśa tendency as well. 28) चाणक्यसत्त्वहं is obviously a reference to the अर्थशास्त्र of चाणक्य also known as कौटिल्य. 29) The reference is to the 23rd तीर्थंकर, पार्श्वनाथ, the son of वम्भा or वामा, who was born at वाराणसी. 31) The personality and character of गङ्गादित्य are effectively sketched by contrast.

Page 57—lines: 5) Read 'मायाइच्चो मायाइच्चो' ति. 16) कण्णु or कण्ण—does this refer to plucking ornament from the ear? 18) जुयल and जमल ordinarily mean the same, 'a pair'. Perhaps जमल has the meaning of 'vicinity', cf. Marathi जवळ. 24) Here we get a list of vocations which were looked upon as respectable in those days. 29) प्रतिष्ठान was obviously a famous town in the दक्षिणपथ in the days of Uddyotana. From Varanasi to Paithan one has to cross a thick forest.

Page 58—lines: 2) We have here a typical description of a तीर्थयात्रिक of that time. 9) This episode reminds one of the tale of धनदेव and अनङ्गदेव, in the समराइच्चकहा, 2nd भव. 26) Read वि मोह-मूढ-मणो.

Page 59—lines: 1) Read देसु मे or मह तुरियं. 4) गूर्जर्स are an itinerant tribe which first settled in different parts of Punjab, Kashmir and then came south-wards. During my visit to Kashmir in Oct. 1961, Dr. RAGHAVAN, Mrs. RAGHAVAN, Dr. H. L. JAIN and myself visited Gulmarg. Pointing to a group of huts in the valley, I asked my pony-man as to what it was. He told me in broken Hindi that it was the 'Drāṅga', meaning 'village of Gūjaras'. 5) It is a द्विपद्यक song about a white bull or ox; each line has 14-12 मात्रास (4×3, - ; 4, 4, - -); read rather विदुरे. See A. MASTER: BSOAS, XIII, 2, p. 413. 15) Here is a reference to artificial head-dress of actors.

Page 60—lines: 16) जा पुण कइसिय is a colloquial context to introduce a description. 17) In this group, the first is a गीति (with 30 मात्रास in each line); and the rest are gāthās with their lines interlinked by शृङ्खलायमक. Rather भमरोलि. 22) This passage also has a metrical ring. Some of the pairs are clearly चतुष्पदी, कुलकुलेत etc. 26) Here we have the summer described.

Page 61—lines: 15) Compare with this episode the tale of चंदसार and अणहण in the समराइच्चकहा, 2nd भव. 20) Please read माया-परायत्त-हियणं. 21) We should put a Daṇḍa after पत्तो जलं ।. Then जाव to थाणू is a gāthā, the first part ending with जंबालं. 28) As it stands, it is a गीति (with 30 मात्रास in each line) perforce; but if मित्तो is omitted, along with J, in the second line, then it is a गायथा. 31) जाणण = ज्ञात्वा? Hemacandra recognises अण as a postposition of the Infinitive, the forms of which are often used for the Gerund, Page 63—lines: 18) These lines (18, 20, 22, 25) are metrical; the pattern is पञ्चपदी; it is difficult to name the exact type, because there is syllabic variation here and there due to dialectal differences and uncertainty of readings. The dialect is Mid-Indian colloquial, not necessarily of any rigid literary type known to us. It is significant that they are put in the mouth of ग्राम-महत्तर. महत्तर and महयर are justified, but मयहर is perhaps a wrong reading, resulting from contamination with another similar word. द्रंग is a village, an encampment of an itinerant tribe like the गूर्जर्स. For some discussion and notes on these pieces, see A. MASTER, BSOAS, XIII, 2, p. 410. See the notes on p. 59 as well. Dr. D. Sharma's observations (Rajasthan through the Ages, Bikaner 1966, pp. 354-5) are interesting in this context: "In villages direct democracy operated even more effectively than in towns. An interesting example comes from the Kuvalayamālā where one Māyāditya brings together the grāma-mahattaras and tries to commit suicide, after telling them as follows: 'I have committed the grēatest crime of doing ill to a friend. Hence I shall enter a burning fire. Kindly give me fuel and fire'. The mahattaras gave their opinions about the character of the sin suggesting various means by which he could expiate it and when the "jettha-mahāmayahara sayala-draṅga-sāmi" (the Chief mahāmahattara, the lord of all the dranga) advised Māyāditya to enter the sacred waters of the Ganga, all of them echoed the former's words by advising the latter to go to the Ganga river, bathe in it, and give up his body by starving himself to death".

Page 64—lines: 2) The first line is metrically defective. 3) This idea of seeking shelter is as old as Jainism. Note the usual recitation: अरहंता सरणं, सिद्धा सरणं etc. 9) Rather जग for जण. 28) तक्षशिला is located in the उत्तरापथ. 30) This paragraph is in Apabhramśa, mixed up with some usual Prākṛit forms. 31) देणओ or देणउ=देवन्तः or देवन्तः? 35) Better read समवसरणेच; otherwise the presumption would be that the Samavasaraṇa of Ṛṣabha had visited Takṣaśilā.

Page 65—lines: 2) The Sanskrit version has सुद्वंशभवो for सुद्वजईओ, which, therefore, should be read by it as सुद्वजईओ. 8) Here is a list of praiseworthy channels of expending wealth. 13) That is how the traders prepared themselves for a trip on business. 14) चित्तविया आडलिया, middlemen or commission agents were encouraged. 17) दयालुणा? 20) Lobhadeva is bringing horses for sale from Taxila (in the Uttarāpatha) to Sopara (in the Dakṣiṇā-patha) near Bombay: the horses, obviously, fetched good price in the South. 22) It means that in the local Traders' Association (वाणिय-मेली), the traders from other parts of the country narrate their experience and receive a Farewell, symbolised by गन्ध, माल्य and ताम्बूल (गन्ध-मल्ल-तंबोलाइयं). "Traders coming from outside reported their sales and purchases to it. A deśi of the dealers from outside, assembled at Pehoa, granted certain donations to a number of temples. Commenting on the term nānādeśāgata-bhaṭāka-vyuvaharaka-deśi of the record Buehler writes: 'The word deśi which I have translated by foreman means literally guide, instructor. It would seem that the dealers had appointed a manager who acted in their name'. Though this is a possible interpretation, we can have better sense if we interpret the word Deśi as Śreṇī, or guild of dealers." See Rajasthan through the Ages, pp. 495-6. 28) This is an interesting passage indicating what commodities fetched more price in which parts of the country. Some statements seem to be made in a light vein.

Page 66—lines: 19) We get here a string of nice similes or उपमास. 27) Better महासमुदं व लंघिमो.

Page 67—lines: 1) That is how the traders' 'fleet' is made ready. Some of the rituals (l. 5 f.) are quite interesting, and the various items in the boat (l. 8 f.) deserve special note. 5) Better वर्यालं-करिया. 17) The routine is not quite clear. We may take जेण in the sense of 'thereafter'. 18) For partial comparison, see the tale of वीरदेव and द्रोण in which also the गिज्जूहम appears, समराइच्चकहा, 2nd Bhava.

Page 68—lines: 17) The passage gives a good glimpse of the popular religious attitude and propitiation of several deities mentioned by name. See also § 34 above and § 395 below. Caṇḍikā is promised a paśu here; and earlier (§ 32), the king is shown to be ready to offer his head to Kātyāyanī for procuring a son. On Remanta etc. see Rajasthan through the Ages, pp. 392 f. 24) This is a Daṇḍaka (6 ल+रणस). The first line has an additional दीर्घ at the end; so also the last line, if ति is treated as a part of the line.

Page 69—lines: 1) This context of the shipwreck may be compared with the one in the नायाधम्मकहाओ, IX. 14) Here and there one finds some metrical ring in this passage. 27) That is a part of the routine of preparing gold from baser metal.

Page 70—lines: 1) Compare this episode of भारण्ड birds with a similar context in the story of चारुदत्त, for instance, in the बृहत्कथाकोश (Bombay 1943), 93. 158 ff. Here it is भारंड, elsewhere it is spelt भेरंड. It looks like a hybrid word—रंड means 'head', 'portion of the body above the neck.' भे or भा stands for वे or वा meaning 'two': a bird having two heads. Gaṇḍa-bheruṇḍa is a famous title, and the Govt. of Mysore has an emblem like this.

Page 71—lines: 2) In this paragraph we get significant observation on the striking characteristics, both stylistic and structural, of Sanskrit, Prākṛit and Apabhramśa. Obviously, the author discloses his liking for Apabhramśa. He recognises Paisāci as the fourth variety, but attributes it to Piśācas who dwell in the udara of the Vaṭa tree. 10) For a detailed study of these Paisāci fragments, see A. MASTER: BSOAS, XII, 3-4, 659 f. His readings and renderings need minor improvements here and there: still he has given very useful material for the study of these passages. For further notes see also F. B. J. KUIPER: 'The Paisāci Fragment of the Kuvalayamāla', Indo-Iranian Journal, Vol. I, 1953, No. 3. 11) The word पत्तेसो is illustrated by Hemaçandra VIII, iv, 307. 12) Here कुसुमोत्तर, Hema. तामोत्तरो, VIII, iv, 307. Better read पातपंतराल. 13) Here हितपक, also in Hema., Ibid. 310. 20) The author hits at Sanskrit (l. 2 above) that it has अनेकपदसमास etc., but his Paisāci style (ll. 11f. 17 f., 19 f.) is not much different.

Page 72—lines: 8) Compare p. 55. l. 26. 16) Are we to read जलोल्लिय-मईल? 23) 'Moha' means here infatuation with excessive sex-impulse. 27) पेच्छइ=पेच्छई for metre. 31) In these descriptions the author easily adopts Apabhramśa: perhaps these are popular Varnakas, to be repeated here and there; see also below lines 35 f. Better read समुयाओ we have श्लेष here.

Page 73—lines: 3) There is शृङ्खलायमक in the prose passage here. 4) Indra plucked with his Vajra the wings of flying mountains and made them settle down on the earth: for a graphic description of this, see the गडडवहो, 224-35. 5) The second line is metrically defective (in the 4th pāda). 12) These are symbolic gestures to indicate that he wants to meet her in private (see next page, lines 23 f.). 16) The sunset and the spreading darkness are graphically described; see also p. 52, l. 24 f.

Page 74—lines: 4) The author develops a nice conflict. 11) The period of twelve years has some significance.

Page 75—line: 26) Note the imagery in this description.

Page 76—lines: 1) The details are significant from the point of view of आयुर्वेद. 19) There is a metrical ring about एतन्तरम्मि etc. In fact, by reading गवप्पसूया, we have a gāthā ending with डिभरूवाणं. Then with some metrical defects, the subsequent portion ending with तीए is a गीति unit.

Page 77—lines: 15) Here is a reference to the festivity of मदनत्रयोदशी. 23) He has expressed himself by अन्योक्ति.

Page 78—lines: 9) The author is referring to some कामशास्त्र and its section 'कन्यासंवरण'. In the कामसूत्र of वात्स्यायन (Benares 1929), there is a प्रकरण (No. 23) which is called वरगणसंविधानम् and the सूत्र No. 2 contains an expression रूपशीललक्षणसंपन्नाम्. 13) This is a group of द्विपदी lines; line 15 presents some difficulty; are we to read सीसयं इमीए?

Page 79—lines: 8) This reminds us of the famous illustration of 'अट्टदह गत्ता': see स्वामि-कार्तिकेयानुप्रेक्षा (Agas 1960) 64-65. The anecdote of वसन्ततिलका which is given by Śubhacandra in his commentary on these gāthās, is an old one, and is referred to in the Bhagavatī or (Mūla)—Ārādhanā (Sholapur 1935), gāthās 1799-1800. 30) चरि shows how the author slips into Apabhramśa forms.

Page 80—lines: 5) This is the illustration of वासीचंदनकण्ठ. See my paper on this in the Munshi Indological Felicitation Volume, pp. 201f., Bombay 1962. 13) See T. Sūtra VI. 6; गुप्ति need not be taken as the technical term: it just means 'guarding' of ब्रह्मचर्य in nine ways (कृत, कारित and अनुमोदित by मनस्, वचन and काय). 16) Here is an interesting reference which sheds some light on the organisation of Jaina Saṃgha. A Cāraṇa monk (who is defined here) does not initiate others into the order, because he has no गच्छ-परिग्रह, that is, he has no monks who follow him in his tour. We get here a clue for the etymology of the term गच्छ, which indicates a group of monks who accompany an आचार्य while he is touring. 18) सेत्तुजे=शत्रुजये, Palithana. The Sanskrit digest adds more details, because, later on, the place attained more fame and attracted pilgrims. 22) Rather read °मओम्मत्तमणो... गच्छिहिइ ।

Page 81—lines: 1) Here follows, at the end of the five Tales, a didactic discourse on क्रोध, मान, माया, लोभ and मोह under the sway of which the soul wanders in Saṃsāra: when these passions surge, one must restrain them; and when they start operating, they must be made pointless. 31) Better बृहयणेण.

Page 82—lines: 12) The sun-set is graphically described intentionally putting together a number of similes, often based on श्लेष. Better गयण-दुत्त. 15) Rather रिद्धीय वि. 25) Some Apabhramśa forms are used. In the Brāhmaṇa families गायत्री was being repeated. 31) These details are interesting, because they refer to a number of places and temples: यागमण्डप, ब्राह्मणशाला, रुद्रभवन, धार्मिकमठ, कापालिकगृह, चत्वरशिव (see also p. 99, line 22), आवसथ, जिनगृह, बुद्धविहार, दुर्गागृह, षण्मुक्तालय, देवगृह. भगवद्गीता was being recited in the आवसथ (पाठशाला?).

Page 83—lines: 1) This कोट्टज्जा is perhaps कोट्ट+अज्जा=दुर्गा. In the Tamil country there is a goddess Koravai, who is a deity of victory and identified with पार्वती. 4) The conversations in the apartments of courtezans give a good picture of the activities there, besides mentioning many items of domestic use. 12) May be a little exaggerated, we get here, in the following verses, some glimpses of the fashionable and luxury-loving section of the society. 31) Read पहरेहि णीसहा.

Page 84—lines: 12) This and the next are द्विपदी lines. 14) Note the forms कयल्लिया, धरियल्लओ and compare them with Marathi counterparts like केले, धरिले etc. We get here some idea of the dress. 16) There are Apabhramśa forms here and there: मुहल, परिहिय; भीसह, तंबोलह (lines 18-9).

22) These are द्विपदी lines. 24) Here are mentioned the attendants, or the conventional company, of the king. विदूषक is one of them. 25) दहर=दादर? 27) It is a catching contrast between the courtesan and the monk.

Page 85—lines: 14) पियसहि etc. and हूं मा etc. are two lines of the Gāthā. 27) Though the ring is slightly different in these two verses, the pattern of मात्राs conforms to the Gāthā type.

Page 86—lines: 21) The king first hears an engrossing episode of the bed-room; then he sees a saint engrossed in meditation; and lastly, he crosses a highly passionate, yet devoted beloved.

Page 87—line: 13) विस्फुरित्तं करणं, some miraculous movement, jumping up like a flash of lightning (see above p. 73, l. 24).

Page 88—lines: 2) Some of the ideas in this paragraph closely resemble those in the उत्तराध्ययन, 3 and 10—especially in the context of the rarity of human birth and of religious instruction. 14) The verse माणुस्स etc. is attributed to सुधर्मस्वामिन्; it is traced in the आवश्यकनिर्युक्ति, 831 or 832. समण=सवण. 23) One is reminded of the oft-quoted verse: हतं ज्ञानं क्रियाहीनं हता चाज्ञानिनो क्रिया । धावन् किलान्धको दग्धः पश्यन्नपि च पङ्कजः ॥

Page 89—line: 1) This is a दृष्टान्त of the कुडङ्गद्वीप, and it is followed by its उपनय in the next paragraph. There are three kinds of souls: अभव्य, कालभव्य and भव्य.

Page 91—lines: 10) This is called द्विपदीखण्ड by the author. The first verse is द्विपदी. The next looks a bit irregular with 28 or 29 मात्राs in the first line and 30 मात्राs in the second. The third is a गीति. The last verse is in Apabhraṁśa; it has 28 मात्राs in the first line and 26 in the second line (which is a good द्विपदी line). Is तउ redundant; or are we to read तउ अंगहिं विलसंत? 15) जोक्कार to greet with the word 'जय'=जय (> जउ > जो) कारिओ > जोक्कारिओ; 21) For details see W. SCHUBRING: The Doctrine of the Jainas (Delhi 1962), §170. 24) But who has and where is narrated the वृत्तान्त of Dharmanandana? The Sanskrit recension has no remark corresponding to this.

Page 92—lines: 12) We get here in the following sections, the conventional description of the Saudharma-kalpa, Padmavimāna, the rebirth of Lobhadēva's soul there, the attendants, the way in which he was introduced to the heavenly environments, and his recollection of the past life.

Page 94—lines: 4) Compare रायपसेणइयं para 12-14. 8) The first two verses are in द्विपदी metre; the third is a गीता and the fourth is खण्ड (अवलम्बक), a समचतुष्पदी, each foot having 13 (4, 4, 5) मात्राs. 19) The metrical form is गीति. 23) A nice simile with plenty of double meaning.

Page 95—lines: 7) The text of P shows a gap. As the query stands, there should follow (according to J) a description of जिनगृह after अवि य; but instead we get the description of the images. May be that the description of it is missing. For the description of images, see रायपसेणिय, para 129. 12) We get here some details of the Pūjā. 15) This and next are in द्विपदी metre. 20) See the रायपसेणिय, para 138. 24) In these verses, the Five Parameṣṭhins are saluted, and then the religious duties of house-holders and monks are enumerated in short.

Page 96—lines: 5) Here (also p. 110, line 7, but P पउमसारो) the name of मानभट in heaven is पउमवारो, but elsewhere (p. 229, line 25) पउमसारो. Looking at the various readings together, मानभट in heaven is पउमसार and मायादित्य is पउमवार. 9) All the five Jivas (of Caṇḍasoma etc.) meet here in the Saudharma-vimāna. 11) There is the श्रुंखलायमक here. For a canonical back-ground of these details see how god सूर्याभ is going to the समवसरण of महावीर in the रायपसेणियसुत्त, 28) Compare रायपसेणियसुत्त, paras 21 etc. Here we have a good description of the Samavasaraṇa, incorporating most of the conventional details about the प्रातिहार्यs etc. Compare also तिलोयपण्णत्ति (Sholapur 1943) IV, 710 ff.

Page 97—lines: 9) Here we are given a description of the प्रातिहार्यs; compare तिलोयपण्णत्ति, IV. 919 f. 27) Hereonwards follows a nice discourse on Jiva, its nature, its relation with Karman, its migration through various births, and its final liberation.

Page 99—lines: 3) This tale of a wild rat is as good as an independent, or even a detached, episode. 17) Read अणायगं ति. 19) अग्निमित्तु is an Apabhraṁśa form, Page 100—line: 12) That is a good list of the repeated instructions in the order of monks.

Page 101—lines: 4) Even the wild rat is behaving like a saint in human birth. Even a lowest being can attain liberation in due course. This gives a lesson to and holds a hope before others. 13) Rather पत्तीड for पुत्तीड. 17) Better कुरंगे घोसुद्देहि.

Page 102—lines: 18) Read पउमचंदो. Perhaps we have to read पउमवरपुत्तपुतो. 31) Note कुवलयचन्द्र is being addressed.

Page 103—lines: 17) The metre is शार्दूलविकीर्णित. 32) There is a reference here to शरत्पूर्णिमा महोत्सव.

Page 104—lines: 7) Dakṣiṇāpātha is looked upon as full of plenty, a veritable heaven indeed. 21) सन्यदाद, a branch of knowledge which deals with mining. The trees indicate the hidden wealth below: this is a common idea, see दशकुमारस्मरित, IV, p. 36 (ed. KALE, Bombay 1925). The secondary branches or roots of the Mālūra tree indicate the presence of wealth below. Is बिल्वपलासयो a form of the Gen. dual (=बिल्वपलासयोः)? The extent, nature and the depth also are indicated by the size, juice and height of the tree.

Page 106—line: 6) पंजय- or पंजर-पुरिस, perhaps a person who sits in the latticed topmost cage or cabin of the ship and views things at a distance.

Page 109—lines: 26) The two names जयश्री (p. 104. 8) and जयतुङ्ग here, refer to the same town. Better read जुष्णसेट्टिणो (see p. 105 line 10). 35) पढं, present participle Nom. Sing.

Page 110—lines: 7) See above the note on p. 96, line 5. 8) This महासेन is called विजयसेन elsewhere, see p. 162. 1. 9) See p. 92, lines 1 f.

Page 111—lines: 27) सूत्रान्तर possibly refers to some canonical text. 'जो मं परियाणइ to परियाणइ' ति may be even a quotation: it resembles the style of the Ācārāṅga-sūtra. It is a सूत्र of what is called the गतप्रयागत style Pt. BECHARDASAJI informs me that this is traced in the आवश्यकसूत्र, हरिभद्रायावृत्तिः, p. 661. 30) The Lion is called सार्धमिक. 32) Likewise जीवंधर had given कर्णजाप to a dying dog which consequently was born as god. The एकीभावस्तोत्र of बादिराज refers to it in this way: प्रापद्द्वं तव नृत्तिपदैर्जीविकेनोपदिष्टै. पापाचारी मरणसमये सारमेयोऽपि सौख्यम् । कः संदेहो यदुपलभते वासव-श्रीप्रभृत्वं जल्पञ्जाल्यैर्मोषाभिरमलैस्त्वन्नमस्कारचक्रम् ॥ १२ ॥

Page 112—lines: 4) Read तुगाई. 6) We have the शृंखलायमक here. 9) The descriptions in prose on this page (lines 9-12, 14-19 and 21-24) are affected by Apabhraṁśa forms. 21) Here the wild, if not wildly cruel, habits of the म्लेच्छ in the Vindhyan range are described. The author has given above, p. 40. lines 24 f., a good list of म्लेच्छ people; and here he gives the description of a typical म्लेच्छपहली in the Vindhya religion. These people are called irreligious, and this picture shows what the author means by religion. 27) The advent of summer is described.

Page 113—lines: 6) Apabhraṁśa forms are found in the descriptive passages on this page, see lines, 6-8, 10-12 and 21-24. 20) Some metrical defect in the first line; वाउलिया? 29) सावयगणे Nom. pl.?

Page 114—lines: 8) The elephants had enough evidence on their person that they had come from a watery spot. 23) Here is reference to आयुःशास्त्र or आयुर्वेद.

Page 115—lines: 4) The statue of Arhat is on the head of the Yakṣa. Very often the image of Pārsvanātha is found on the head of Padmāvatī: this idea is as old as Uddyotanasūri's time. In this context, Dr. U. P. SHAHA, Baroda, writes to me thus: 'About your inquiry regarding the earliest Yakṣa image having a Jina-image on top, I must say that I do not remember any image prior to about eleventh century. But Yakṣi images with Jina on top are known from at least c. sixth century (A. D.), and you will find a bronze of Ambikā (c. 6th century) illustrated as fig. 14 in my book, Akota Bronzes, published by the Government of the old Bombay State (by its Department of Archaeology and Archives). In this context the following observations of Dr. D. SHARMA (Rājasthān through the Ages, Bikaner 1966, pp. 395-6) may prove interesting: 'We have scriptural evidence too of the worship of the Yakṣarāja, Kubera. Many images of this potbellied god have been found in Rājasthān. The image of Jaina Kubera from Bānsī (near Chitor) is of excellent workmanship. It depicts miniature figures of a Jina both in the crown and the head of the deity (Researcher I, p. 18).' 12) First two verses have शृंखलायमक.

Page 116—lines: 9) This is a reference to the लक्षणशास्त्र. For a detailed conversation on the recognition of the 'पदपद्धति' see the वसुदेवहिंडी, part I, pp. 135 etc. 17) P reads अन्वितियं for दुवईखंडलयं. The metre is द्विपदी. द्विपदीखण्ड is a joint metre.

Page 117—lines: 21) Some forms show Apabhraṁśa tendency. 27) भूर्भुवःस्वः is the व्याहृति with which the गायत्रीमन्त्र (namely तत्सवितुर्वरेण्यं भर्गो देवस्य धीमहि etc.) is recited. A Brāhmaṇa could be distinguished or was characterised by this मन्त्र; otherwise he was just a beggar.

Page 118—lines: 6) Here is a list of the पुरुषार्थs of this world; so here यशस् is substituted for मोक्ष. 18) Note the Apabhramśa forms. 30) There is शृङ्खलायमक in these lines.

Page 121—lines: 1) We have similes here based on श्लेष. 4) Rather 'विदुमहुरा व ? Note the Apabhramśa tinge in the prose describing the river etc. 21) This poetic description of रेवा is quite catching.

Page 123—lines: 7) This context reminds of the parrot episode in the Kādambarī. 14) Compare Kādambarī (PETERSON'S ed. pp. 33-34) especially the expression जीर्णसितभुजंगभोगभीषणं प्रसार्य... करतलं etc. 19) दट्ठूण Infinitive of purpose. 22) मयणमंजुए is perhaps a short form (for domestic use) of मयणमंजरी above. 24) विसाहिलं, see above p. 16.23. 29) Some of these are the अनुप्रेक्षाs. 33) Are we to read राइणो जहा पिउणो 'महारायरिसिणो' etc. ?

Page 124—lines: 18) सम्मेदशिखर and शत्रुंजय were famous as holy places even in the time of Uddyotanasūri. See p. 80 above. 28) As usual, in such descriptions, we get some Apabhramśa forms. We have शृङ्खलायमक. 31) Read with J कमलेहि.

Page 126—ll. 18 f. The idea of a child being brought up in the herd of deer is not imaginary but a fact of experience. My friend Shri D. PUUTTASWAMI, Mangalore, draws my attention to a cutting from an English magazine which deserves to be reproduced in this context: 'Bedouins, hunting gazelle in the Syrian desert with the aid of a jeep, saw a strange 'animal' running with the herd. On capturing it, the tribesmen were amazed to find it was a boy about 14. The lad was taken to an asylum at Damascus, where he is being taken care of by the doctors. He can only mutter animal sounds and spends most of the time in the grounds completely naked. He will eat grass and his only drink is water from an ice-cold mountain stream. The lad runs amazingly fast, and until exhausted during the chase was able to outpace the jeep. It is thought that he is a Bedouin boy, who abandoned by his mother in the desert, had in some strange manner been living with gazelle.' The caption of the cutting is 'Real Life Tarzan'; and the photograph of the boy is given.

Page 127—lines: 1) मा पडिबंधं करेसु is the usual canonical phrase. 28) Better read भणियं एणियाए लक्खिओ etc. 30) Rather पञ्चालणा.

Page 128—lines: 3) रुक्खाइ presents some syntactical difficulty? 11) Each line has 32 मात्राs. If the verse can be split into 4 lines, then the 2nd or the 3rd have the same pattern. Are we to read जिणंदयपाए for पाए जिणयंद to suit the rhyme? 13) Each line has 31 मात्राs, with a pause after 13 मात्राs and the third Caturmātrā has five मात्राs. The author calls it गीतिका. 17) Rather आयंत for आयत्त. To converse in देशीभाषाs was looked upon as a diversion.

Page 129—lines: 3) The author shows that he is conversant with सामुद्रलक्षण. In one verse, he outlines पुरुषलक्षण in Sanskrit; but in Prākṛit, he gives elaborate details covering more than a page. It is not unlikely that he is reproducing the details from some manual on that lore. Dr. NEMICHANDRA SHASTRI, Airah, informs me that these details about सामुद्रशास्त्र deserve to be compared with those in the वाराही संहिता, for पुरुषलक्षण Chaps. 68-9 and स्त्रीलक्षण Chap. 70, and also बृहत्पराशरहोरा Chaps 75 and 81. Some items are common, but there are differences as well. 26) In this discussion which is mainly in gāthās, there are a few अनुष्टम्भ verses, see lines 26, 29; p. 130, line 27; p. 131 line 11. 33) Note ऱ्हस्स is used: perhaps he has a Sanskrit text before him.

Page 132—lines: 1) We get some details about the विद्याधर clan here. 14) That is how gods, men and Vidyādhara are to be mutually distinguished. 27) We get here the description of the mode of worship.

Page 133—lines: 15) It is interesting to note how both ऋषभ and धरणेन्द्र are being associated with the शाबरी विद्या.

Page 134—lines: 17) Here is the etymology of इक्ष्वाकुवंश, according to Jaina tradition. From his two sons भरत > आदित्यशशस् and बाहुबलि > सोमयशस् started सूर्य and चन्द्र वंशs. दृढवर्मन् > कुवलयचन्द्र belong to the latter. तस्स [भगवओ]. 25) विजया-पुरी or -नगरी is reached after crossing चिन्व्य as well as सह्य by one starting from अयोध्या. 26) The first three verses are गीतिस. All of them have शृङ्खलायमक. 33) Note the Apabhramśa forms here.

Page 135—lines: 6) This विजयापुरी is located on the shore of the Southern Ocean; see also below 155.19. 21) We get here some idea of the equipment of the caravan. Cf. Lilāvati 1065 f.

Page 136—lines: 4) Sometime the following verse or verses repeat the idea contained in the prose above. That seems to be the stylistic feature of the author. 27) Obviously तेण (भित्तेण).

Page 137—line: 8) This idea of साधर्मिक has gone a long way to consolidate the Jaina Samgha consisting of monks, nuns, laymen, and lay-women.

Page 138—lines: 9) On पत्नी see, OTTO STEIN: Jinistic Studies, p. 19. 10) सत्थाहं Gen. pl.? 31) A serious conclusion is reached through jocular or half-serious arguments.

Page 140—lines: 2) The Varnaka has some Apabhramśa forms. 29) तारुव = तरुप.

Page 141—lines: 2) Uddyotana speaks more than once about पंचमुद्रियं लोयं (see below 216.3). In this connection an observation of Dr. R. WILLIAMS (vide his thought-provoking paper 'Before Mahāvira' J.R.A.S. April 1966) may be noted: 'whilst the Śvetāmbaras hold that Rṣabha pulled out his hair in four handfuls, the Digambaras prefer to say that his loca was accomplished in five handfuls (See Śramaṇa Bhagavān Mahāvira, V, part i, p. 298)'. This difference does not seem to be sectarian. 5) This gives a good idea of what a प्रत्येकबुद्ध means in Jainism. The equipments of a new monk are noted here.

Page 142—lines: 21) Here is a nice discourse on Dharma, its practice and objective. The following details are available here: The five Astikāyas; Jiva and Pudgala, and the resultants of their mutual relation, namely, the Seven Principles, जीव, अजीव, आत्मव, बन्ध, संवर, निर्जरा and मोक्ष are fully explained in §§ 233-34.

Page 143—lines: 4) Better read मज्जं विगहा णिहा. 23) Perhaps पत्थइ for पत्थर?

Page 144—lines: 1) Better read सुद्धमं न बायरं वा. 29) Note the syntax of the sentence—एक्को मंती etc. 30) Read अबलंविऊण पावं संजोइयं जोइयं कालंतरविडंबणा-मरण-फलं.

Page 145—lines: 7) The metre is छित्तक or तोटक, having four सगण्य in each foot. 9) Upon ग्राम etc., see OTTO STEIN: Jinistic Studies, (Ahmedabad 1948) pp. 3 etc. 10) Note the syntactical looseness of the sentence, quite natural in speaking.

Page 146—line: 13) It is interesting to note how concessions in the code of good behaviour are given according to the ability of those who practise them.

Page 147—lines: 14) A nice description of the gathering of dark clouds and of the advent of rainy season. 21) This is a विपुला गाथा. 25) मज्जति is emended; but the original reading appears to have been सज्जति 'covered', or 'thatched'. 27) Some forms are in Apabhramśa.

Page 148—lines: 3) Better read मा जाण णवम्भाइ. 11) Indra-maha, Mahā-navamī, Dīpāvali and Baladevotsava appear to follow in succession after the rainy season. See प्राचीन भारतीय लोकधर्म (Ahmedabad 1964) by V. S. AGRAWAL.

Page 149—lines: 6) The prose passage has मृच्छलायमक and shows some Apabhramśa forms. The trees mentioned here belong characteristically to the Western Coast, where obviously the विजयापुरी was located. 14) Note पणि for पुण. 21) Note the Apabhramśa forms.

Page 150—lines: 4) What a realistic sketch of the style of gossip of women folk carrying water! 8) किं तीए for किन्तीए is equally justified. 18) It is a सञ्च-चट्टाणं महं perhaps a residential school to which students from different parts of India have come, for instance, 1) लाट, 2) कर्णाटक, 3) मालव, 4) कान्यकुब्ज, 5) गोल्ल or गौष्य, 6) महाराष्ट्र, 7) सीराष्ट्र, 8) ढक्क or टक्क, 9) सिरिअठ or सिरिअंग and 10) संघव. Śrikanṭha is the same as कुंजाङ्गल. See A. MASTER: BSOAS, Vol. XIII, part 4, p. 1009. See below the notes on pp. 153. Maṭhas are well-known in the South. 22) Note भाण, डोबिल्लिय, सिग्गइ are forms of plays. 25) Branches of learning studied: व्याकरण, बुद्धदर्शन, सांख्यदर्शन, वैशेषिकदर्शन, मीमांसा, नैयायिकदर्शन, अनेकान्तवाद and लोकायत. See A. MASTER: Ibid. Jainism is covered by अनेकान्तवाद. See Annals of B. O. R. I., vols. 48-49, p. 247 f.

Page 151—lines: 7) Here are enumerated secular branches of learning, covering various arts, crafts and miraculous attainments. Note the phrase 72 कलाs and 64 विज्ञानs, see above p. 22, l. 1 f. 12) Here is a specific reference to pupils who were given solely to the study of Vedas. 18) The language in which the lads from that residential school are talking is typically conversational Mid-Indian possibly imitating the contemporary spoken idiom as distinguished from the literary styles known to us in Sanskrit, Prākṛit or Apabhramśa. For some annotations on this passage, see A. MASTER: BSOAS, vol. XIII, part 4, pp. 1010 ff. जंपिओ पयत्तो—the talk or conversation started. पम्मुसइ Passive third p. sing. 19) It is interesting how pure Sanskrit words are retained as it is done in the present-day Modern Indian Languages. पच्छइ 1st p. pl. of the present. बलक 'white', 'fair'. Or is it चलक? तणए is a post-position: or its use. See 'Notes on Two Post-positions of Late Middle-Indo-Aryan, Tanaya, Resi and Resammi' by L. A. SCHWARZSCHILD: Bhāratiya Vidyā, Vol. XIX, Nos. 1-4, pp. 77 ff., Bombay 1962. 21) There seems to be some pun either on भोजन or स्पृष्ट, preferably on the latter. बणिण colloquial of वर्णय. 23) The termination °वास्तव्ये seems to be affected by the following ते. 24) अम्बोपि=वयमपि? Like अत्थि, संति also seems to serve the purpose irrespective of person and number. 26) The remark of the prince clearly indicates that these (silly) boys have hailed from different parts of the country (deśika) and their chatter is inconsistent or disconnected.

Page 152—lines: 2) यो वृत्तंत is typically colloquial; compare in Marathi जो वृत्तान्त. If one objectively analyses any speech of the educated people in any of the New-Indo-Aryan languages, it may not be much different, when judged from the point of view of literary languages like Sanskrit, Prākṛit and Apabhraṁśa: the admixture of Sanskrit words, dropping of termination and syntactic lapses. 4) This is definitely colloquial, running parallel to the literary current known now as Apabhraṁśa. 6) सहियउ=सहृदयः. सहृदय, छप्पणाय or षट्प्रज्ञ is an adept in the recitation of gāthās. 7) खाथी seems to be an imitation of colloquial pronunciation of गाथी or गाथा. 8) It is an Anuṣṭubh. Obviously, it is a mangled form of some standard lines. Dr. H. L. JAIN draws my attention to the following verse from the Pañcatantra: बुद्धिर्यस्य बलं तस्य निर्वुद्धेस्तु कुतो बलम् । पश्य सिहो मदोन्मत्तः शशकेन निपातितः ॥ Many of the copperplate-grants have a concluding line like this: यस्य यस्य वदा भूमिस्तस्य तस्य तदा फलम् । 9) The Anuṣṭubh has 32 अक्षर, while the स्कन्धक has 32 मात्रा (12+20) in a line, being more or less an extension of the gāthā. पुच्छहृ is colloquial for पुच्छहृ. Apabhraṁśa allowed variation of any vowel for any vowel, plenty of it must have been there in the spoken dialect. 11) This is a Dohaka (14-12) or द्विपद्यक (4×3, -; 4, 4--); but somehow मयंति and वत्त do not rhyme. The first two पाद have eight syllables: that is how perhaps it is mistaken as a श्लोक. 12) पठहो possibly for प(ठ)दहृ. 13) It is a good gāthā, only दृष्टा should be substituted by ददृण. °रइयराओ and अहरो are in the Acc. sing. through Apabh. °राउ and अहृ, but really °रायं and अहरं in Prākṛit. There are some Sanskrit spellings. 23) Note दिह्वा... देसवणिण. There were provincial traders, characterized by their various provincial languages (देस-भासा), which are to be distinguished from literary languages (like Sanskrit, Prākṛit, Apabhraṁśa). On these verses see A. MASTER: BSOAS, XIII-2, 1950, pp. 413-15. 24) Gollas are an itinerant tribe. They tend cows and sell medicines etc. They are akin to Ābhīras. They are described as dark. Their speech is illustrated by अडडे or अरडे, rather difficult to interpret. 25) Generally speaking Madhyadeśa is the territory bounded by the river Sarasvatī in Kurukṣetra, Allābābad, the Himalaya and the Vindhya. Here it refers to the central area of it, now-a-days covered by Hindi of which 'तेरे मेरे भाओ' is a good ancestral specimen. 26) Māgadhas are the residents of Southern Bihār: the expressions एगे ले or एओ ले (from एसे ले) have a clear Māgadhi stamp: Nom. sing. in ए and र changed to ल. 27) अन्तरवेद is the Doab between the Ganges and the Yamunā; and it was a part of the Madhyadeśa. कित्तो किम्मो must be from some predecessor dialect of Hindi. The readings of P are किं ते किं मो (=वयम्). 28) कीर refers to Kashmiris.

Page 153—lines: 1) For दक्के J reads दक्के which refers to those who come from दक्क or the Panjab. एहं=एह, तेहं=तेह, 'here or there', or 'this or that'. 2) Those who came from सिन्धुदेश spoke 'चउडय मे' चउडय=nice? 3) माहए, those who come from मरुदेश or Marwar 'अप्पां तुप्पां' remind one of 'Marwari āpām we (incl.) and Manjhi-Panjabi tupa you (LSI)'. The author is not sympathetic in describing them. 4) गूर्जर (a clan of that name) are described to be pious and diplomatic (संघिविग्रहनिपुण) spoke 'Oh, that is not good'. Dr. D. SHARMA adds the following observation on Gurjara (Rajasthan through the Ages, Bikaner 1966, p. 110). "In the Pratihāra period (c. 750-c. 1018 A.D.) itself, the earliest reference to the word, Gurjara, is found in the Kuvalaya-mālā of Uddyotana Sūri, written at Jalor, in 778 A.D., in the reign of the redoubtable Pratihāra ruler, Raṇahastin Vatsarāja. On its p. 153, we find the Gurjaras differentiated from the Saindhavas, Lāṭas, Mālavas and Māravas and described as devoted to dharma and clever in matters of peace and war. (Members of a barbarian horde could hardly have received this high praise, and that this is not flattery inspired by the author's stay in the Gurjara country can be seen from the description by Yuan Chwāng who speaks of the king of Gurjara as "distinguished for wisdom, courageous, a deep believer in the law of Buddha and one who highly honoured men of distinguished ability".) Obviously, the differentia here is provided by the geographical location of these people. If the Lāṭas, Saindhavas, Māravas, and Mālavas mean respectively, the people of Lāṭa, Sindh, Mārwar, and Mālwa, the word Gurjara should naturally stand for the people of the territory known as Gurjara. And that a territory known by this name did exist can be seen from the description on p. 282 of the same book which speaks of Śivachandra Gaṇi's visit to Bhillamāla and also of his disciple Yakṣadatta Gaṇi whose disciples beautified the Gurjara-deśa with temples (rammo Gujjaradeso jehi kao deva-harāehim). Not very far from Bhillamāla, which was thus a part of Gurjara (not only according to Yuan Chwāng but also Uddyotana Sūri) was Jalor, then ruled by Vatsarāja (ABORI, XVIII, p. 137)." 5) लट covered major parts of the present Gujarat. The forms illustrated have some resemblance with Old-Gujarati forms. 6) मालव is the territory round about उज्जयिनी. The people there spoke 'भाउय भइणी तुम्ह' would mean 'you are brother and sister', if it makes a sentence. Perhaps they illustrate some phase of Śauraseni, if not of Prākṛit in general. 7) Karnāṭaka people अडि पौडि मरे (or अडि पौडि रमरे) 'are not Kanarese, but reading aḍi (metri causa) the first two words are good Telugu for 'that go.' The author is writing in the 8th century when major portion of the Telugu area was included in Karnataka, or their boundaries were not identical with the present ones; and the script was almost common. 8) ताइए, Tājikas, i.e., Persians or Arabs; and their description is significant. The words 'isi, Kisi, misi' suggest Kiśmīś currants, but the three words seem to form the same phrase as in asi-masi-kasi-vāñijja etc.' 9) Kośāla, the Kingdom with Ayodhyā as its capital, had two sectors, Northern and Southern. The words 'jala, tala are suggestive of the Chattisgarhi jelā, telā (acc. of the relative and correlative pronouns), used in the area formerly known as Mahākosala.' 10) मरहट्टे, those hailing from महाराष्ट्र. दिण्णले and गहियल्ले correspond to Marathi past participles दिलेले and घेतलेले 'given and taken'. The Prākṛit model is obvious: दिण्ण+इल्ल and गहिय+इल्ल. As we are guided by literary specimens, which are after all limited, some margin has to be made for regional and dialectal variations (of the normal type) in the predecessor forms. The Old-Marathi preserves a form दीन्हला 'given' found in the Pāṭan inscription of A.D. 1206 see, W. DODERET: The grammar of the Jñāneśvari, BSOS IV, part 3, pp. 543-73, section 5. A form दीन्हलो is found in the ज्ञानेश्वरी also, Govt. edition, अ. १२-५३. 11) The Āndhras uttered 'अडि पुडि, रडि' which may be intended for Telugu adi, poṇḍi, raṇḍi 'that, go, come'. 12) Here eighteen देशी भाषा are referred to; but in the above verses the author has illustrated only sixteen. A. MASTER opines that the two missing Desī-bhāṣās are possibly Odra and Drāviḍī, as in the Nāṭyaśāstra अण्णाइय = अण्णाइए. The prince sees there some other people of the non-Aryan stock: the Khasas, a mountain tribe; the Pārasas, inhabitants of Pārs or Fārs; and the Babbaras who are often mentioned, but not indentified. 16) Measures of weight like पल, कर्ष, माष ann रत्ती are mentioned here. The next verse presents some difficulty: see below the marginal notes on it, Page 154—lines: 7) Note the swift style. 10) Compare अगडदत्त's story, 53-54. Rather पाडियाहोरणी. 12) The metre is प्रमाणिका (जरलग) or नाराच; the first line has four पादs, so also the second. There is some internal rhyme रणंत, झरंत ect. 14) दिट्टं तं जयकुंजरं is a good अनुष्टुप् line. 21) Many of these ideas, almost in similar words, are found in the story of अगडदत्त, included in the com. of देवेन्द्र on the Uttarādhyayana-sūtra; see verses 59 ff.

Page 155—lines: 7) Here we have पञ्च आश्चर्यs enumerated in the present context. 29) This story is found in the commentary of Devendra on the Uttarādhyayana; it is critically studied by R. FICK in his Eine Jainistische Bearbeitung der Sagar-sage. Keil, 1888; also प्राकृत कथासंग्रह ed. by Muni JINAVIJAYA, Ahmedabad 1921. 31) पावह Pass. 3rd p. sing.; see also 156.1 where the usual पाविज्जइ is used. Thus we get here a list of persons and supernatural sources consulted to know about the unknown.

Page 157—line: 19) May be that these are quotations from some निमित्तशास्त्र, verses partially akin to these are attributed to the Aṅgavidyā and quoted in the commentary of Devendra on the Uttarādhyayanasūtra, see CHARPENTIER'S Notes to his edition, p. 311 (Uppsala 1922).

Page 158—lines: 10) With a view to making the context romantic, the author has depicted the hero more as a romantic adventurer than as a pious soul ordained by Karmas to reach Vijayāpuri for the spiritual enlightenment of Kuvalayamālā. 14) Here is a poetic description of a woman, from her foot-nail to the hair on her head—this mode of describing is seen in the Ardhamāgadhī canon as well; see, for instance the description of queen Dhārīnī in the Aupapātika-sūtra, Sūtra 12. The description of Mahāvīra (Ibidem, Sūtra 16) however starts from the head and ends with the feet. 25) On the ten stages of मदनावस्था, the following verses from the story of अगडदत्त (in Devendra's com. on the उत्तराख्ययन) are interesting: निसुगिज्जइ पयडपिणं भारहरामायणसु सत्थेसु । जह दस कामावत्या होंति फुडं कामुयजणार्णं ॥ ४१ ॥ i) पढमा जणेइ चित्तं ii) बीयाए महइ संगमसुहं ति । iii) दीहुण्हा नीसासा हवति तइयाए वत्याए ॥ ४२ ॥ iv) जरयं जणइ चउत्थी v) पंचमवत्याए डज्जई अंगं । vi) न य भोयणं च रुच्चइ छुटावत्याए कामिस्स ॥ ४३ ॥ vii) सत्तमियाए मुच्छा viii) अट्टमवत्याए होइ उम्माओ । पाणाण य संवेहो ix) नवमावत्याए पत्तस्स ॥ ४४ ॥ x) दसमावत्याए गओ कामी जीवेण मुच्चए नूणं । (compare also पउमचरिय 15.46 f.). For a detailed enumeration of these from different sources, see R. SCHMIDT: Beiträge Zur Indischen Erotik, pp. 124 f., Leipzig 1902.

Page 159—lines: 18) The line कुवलयमाला etc. has some metrical ring in some parts. 29) The author has not given earlier any indication of these detailed activities of Kuvalayamālā.

Page 160—lines: 9) This context reminds one of सिंहकुमार and कुसुमावली in the Samarāi-ccakāhā, 2nd Bhava. राजहंसिका is present in both the places: Haribhadra introduces her in a painting and here engraved or cut on a भूजंपत्र. 18) Compare अहिणवदिट्टणुट्टु etc. and the द्विपदी lines below with similar verses in the समराइच्चकहा II, p. 72 JACOBI's edition. 22) अवरलिबी, some different script, other than ब्राह्मी. On some details about लिपि, please see H. L. JAIN: भारतीयसंस्कृति में जैन धर्म का योगदान (Bhopal 1962), pp. 286 ff.; A. NAHTA: जैनागमों में उल्लिखित भारतीय लिपियाँ, एवं इच्छालिपि in the नागरी प्रचारिणी पत्रिका, 75, 4, 343 f., also his सांकेतिक महाराष्ट्री लिपि का एक ग्रन्थ, कल्पना, January 1952. 24) The metre is द्विपदी, which is called दुवइसंडलयं. The second line is slightly defective.

Page 161—lines: 1) Elsewhere he is called महासेन, p. 110.8. 3) The structure is that of a gāthā, but the ring is slightly different. 16) Description of the morning. 18) This is a विपुला माया, so also the next.

Page 162—lines: 3) These are the practices of propitiation for getting a child. 9) Kuvalayamālā is dark in complexion. 21) Here is a discourse on what is heya, upādeya and upekṣa-ṇīya with reference to this and the next world.

Page 163—line: 14) He is a विद्याधरश्चमण, so he flies.

Page 164—lines: 3) The string of similes adds a grace to the simple style; see also line 8 below, and lines 7 ff. on p. 165. 11) Rather महामोहपायालेण.

Page 165—lines: 1) See p. 158.4. 17) These hyperbolic expressions show the author's mastery over expression. 27) See notes on p. 158.25.

Page 166—lines: 16) These gāthās are of the Vipulā type. 32) Strings of such similes evidence that Uddyotana is adept in his ideas and expressions.

Page 167—line: 1) The author says 'लोए सुणीयइ' because he does not accept the theory of creation. Compare शाकुन्तलम्—अस्याः सर्गविधौ प्रजापतिरभूत् etc.

Page 168—lines: 8) This context reminds one of the समराइच्चकहा II, p. 65 (JACOBI's ed.). 11) J ०रेहिर but P ०रेहिरा. 23) Very often the use of कि in this text is a forerunner of Marathi कीं.

Page 169—lines: 3) The box for betel-leaves has the shape of fish with golden wings. 12) The advent of the cold season is being described. A string of short sentences giving significant colour-strokes in a descriptive picture is a speciality of Uddyotana. 21) Compare पञ्चतन्त्र I. 26) Some forms are in Apabhraṁśa, also in 33 ff. on the next page. 33) Those who scorched themselves with five fires are qualified as Mahāmunis.

Page 170—lines: 7) These astrological details need scrutiny, especially with regard to their source. 12) The लग्नसुहूर्त is coming at night, as is the custom in some parts of India. 21) Pre-wedding preparations in the palace are being described.

Page 171—lines: 3) There is a description of the Wedding of सिंहकुमार and कुसुमावली in the समराइच्चकहा II, pp. 74 ff. 11) Compare the four मण्डल with समराइच्चकहा, p. 80. 18) These four verses are in a समचतुष्पदी metre, called संकुलक; each line of which has 16 मात्रा (6, 4, 4, 2). From the second verse onwards, the lines are interlinked with शृंखलायमक.

Page 172—lines: 4) Note how a long passage, quite a nice one, is absent in P. 10) There is a slight metrical defect which can be removed by reading मुयह् for मुंचह; so also in 12 where the emendation is suggested, or अवषेहिही. 15) This passage is found only in one of the Mss. 18) चोरि Gerundive form; cf. Kannaḍa forms like māḍi. 28) हुण्णिप्पउ is not recorded in the PSM.

Page 173—lines: 8) The expression अणायसील etc. is really out of place, because they are now husband and wife; the whole atmosphere, therefore, is a bit artificial though quite catching and romantic. 17) Either the whole episode is a later addition, at a second thought; or we need here a sentence तत्रो गिगञ्जो सहीसत्यो । Once the friends had gone out (p. 172.4), but they were again called in to arbitrate this dispute. The context does not suffer, even if this episode is omitted. 25) सह+आपीता=सहाविया? 32) विजया is situated right on the sea-shore; and its southern fort-wall is washed by the waves of the ocean. 35) Read करवत्सुकंतमाणमीणयं.

Page 174—lines: 7) Here is a दण्डक in four lines: each line opens with 6 ल and a number of रणस (—७—); so it may be called in general उत्कलिका or in particular प्रचित्त (as defined by some). 14) The metre is संकुलक, see the note on p. 171.18. 20) These विदग्धs are also known by the name छप्पण्य or षट्प्रज्ञ. 21) (1) प्रहेलिका is a 'riddle or conundrum' thus defined in the Kāvyaadarśa (III.97) which enumerates sixteen sub-types of it: क्रीडागोष्ठीविनोदेषु तज्ज्ञैराकीर्णमन्त्रणे । परव्यामोहने चापि सोपयोगाः प्रहेलिकाः ॥ Bāṇa mentions it—कदाचिद् अक्षरच्युतक-मात्राच्युतक-बिन्दुमती-गूढचतुर्थपादप्रहेलिका-प्रदानादिभिवंनितासंभोगसुखपराङ्मुखः (ed. PETERSON, Bombay 1900, p. 7, line 22; see his notes on the same, especially the extracts from the com.). See also Dr. P. V. KANE's notes on the Sāhityadarpaṇa I.2, p. 23 f (Bombay 1951). The Kāmasūtra (I.3) puts it as one of the कलाs. The reading (2) वृद्धाञ्जो is uncertain; P reads instead चूलाञ्जो. Is it गूढाञ्जो? (3) अंतिम-क्खराञ्जो=अस्त्याक्षरिका, which is also known as प्रतिमाला. On this see P. K. GODE: The history of the Art of capping verses, in the Dr. S. K. Belvalkar Felicitation Volume (Delhi 1957), pp. 169-74. These three, according to Uddyotana, are quite popular, current even among the cowherd boys. 25) (4) बिन्दुमती—According to the definition given by the author the last syllable also should have been an alphabet. PETERSON in his notes, referred to above, gives an illustration which has bindus in the first and the last syllables.

Page 175—lines: 3) छप्परियासुं? (5) The name of this riddle is अट्ट° or अट्टाविडञ्जो. The first line gives a clear definition of this. 4) This line and the illustrated verse are in Sanskrit. 10) (6) प्रश्नोत्तर of which so many alternatives or varieties are known, arising out of grammatical or dialectal etc. variations. See. Hema. Kāvyañuśāsana, v. 4 (Bombay 1938), p. 323, especially the Viveka. 14) By प्राकृत the author has the standard dialect (either महाराष्ट्री or शौरसेनी) in view: that is why he mentions also अपभ्रंश, पेशाची and मागधी. 15) गूढोत्तर is an important variety of प्रश्नोत्तर which is illustrated by Haribhadra also in his समराञ्चकहा pp. 610 f. 21) (7) पट्टटं (=स्पष्टार्थं or पृष्टार्थं?). 23) The author is using some explanatory words in Sanskrit. कः प्रजापतिरुद्दिष्टः etc. is a good श्लोक, with three pādas in Sanskrit and one Prakrit.

Page 176—lines: 1) (8) अक्षरच्युतकम् is illustrated in the Notes of PETERSON referred to above thus: अक्षरस्य वर्णस्य च्युतिर्यत्र तदक्षरच्युतकं यथा—कुर्वन्दिवाकरश्लेषं दधच्चरणडम्बरम् । देव यौष्माकसेनायाः करेणुः प्रसरत्यसौ ॥ अत्र करेणुपदात्कारच्युतौ द्वितीयार्थप्रतीतिः । 4) (9) मात्राच्युतकम् is thus illustrated in the Notes of PETERSON referred to above: मात्रायाश्च्युतिर्यत्र तन्मात्राच्युतकं यथा—मूलस्थितिमधःकुर्वन्मात्रजुष्टो गताक्षरैः । विटः सेव्यः कुलीनस्य तिष्ठतः पथिकस्य सः ॥ विटपदादिकारमात्राच्युतौ वटस्यार्थस्य प्रतीतिः । See also Hemacandra's Kāvyañuśāsana, v. 4 (Bombay 1938), p. 315. 6) (10) बिन्दुच्युतकम्. 9) (11) गूढचतुर्थपादम्, Kāvyañuśāsana p. 323. 13) (12) भणितव्यता—what is intended to be said is not apparently said. 15) (13) हृदय-गाथा or -ग्राह्या, हृदय seems to indicate the central theme. 17) (14) पोम्हं=पद्मम्. The Kāvyañuśāsana (p. 321) Viveka, illustrates what is called पद्मबन्धः, certain syllables being arranged in the lotus. One author gives two illustrations. 21) (15) गाथार्थम्. In both the gāthās the second half is identical. 25) (16) संविधानकम्. The prose lines explain the significance; णरए as well as णर ए (=अरे पुरिस ए तए त्ति). 30) (17) गाथाराक्षसम्. The idea underlying this is explained in line 31. 32) (18) प्रथमाक्षररचितम्. The first letters of the four quarters of the Gāthā are meant.

Page 177—lines: 1) Better combine the readings of both J and P, and read thus with a little emendation 'दासो हं ते' त्ति कामयंतेण. 2) छप्पण्य=षट्प्रज्ञ. See my paper on the छप्पण्य-गाथाञ्जो in JOR, vol. XI, 4, Baroda 1962. 15) विजयापुरी is on the shore and close to the forest. 28) Here is a catching discourse on Samyaktva, religious faith or spiritual conviction, which is a shelter and safety to the soul in Samsāra. It is likened here to 'a plank in the sea', 'a caravan in the forest', 'a track in the thicket', 'a lake in the desert', 'food in famine', 'fire in winter', 'the wish-giving jewel for the poor', 'a supporting branch in a rushing stream', 'armour on the battle-field', 'sun in darkness', 'a lake in the burning forest', 'a supporting branch on a precipice', etc.

Page 178—lines: 25) The similes are quite effective. 32) The author has a fund of useful information from which he draws suitable illustrations; and his discourses carry a great effect on the minds of his readers and hearers.

Page 179—lines: 7) Read जलय for जलग्न. 11) उ in some of these words may stand for short ओ. 19) Better जियाण for जियाय.

Page 180—lines: 24) That gives some ideas of the preparations of the Journey to the east. 31) This context reminds of Śakuntalā who takes leave of trees etc. in the fourth Act of अभिज्ञानशाकुन्तलम्, IV.8 ff.

Page 181—lines: 16) Here कुवलयमाला is taking leave of domestic birds and beasts. 25) Here are the rituals before the प्रयाण.

Page 182 line: 6) Here follows a poetic appreciation, in comparison and contrast, of prince Kuvalayacandra and princess Kuvalayamālā, by themselves and in relation to others.

Page 183—lines: 19) विजयापुरी is obviously different from जयन्ती पुरवरी. 24) Here follows an exposition of good and bad शकुन्स, perhaps from some शकुन्शास्त्र.

Page 184—lines: 10) Compare पउमचरिय, 94.35-36. 25) On his way back from Vijayāpurī the prince first crosses the Sahya mountain. 28) The monk is neither a Tāpasa nor a Tridaṇḍin. His three characteristics are: (i) The hair on his head is pulled out lately; (ii) he is wearing white garments; and (iii) he has a bunch of feathers in his hand, apart from his captivating appearance. 33) As his eyes are winking and his feet touching the ground, he could not be a god; but he is a विद्याधर who has recently entered the order of monks.

Page 185—lines: 8) Lāṭa-deśa is said to be known for Deśabhāṣās. 18) Here is introduced a screen or scroll on which the संसार-चक्र is painted. 21) Here follows an attempt to present various sketches from this world, of persons showing their activities and the consequences to which they are subjected here and elsewhere. 27) A king with his activities. 32) The robbers and the robbed.

Page 186—lines: 6) The cultivator and the head of the family, their minor and major sins. 18) The plight of the family-members on the death of the head of the family.

Page 187—lines: 6) In this paragraph the amorous enjoyments of the couple and their consequences are described. 20) Singer, wrestler, wealthy, learned, ascetic, archer, a woman in delivery pains etc. are depicted in this para.

Page 188—lines: 8) Wedding and the stages, child to old man, both happy and unhappy, are depicted in this para. 20) A king, a greedy sea-farer, a fisherman, a trader, pious men etc. are sketched in this para. 31) Hereon follows a sketch of the animals, killing each other with natural antipathy, eating one another for food; and they are all suffering under the sway of rāga and dveṣa.

Page 189—line: 18) This para depicts the scenes from hell.

Page 190—line: 14) Hereonwards the मोक्ष is sketched; and the effect of all these scenes on Bhānu.

Page 191—line: 1) This episode gives some glimpses of the contemporary vocations and ways for earning livelihood and wealth.

Page 192-3—line: 27) Hereonwards we get symbolically spiritual interpretation of agriculture (l. 27), tending cattle (l. 29), seafaring (l. 33), mining (p. 193, l. 2), carrying merchandise (l. 4), begging (l. 6), gambling (8), fighting (12), wrestling (14), miraculous eye-paint (15), managing a demon (18), miraculous spell (20), and winning divine favour (22).

Page 194—lines: 1) Better जो एत्थ उज्जाणे वट्टइ सो तुमं । 18) Here we get some information about initiation into the order and equipments of a monk. 33) The imagery of the morning twilight is very nicely put.

Page 195 lines: 12) Here we are introduced to Dhātuvādins, alchemists, who are busy in converting baser metal into gold. 20) Read मूसा अंतोकढंत-धाउ-रसा । 25) Here some glimpses of the technique of alchemy are available. 29) सुव्वं and तंबं are synonyms. 30) नरेन्द्र: a charmer, magician.

Page 196—lines: 2) नरेन्द्र has a double meaning, a king, and also a magician. 5) किं अस्थि...[अह्व for अह्वा]...रसबद्धो ।...वि उक्करिसो ॥ is a metrical unit. 32) जोणीपाहुड is the name of an ancient text; see, for some details about it, J. C. JAIN: प्राकृतसाहित्य का इतिहास, pp. 673 etc.; also Anekānta, vol. II, pp. 485 f.

Page 197—lines: 6) Rather जोणीपाहुडम्मि भणियं, see p. 196, line 32 above, for a similar reference to जोणीपाहुड. Or whatever the Sarvajña has preached in this respect is जोणीपाहुड itself. 20) That indicates the great authority of the जोणीपाहुड. 21) अत्थि is used for the plural. 22) What are known as Dhātuvādins in common parlance have three specific classes: क्रियावादिन्, नरेन्द्र and धातुवादिन्. They are further defined and explained.

Page 198—lines: 7) Here the morning is being described. 11-12) These two verses show, with vowel-grade variation here and there, 24 (11-13) मात्राs in each line; and the pattern may be called अबदोहक. Better read चक्कायए with J. 13) This is a gāthā. 18) These three Sanskrit verses are in the अनुष्टुप् metre. 23) Here we get some idea of his, or of any prince of that time, travelling paraphernalia. 27) Read उच्छल्लिएँ, or उच्छल्लिए हूलबोले.

Page 199—lines: 17) Are we to read ढं ढं for डड्ढं? 28) Here is a वर्णक of the town decoration.

Page 200—lines: 8) The ceremony of यौवराज्याभिषेक is described here in this paragraph. In this context, please note the observations of Dr. D. SHARMA (Rajasthan through the Ages, Bikaner 1966, p. 314): "No book gives a description of the Yuvarāja's rights and duties. A fond father must have left much to his son. (See the Upamitibhava-prapañchākathā, pp. 237-238, Tilakamañjarī, pp. 93, Kuvalayamālā, p. 200). By giving him an impressive coronation, attended by all the influential sections of the society, he tried to ensure his peaceful accession and mostly succeeded in his objective. Led by the ruler, the Mahasāmantas shouted, "Victory to the Yuvarāja", as they poured on him scented water from gold pitchers, interspersed with auspicious articles like tender shoots of leaves, lotuses and other flowers (Kuvalayamālā, p. 200). And further solemnity must have been added to the accession by various ceremonies. The minimum age at which a Kumāra was made a Yuvarāja, probably, was 16 years. It was not necessary that he be 25 years old, as assumed by some writers on Ancient Indian Polity". 11) जोक्कारिओ=जयकारिओ=जयकारितः.

Page 201—lines: 16) This indicates how कुलधर्म (in which the कुलदेवता played an important rôle) was important. 21) That is how the same mother-deity gets different designations or names under different contexts. 28) मात्रा and वर्ण(क) refer to written symbols for vowels and letters (in general). Possibly -वर्णय stands separate and without case-termination. It is a good description of a palm-leaf Ms: The leaves (lit. the bunch of leaves) are as long as the wooden boards (पट्टान्त, or even पट्टान्तः), between which they are packed. The script is ब्राह्मी; and the letters which are inscribed on palm-leaves are covered with the fluid or powder of मरकत.

Page 202—lines: 1) This paragraph summarises the fundamentals of the Dharma which the Kuladevatā has given to him in that Mss. Mokṣa or Liberation is achieved through darsana, jñāna and cāritra. The five Vows: Ahimsā, Satya, Asteya, Brahmacharya and Aparigraha are to be practised. All beings, like oneself, yearn for sukha and dread duḥkha; so one should be kindly and friendly to all the beings, both trasa and sthāvara, treating them all like oneself. Mind, speech and body must be duly disciplined for proper behaviour; and one should lead an austere life cultivating qualities like ksamā etc. The passions should be subdued without any pretence; and ultimately one should give up the world, plunged in study and ever intent on Jina who is free from rāga and dveṣa. It is thus that the self is realised. This Dharma gives the fruit of Mokṣa and is the source of all happiness. 12) Amitagati's Sanskrit counterpart runs thus—सत्त्वेषु मैत्री गुणेषु प्रमोदं क्लिष्टेषु जीवेषु कृपापरत्वम् । माध्यस्थभावं विपरीतवृत्तौ सदा ममात्मा विदधानु देव ॥ All these go back to a Sūtra of Umāsvāti—मैत्रीप्रमोदकरुण्यमाध्यस्थानि च सत्त्वगुणाधिकक्लिश्यमान-विनयेषु । त० सू० ७-११. 17) जयं=जं. 33) दिक्खा, initiation rather than renunciation.

Page 203—lines: 1) Dharma, as an allround socio-religious organisation, needs at least the following constituents: an object of reverence, scripture, teacher and a group of followers. But often dharma is used in a limited sense also; and it means, some ritual, some belief, some cult, some tenet, some tradition, some custom and so on. It is in this limited sense that the author is presenting different dharmas which the king rejects one after the other, because they do not tally with what the Kuladevatā has given to him in the scriptural Ms. It is better that we read अम्हंचउ, cf. Konkaṇi, आमचो, agreeing with धम्मो. 21) What the religious teachers are going to state is धर्मविशेष, and not Dharma as a whole or in its entirety. 23) This corresponds to the Buddhistic view, stated possibly in contrast to the Jaina view which is given in that text by the Kuladevatā. 27) The two view-points, given in lines 27 and 31, look apparently alike: that may be the reason why J omits the first and P omits the second. Both of them have the Sāṃkhya terminology as their basis. The first is specifically attributed to Tridaṇḍins but the second is stated anonymously. 35) Equating Kṛṣṇa with Paramātmān, this verse echoes many bits from the भगवद्गीता—see, for instance, VI-29, 31; XIII-16, 27; XVIII-20 etc. Compare also the Śvetāśvatara VI-11—एको देवः सर्वभूतेषु गूढः etc. Cf. सूयगंडं 2.6.47. Also the verse एक एव हि भूतात्मा भूते भूते व्यवस्थितः । एकधा बहुधा चैव दृश्यते जलचक्रवत् (सत्यशासनपरीक्षा § 6).

Page 204—lines: 3) In lines 3 and 5, Brahmanical sacrifices are put forth as the religious practices. 9) See the variant line in P. 11) Here the case for वानप्रस्थाश्रम is being pressed. 13) See how lines are improved upon in one or the other Ms. 15) Dāna is the highest dharma of the house-holders. 18) P omits lines 18-21 and J omits 22-25. Their contents are such as to induce one to argue that they are alternative passages or both can have a legitimate place in the text. In the first view, the term अद्वैत is being understood in a different context. In line 22, are we to read स द्द्वैत-वाय-(स द्वैतवाद)? 27) This is a typical case of devotional dedication carried to extreme: some such cases are reported even to-day; and social reformers are up against them. 31) This is self-immolation in fire or water as a part of religious end. Such practices are reported at various localities; see K. K. HANDIQUI: Yasastilaka and Indian Culture, pp. 391 f., especially foot-note 6.

Page 205—lines: 1) एवं ब्राह्मण-मरणं would have been more suited for Jaina terminology. 3) The king, while rejecting this view, is putting forth the Jaina view, which is prescribed primarily for monks: these are socially beneficial acts which involve अल्पारम्भ, inevitable in the case of a layman. सावद्वलेशो बहुपुण्यराशौ । 5) Note the alternative line given by J, which is less popular in expression. 6) On this point, the author has expressed himself more than once earlier: internal purity, by removing Karmic dirt, is more important than outward cleanliness, achieved by bathing in holy waters, or at holy places. 9) The alternative verse of J is quite dignified. 11) Here is a case made for Varṇāśramadharmā in refutation of which, the Jaina definition धम्मो वत्थुसहावो is stated. 15) Building of temples for the worship of god is accepted by both, but the king raises the point 'which god?'. 19) The reference is possibly to an image of man (representing some god?) made of earth is to be created and some mantras are to be repeated before it with a view to burn one's sins. 23) Dhyāna, as means of Mokṣa, is accepted, but the king wants it to be accompanied by tapas, austerities, śīla, rules of good behaviour, and niyama, self-imposed restrictions. 27) Obviously the king means that विनय should be shown to those who are deserving, but not to पावजण simply because they are elderly etc. 31) This is the patent view of the नास्तिक school. 35) This refers to giving gifts to Brāhmaṇas.

Page 206—lines: 3) This seems to be the view of Kāruṇikas 'who also according to Vācaspati Miśra were one of the Śaiva sects. As the name Kāruṇika, however, alternates with that of Kāruka-siddhāntins in the commentaries of the Śāṅkara-bhāṣya on the Brahmasūtras and the Kālāmukhas in the commentaries of Rāmānuja and Keśava Kāśmīrin, the three terms, Kāruṇika, Kāruka and Kālāmukha can probably be equated' (Rajasthan through the Ages, Bikaner 1966, pp. 412-13). 7) No one has any right to kill any one on any pretext—that is the stand of the king. 9) The point at issue is not clear. 11) This is an interesting view that the पंडर-भिक्षु wants to avoid all animal products, treating them on par with flesh. Haribhadra also refers to them and their view (Samarāṅgacakāhā, pp. 552-53, ed. H. JACOBI, Calcutta 1926). On the exact meaning and identification of पाण्डुर-भिक्षु, see B. J. SANDESARA: A Note on the word Śveta-bhikṣu, Journal of the Oriental Institute, XVI, No. 2, pp. 120 f. These ascetics possibly besmeared their bodies with ashes, and hence called so. Early tradition identifies them with Ājīvikas. In this connection see N. SHASTRI: Development of Religion in South India, Longman's Publication 1963, p. 115. Paṇḍara seems to be a non-Brahmin temple priest. 19) The Hitopadeśa (1-183) has a verse like this—येन शुक्लीकृता हंसा शुकाश्च हरितीकृताः । मयूराश्चिचिता येन स ते वृत्ति विधास्यति ॥ The king makes it plain that Karma is only another name of Vidhi. 27) Īśvara, as the guiding force behind human activities, is rejected by the king. The author of the Rājasthan through the Ages (Bikaner 1966), pp. 396 ff. has some comparative observations on these religious tenets and rites. 33) There are many people who are capable of discriminating between Dharma and Adharma—that is how and why some people practise renunciation. 35) Knowledge is considered to be more important than good behaviour. This may be an attack against some Sāṃkhya followers. See K. K. HANDIQUI: Yasastilak and Indian Culture (Sholapur 1949), p. 229.

Page 207—lines: 3) This is the Jaina doctrine according to which one should abstain from five sins and adore Arhat as deity. This tallies well with what was written in the Ms. given by the Kuladevatā. 9) Every one is free to practise the religion professed by him, whether it is or is not acceptable to the king. 11) Dharma is based on the Āgama which constitutes the words of an Āpta who is free from rāga and dveṣa etc. (line 14). Samantabhadra's description of āpta is helpful in this context (रत्नकरण्डक ५-७) आप्तेनोत्सन्नदीपेण सर्वज्ञेनागमेशिना । भवितव्यं नियोगेन नान्यथा ह्याप्तता भवेत् ॥ क्षुत्तिपासाजरातङ्कजन्मान्तकभयस्मयाः । न रागद्वेषमोहाश्च यस्याप्तः स प्रकीर्त्यते ॥. The knowledge of Āgama is inherited, like the throne, through a succession of Teachers. Why the Āgama is authentic and authoritative is explained in lines 25-26. 34) Note the distinction between कुलधर्म and मोक्षधर्म.

Page 208—lines: 1) In this paragraph the prince reviews his career upto this time. 22) When a monk says धर्मलाभ, it is only a blessing. Compare in this context the other expression सद्धर्मवृद्धिरस्तु more current in the South than in Gujarat.

Page 209—lines: 9) Here we get some details of the दीक्षाविधि. 16) This is from the उत्तराध्ययनसूत्र III.1. This and the next paragraph explain fully this verse. 18) This is a detailed explanation of what is known as युगशमिलादृष्टान्त, which illustrates how rare the human birth is. On the rarity of human birth, Mātreceta gives a similar illustration in his Adhyardhasataka: सोऽहं प्राप्य मनुष्यत्वं ससद्धर्ममहोत्सवम् । महार्णवयुगच्छिद्रकूर्मग्रीवार्पणीपमम् ॥ ५ ॥

Page 210—lines: 1) Here follows the उपनय, explanatory application, of the दृष्टान्त noted above. 12) Even if one is born as a man, to belong to a worthy family etc. and to get Jina-dharma are something equally rare. Compare उत्तर० III.1, X.4 ff. That Jina-dharma is rare is nicely explained with a number of apt similes.

Page 212—lines: 1) एवं च तस्स मुणिणो has a metrical ring. The Daṇḍa should be put after कालो, and not after कुवलयचंदस्स. 6) The author explains how one's Karmas are all powerful and how their consequences are certain and cannot be escaped. 10) A philosophical attitude like this that one is responsible for the consequences of one's own thoughts, words and acts definitely enables the individual to behave better and supplies a stable base for the moral balance of the society. This is really to the credit of the Jaina teachers that they have been able to evolve a philosophy of conduct uninfluenced by any reliance upon Super-natural intervention or guidance. 32) Uddyotana stands almost unparalleled in this peculiar style of presenting a string of short and effectively varied sentences and clauses.

Page 213—lines: 7) युवराज is de facto entrusted with the powers of the king: of course, the context may not allow us to generalise about the contemporary practice. 14) Herconwards is expressed a genuine yearning for adopting the life of renunciation characteristic of a Śramana or Jaina monk. 23) This shows how renunciation even during boy-hood was lauded at the time of Uddyotana; to-day, however, though now and then practised, it is not looked upon with favour by the society in general.

Page 214—lines: 6) Some of the similes are quite catching. 13) In the view of the author, it is never too early to adopt śrāmaṇya: perhaps boy-hood is better suited for its adoption. 16) The two verses, one in line 16 and the other in line 18, are parallelly drafted: What is true of Sūrya is also true of the Jina-sūrya. 20) It is a prayer in Sanskrit and the metrical form is अनुष्टुप्. Ratnaprabha's Sanskrit Digest reads लोक for भोग. 24) See above p. 183, line 13 f. 31) The Sanskrit text (p.* 72.7) rightly renders the last pāda thus—धर्मस्य त्वरिता गतिः । Page 215—lines: 12) The normal form of blessing is धर्मलाभ. 28) ए is possibly a contraction of एय or एवं.

Page 216—lines: 4) A गच्छ was assigned to him. It obviously means a party or group of monks organised for विहार or tour; see also line 6 below. 22) They are called सुभाषित.

Page 217—lines: 10) Note the Mas. Nom. sing. in ए. 21) Here the setting of the Sama-vasaraṇa of Mahāvīra is comparatively simple: only three items are mentioned—प्राकारत्रय, आसनरत्न and रक्ताशोकपादप. 28) Here शिव stands for मोक्ष; naturally the reading जिणं मौत्तु gives better sense. Mokṣa is the real shelter and that is reached through Samyaktva (Cāritra or Kiriya?) Jñāna and Darśana. Samyaktva is variously explained here. We can suitably read सम्मत्तगणकिरियातिएण etc. 29) Here सम्यक्त्व, ज्ञान and दर्शन are mentioned (also at line 13, next page); elsewhere सम्यक्त्व and दर्शन mean the same, and the third item is चरण, किरिया or चारित्र. May be that चारित्र is being partly included under सम्यक्त्व.

Page 218—lines: 10) Here the characteristics of a सम्यग्दृष्टिजीव are being given. Compare सर्वार्थसिद्धि on the त० सू० I. 2—तत् [सम्यग्दर्शनं] द्विविधं, सरागवीतरागविषयभेदात् । प्रशमसंवेगानुक्म्पास्तिकयाद्यभिव्यक्तिलक्षणं प्रथमम् । आत्मविशुद्धिमात्रमितरत् । 11) See the discussion of the भावनाs, or the attendant clauses of the व्रतs in the तत्त्वार्थाधिगमसूत्र, VII, 11—मैत्रीप्रमोदकारुण्यमाध्यस्थानि च सत्त्वगुणाधिककिलश्यमाना-विनयेषु । 16) Compare त० सू० VII. 12—जगत्कायस्वभावौ वा संवेगवैराग्यार्थम् । 21) Here are being explained the दोषs or अतिचारs of सम्यक्त्व; compare त० सू० VII. 23—शङ्काकांक्षाविचिकित्साज्यदृष्टि-प्रशंसासंस्तवाः सम्यग्दृष्टेरतिचाराः । Pūjyapāda raises the point how they could be just five when elsewhere they are enumerated, in their negative aspects, as eight limbs of सम्यक्त्व, see the Ratnakaraṇḍaka-śrāvakācāra 11-18. 31) These pithy instructions summarise, more or less, what is discussed above.

Page 219—lines: 4) By saying एयं दंसण-रयणं, the author takes सम्यक्त्व and दर्शन to be identical. 7) Jñāna must be backed by Darśana and Carāṇa. 8) Better उवएसा with P. 13) Here we get the basic justification of the doctrine of Ahimsā. 17) Hereonwards we get some apparently 'flimsy' arguments to defend or justify हिंसा; some of them are interesting in view of the basic philosophical or moral approach. 29) Cf. त० सू० VII. 3—प्रमत्तयोगात्प्राणव्यपरोपणं हिंसा । 30) Cf. सिद्धसेन (in his द्वात्रिंशिका)—वियोजयति चासुभिर्न च वधेन संयुज्यते, शिवं च न परोपमदंपरुषस्मृतेर्विद्यते । वधायतनमभ्युपैति च परात्र निघ्नन्नपि, त्वयायमतिदुर्गमः प्रशमहेतुरुद्योतितः ॥ ३-१६.

Page 220—lines: 1) The first महाव्रत is duly observed by one who adopts the five समित्तिs; but the list of the so-called Samitis here combines two items, known as भावनाs and समित्तिs elsewhere—वाङ्मनोशुप्तीर्यादाननिक्षेपणसमित्यालोकितपानभोजनानि पञ्च । त० सू० VII. 4 and ईर्याभाषणदाननिक्षेपो-त्सर्गाः समितयः । Ibid IX. 5. See also the Ācārāṅga, Book II, Lecture 15, i. 9) Here the second vow मसावायविरमणं is defined and its consequences here or elsewhere are explained. 15) अलीकवचन is of three kinds: सद्भावप्रतिषेध, अर्थान्तरभाषण and निन्दा which are duly defined. 19) Truth must serve, and is subordinated to, Ahimsā. 23) It is to be guarded by five भावनाs which are explained hereafter. The त० सू० mentions them thus: क्रोधलोभभीरुत्वहास्यप्रत्याख्यानान्यनुवीचिभाषणं च पञ्च । VII. 5. 27) Better इहलोयाजीव. The seven kinds of fear are thus enumerated: इहपरलोयत्ताणं अगुत्तिमरणवेय-णाकस्सा । सत्तविहं भयभेदं निद्दिट्ठं जिणवरिदेहि ॥ see Śubhacandra's Sk. com. on the Kattigeṃvānuppekkhā (Agas 1960) p. 232. 30) Hereonwards अदिण्णादाणविरमण is explained. 32) That is the rationale of this vow: much the same as in the case of Ahimsā.

Page 221—lines: 1) The third महाव्रत is guarded by five Bhāvanās, which agree more with the enumeration in the Ācārāṅga, II, 15, iii, p. 206-7 (JACOBI'S Translation) than with the one in the Tattvārthasūtra which runs thus: शून्यागारविमोचितावासपरोपरोधाकरणभैक्ष्यशुद्धिसद्धर्माविसंवादाः पञ्च । VII. 6. 9) The fourth महाव्रत is मैथुनविरति or ब्रह्मचर्ये. The characteristics and consequences of sexual pursuits are described; and then follow the five Bhāvanās, the first being a little different from those in the Tattvārthasūtra: स्त्रीरागकथाश्रवणतन्मनोहराङ्गनिरीक्षणपूर्वरतानुस्मरणवृष्येष्टरसस्वशरीर-संस्कारत्यागाः । VII. 7. Cf. उत्तराध्ययन 16. 25) The first line presents some metrical handicap: B.tter इत्थीपसुपंडवज्जियाएँ वसतीएँ अच्छइ णीसंगो ।, and it is a विपुला type. 31) The fifth vow is परिग्रहविरति. Greed is the root cause of attachment for possessions; and it makes him unhappy here and elsewhere. 32) Note the popular verse: अर्थानामर्जने दुःखं दुःखं संरक्षणे तथा । आये दुःखं व्यये दुःखं धिगर्थाः कष्टसंश्रयाः ॥

Page 222—lines: 4) The five Bhāvanās which sustain well or guard this last महाव्रत are these: मनोज्ञामनोज्ञेन्द्रियविषयरागद्वेषवर्जनानि पञ्च ॥ VII. 8. The author often calls these भावनाs as समित्तिs. 5) त्रिगुत्ति, guarding mind, speech and body, and त्रिदण्ड refers to hurtful behaviour through mind, speech and body: thus both amount to the same contents, put positively and negatively. The author says त्रिदण्डविरतमनः; has he in view three-fold acts, कृत, कारित and अनुमोदित?

Otherwise the use of मनस् loses significance. 8) Note the distinction between अणुव्रत and महाव्रत; the former is prescribed for a limited period in the case of a house-holder and the latter is prescribed for a monk for the whole of his life. 9) Hereonwards there is an exposition of three गुणव्रतस and four शिक्षाव्रतस, which stand thus—दिग्देशानर्थदण्डविरतिसामायिकप्रोषधोपवासोपभोगपरिभोगपरिमाणातिथिसंविभागव्रतसंपन्नश्च । त० सू० VII. 21. For details see also the उवासगदसाओ. On the enumeration of गुणव्रतस and शिक्षाव्रतस there are minor differences here and there. 16) Compare मारुणान्तिकीं सल्लेखनां जोषिता । त० सू० VII. 22. 19) Hereonwards the अतिचारस of the above vows and संलेहणा are described. Compare उवासगदसाओ I. 45 ff. and त० सू० VII. 25 ff. Uddyotana appears to follow the Tattoārthasūtra closely.

Page 223—line: 4) The term शील is used for the गुण and शिक्षाव्रतस; see also the त० सू० VII. 24.

Page 224—lines: 7) Here वम्पापुरी is mentioned; but elsewhere, p. 217, line 11, it is काकन्दी.

17) अनङ्गकुमार is the name of Mahāvira in one of his earlier births. 31) सक्कारो=संस्कारः or सत्कारः?

Page 225—lines: 7) 'you yourself get burnt'. 13) गारुहिल्लिए=गारुहिल्लिए. 24) Some of the expressions have a metrical ring.

Page 227—lines: 1) Hereonwards there follows a fluent exposition of the twelve Anupreksās. 1) अनित्य-, 19-20; 2) अशरण-, 21-23; 3) संसार-, 24-32; 4) एकत्व-, next page: 1-4; 5) अन्यत्व-, 5-8; 6) अशुचित्व-, 9-23; 7) आसन्नव-, 24—(next page) 2; 8) संवर-, 3; 9) निर्जरा-, 4-7; 10) लोक-, 8; 11) धर्म-, 9; and 12) बोधिदुर्लभत्व-, 10-11. The enumeration agrees partly with त० सू० and partly with other Prākṛit sources. For a detailed discussion about them, see my Intro. to the Kārttikeyānupreksā (Agas 1960).

Page 228—lines: 11) The author gives here his ideas about digestive process inside.

25) वेगसरी(?). 28) Some of the illustrations are interesting.

Page 229—lines: 6) Are we to read विरम्मए for च रम्मए? 19) Better read धिईए for दिट्ठीए.

25) See the notes above on p. 96, line 5 and p. 110, line 7. There is some confusion between the names in heaven (पद्मसार and पद्मवर) of मानभट and मायादित्य.

Page 230—lines: 1) Here, in this paragraph, the author makes out the point that a Samyag-dṛṣṭi, without good conduct (a-virata) will be unhappy; but, if he is endowed with good conduct (virati), i.e., he abstains from all sins and is pure in mind, he is happy. 12) This is an अनुष्टुप् verse. 13) The term पण्हावागरण obviously means questions and their elucidations (in reply): thus the contents included under the title पण्हावागरणाइ are out of place. 20) The grades of existence, the physical disabilities and equipments, intellectual gifts, possessions and other worldly environments depend on one's own Karmas; and what Karma lead to what types of consequences is elaborated here in §§356 onwards. 32) The tendencies and acts which lead the soul to hell (lines 32 to p. 231. line 1); see त० सू० VI. 15—बह्वारम्भपरिग्रहत्वं नारकस्यायुषः ।

Page 231—lines: 2f.) The tendencies and acts which lead to different gatis (ll. 2-4), to different genders (ll. 5-7), to duration of life (ll. 8-9), to comforts (ll. 10-11), to fortune (ll. 12-13), to grades of intelligence (ll. 14-15), to pangs, fortitude, and fruitfulness (ll. 16-21), to frustration (ll. 22-25), to defective organs, different social status and unbalanced routine (ll. 260 to p. 232, l. 4); but one who is endowed with three jewels attains liberation. 10) Compare वज्जालगं, 5.8 first line.

Page 232—lines: 24) The name of the king is रणगइंदो=रणगजेन्द्रः, but P reads रयणगइंदो. Both the spellings are available—पियंगुमदी and पियंगुमई: P is partial towards the second. One the next page, line 2, we get J धूद P धूय—such instances indicate that the earlier Mss. contained more Saurasenisms which were eliminated in later codices under Mahārāṣṭri influence.

Page 233—lines: 9) This Sanskrit line is just the half of an अनुष्टुप् verse. 19) अवति is the name of the king of Ujjaini. If the author's statement is based on any tradition, well, that should explain the name of that territory. The term अवति is to go back to the √अव् to protect: अव (pres. participle) ति in Prākṛit, or अवन्ति (इति ते राजानः). तइउ or तइओ, possibly a contaminated form from तइवा and तओ, 'then'. 23) सुदरी Acc. sing. 27) Some of the expressions have श्लेष.

Page 234—lines: 11) मउद is a kind of drum, possibly slender in the middle; or the reading might have been मइद=मृगेन्द्र. सिंहकटी is generally used for a lady with slender waist. 13) कविट्ट-सरिसा Inst. sing. (on the mistaken analogy of पयसा, from पयस्) stands as an adjective of पयहरजुवलेण. 17) Obviously the poet has mastery over a fund of similes. 19) The author mentions here a number of mythological maidens: रति, धृति, श्री, ह्री, रम्भा, जवंशी, सावित्री and सरस्वती.

Page 235—lines: 16) Each line has 30 मात्रास; it is of the गीति type; and it can be called हरिणी-कुलम् (4×7, 2; with pauses after 12 and 8 मात्रास). 24) द्विपदीखण्ड (Hema.: Chandonusāsana IV.85). If षड् (meaning, group) is also a name of some metrical form, may be that the reading is corrupt (स्थिर?). जंभेटिया, also spelt जंभेटिका, जंभेटिका (°भेटिका), Hema., Ibid. VII. 67. चित्त=चित्रा (Hema., Ibid. III. 68), or वित्त=वृत्त. गाथा is well-known. 30) णिहयं=निद्रायं? विभ्रणं=विह्वलं? The author is adept in such style, with pithy sentences.

Page 236—lines: 10) Some word is missing in the first line. 12) The first line presents some difficulty. Are we to read फुडं ति ? 22) The प्रज्ञप्ति-विद्या helps them to know things at a distance; and it is both personified as well deified. 26) ए=ते; it is recorded as an independent form of the Gen. Sing. of युष्मद्, see Hema. VIII, iii. 99. Or जेण-ते, being read of uttered together, becomes जेण ए. 31) In the Ms. P, there is a Danda after एतो. P clearly reads तंतक्खणे, but J तक्खाण which is preceded on the margin by पंचतं. As HERTEL has noted the Buddhist version (of the पञ्चतन्त्र) from Nepal was called तन्त्राख्यान; see my paper in the Adyar Library Bulletin, Vol. XXV, parts 1-4, pp. 354-55. The Sanskrit version (p.* 78, l. 4) calls this merely a popular verse, and reads the second pāda thus: नागराजोऽज्ञवीदिदम्, perhaps a little improvement on the reading of P.

Page 237—lines: 1) This verse is quoted by Hariṣeṇa (A.D. 931-32) in his बृहत्कथाकोश (Bombay 1943), p. 152 in this manner: तथा चोक्तम् - नीयमानः स्वपर्णेन [सुपर्णेन] नागः पण्डुरिरब्रवीत् । यः स्त्रीणां गुह्यमाख्याति तदन्तं तस्य जीवितम् ॥ 3) सुविणन्मि तं मम would be equally a good reading. 4) एस साहेयब्बा (eventually साहेयव्व'त्ति)? Or एस [वृत्ततो]? 16) Or सा (negative particle) य देवीहि अवहरिओ. 'And (I hope) he is not carried away or kidnapped by deities'. 29) Is अत्थि just a particle of decoration here?

Page 238—lines: 1) This is a विपुला आर्या. 5) The imagery is finely projected. 14) अणिया, tip or top, compare Kannāḍa ani. शिरीसि=शिरीष. The comparison is possibly with a heap of tufts of शिरीष piled up in a big basket. 24) कावालिणिया, one who follows the routine of कापालिब्रत, a Tantric वाममार्ग.

Page 239—line: 26) For facility of pronunciation, the intervocalic consonant t might have been retained in such words as चित्ती.

Page 240—lines: 10) The word शास्त्र has possibly some स्मृति verse in view. We get in the वौषाद्यनस्मृति (१.१३)—पतिर्हि देवो नारीणां पतिर्बन्धुः पतिर्गतिः । पत्युर्गतिसमा नास्ति देवतं वा यथा पतिः ॥. The practice of अनुमरण or सती seems to have been common in the society round about. See also a simile arising out of this custom, p. 82, line 20. 16) Here वापी is graphically compared with कामिनी, a nicely worded metaphor. 30) Hereonwards we have not only a series of dependent उपमास but also a good bit of अनुप्रास upto वर्णतराई, almost of the pattern of शृङ्खलायमक.

Page 241—line: 17) In the first three पादस we have the शृङ्खलायमक.

Page 242—line: 1) Hereonwards we have an exposition of उदय, क्षय and क्षयोपशम of ज्ञानावरणीय and other Karmas with reference to द्रव्य, क्षेत्र, काल, भव and भाव.

Page 243—line: 13) Here is a contrast of the conditions in the Aparavideha and Bharata.

Page 244—lines: 5) Here is a Sanskrit quotation: 'मनसा देवानां वाचा पार्थिवानाम्' । 24) This text says एवको परं देवो. The Sanskrit text, however, 'द्वौ देवौ स्तः, तावप्यल्पायुषौ ।'. There seems to be some confusion of details in the Prākṛit text. 28) Better a paragraph should begin with एवं च भगवं etc. 30) Note how synonyms of root साह etc. are used.

Page 245—lines: 6) Here is an exposition of the Leśyā doctrine to explain how individuals occupied with the same act (see 246.9) incur different quantities of sin. 9) The form बहुए inherits the traits of बहुवे. Note the form बंधिरे, a relic of the Perfect. 12) Here is a fine account of what is known as लेस्यावृक्ष. 17) Are we to read ण य भायण (Acc. sing.) कप्पडे य फालियए? 18) छाय, Deśi, hungry.

Page 247—lines: 7) 'दुर्बलानां बलं राजा' is a metrical foot. 14) The proper name षडरिगुत्त is rendered वैरिगुत्त by the Sanskrit digest, but it should be better षडरिगुत्त. 15) The story of Agada-datta in the com. of the उत्तराध्यायन very much resembles this story. Compare the verse in the story मज्जे सत्त दिणाणं पुरचोरं नो लहामि जइ नाह । तो जलियजलणजालावलीसु जालेमि नियदेहं ॥ with line 16 here.

Page 248—lines: 9) Gautama raises this question, because this eating of flesh by one of the Deva-yoni is against Jaina dogmas. Mahāvira explains the situation by saying that the Vetāla is just joking to test the bonafidy of the prince. 15) अद्विसरिस; here सरिस has the sense of सहिय. 34) चेष्पई वा or चेष्पइ व्वा—here lengthening of इ or doubling of वा is for the sake of metre.

Page 249—line: 30) In the तरंगलोला—आयण्णायद्विष्कवाणकरो (p. 37, verse 70) Rājasekhara has expressed a similar idea in his Karpūramāñjarī II.6: अग्गम्मि भिगसरणी गअणाण तीए, मज्जे पुणो कडिअ-दुद्धतरंगमाला । पच्छा अ से सरइ तंसगिरिक्खिएसु आअण्णकुंडलिअचावहरो अणंगो ॥ Page 250—line: 28) Note अत्थिकरेता ।.

Page 252—lines: 29) So the author recognises both the forms वंद (line 1) and वंद. 31) Here the author seems to have confused between चपयमाला and चंपावई, see 250.19 above. The Sanskrit Digest rightly says 'चम्पकमालया प्रोचे '* 83.12.

Page 253—lines: 4) करणं मोतूण जुञ्जसमयम्मि, युद्धसमय refers to the code of warfare. 18) Vajragupta is plunged in sense-pleasures, not even aware of the passing of twelve years since he left home: so here is a divine voice reminding him, deluded by slumbering with infatuation as he is, that a Fall for him is inevitable, if he fails to remember the परलोकहित. 26) In this paragraph virati is stressed even in the midst of pleasures.

Page 254—lines: 1) Pleasures are a result of Punya which accrues from the practice of Dharma without which all enjoyment is a mockery. 11) Lovely and tempting lures cannot be a shelter from the pangs of hell from which Dharma alone can protect one. 19) Nowhere there is anything like satisfaction in this Samsāra: quenching of one thirst only gives rise to another, and so goes on the series in this Samsāra, irrespective of the fact whether one is a god or a man. 26) Samsāra has manifold tortures, ailments, humiliations and sufferings which one should recollect and get rid of infatuation for pleasures.

Page 255—lines: 3) The sense-organs are a trap and their pleasures are fatal in consequence; so one should be devoted to Samitis instead, with full control on mind, speech and body. 12) Kulaka is obviously a group of verses. 26) This verse सत्संगतमार्येषु अनार्ये नास्ति संगतम् । अनया सह राजेन्द्र एकरात्र्युषिता वयम् ॥ is taken out possibly from a narrative context. The source is said to be नीतिसास्त्र.

Page 256—lines: 30 f.) Gods are of two kinds सराग and विरागिन्. The former class includes गोविन्द, स्कन्द, रुद्र, व्यन्तर deities, गणपति, दुर्गा, यक्ष, राक्षस, भूत, पिशाच, कितर, किपुरुष, गन्धर्व, महोरग, चन्द्र, नक्षत्र, तारक, ग्रह, आदित्य, नाग, उदधि, सुपर्ण, अग्नि, विद्युत् and इन्द्र. All these are worshipped by somebody or the other, in some place, context or the other. In giving fruits in response to devotion, worship etc. these gods are only सहभावी, coincidental: what is important is one's own Karma according to which there results one's happiness or misery. The gods of the विरागिन् class (namely, अर्हत्, सिद्ध, आचार्य, उपाध्याय and सर्वसाधु), when respected, only show the path of Liberation. However, according to the भावना of the devotee, they become the cause or occasion of शाप and अन्ग्रह—which process is illustrated by parallel cases of the Māntric lore, sometimes a bit obscure. Vitarāga god is indifferent to praise or blame. Just as mercury dropped in fire splits into pieces which flow in different directions; similarly the sin disappears at the sight of Jina.

Page 257—lines: 22 f.) Here we have some Tantric description of the worship of सराग-देव. These details have been worked out in a chart in the Gujarati translation, p. 460, lately brought out by श्री हेमसागरसूरि, in the श्री आनन्द-हेम-ग्रन्थमाला, No. 10, Bombay 1965.

Page 259—lines: 1) The Vajjālaggam has a verse like this: दारिद्र्य तुञ्ज नमो जस्स पसाएण एरिसो रिद्धी पेच्छामि सयललोए ते मह लोया न पेच्छंति ॥. 8) One can introduce here the popular notion of दैव for पुण्य (see below 260.1) and thus the author has stated his concept about the relation between दैव and पौरुष which affect one's worldly prospects.

Page 260—lines: 12) पक्खिकुले, Mas. nom. pl. 13) बहुप्पमाणा Acc. pl.? 18) As it is गरुडात् अपि . . . गरुतमं मन्ये ।.

Page 261—lines: 6) Religion can be and has to be practised not only by men and women but also by beasts and birds as well. 8) A doctrinal point is raised: who go to hell and how the hell-life is incurred? Here four causes or items are specifically stated. Compare बह्वारम्भ-परिग्रहत्वं नारकस्यायुषः, त० सू० VI.15, which is more general. The first three are covered by बह्वारम्भ and the last by परिग्रह. 22) The expression पाव-परमं अम्हाणं जीवियं ति । is interesting.

On the pattern of पावपरमं जीवियं, we can read अहिंसा-परमो धर्मः, rather than अहिंसा परमो धर्मः as it is generally understood. 31) अनुज्जा=अनुज्ञा.

Page 262—lines: 1) The context of the bird seeking consent of the elders to quit the world and adopt renunciation is really an अन्योपदेश giving lesson to all those who are too much attached to the world. This breathes the same spirit seen in the Uttarādhyayana IVX and IXX.

Page 263—lines: 3) Here the Mother is being requested to give अनुज्ञा to adopt renunciation. The various terms of address are interesting. 16) Note ज्ञे with infinitive. 33) Here in the same manner the elder brother is being requested.

Page 264—lines: 3) The second part presents some difficulty. 12) Here the younger brother is approached. 18) Here the elder sister is being addressed. 21) पोमाय from पुमान्? 28) Now the younger sister is approached. 33) Hereonwards the wife is being addressed.

Page 265—lines: 21) This optimistic desire to put oneself on the right track, for doing which it is never late, is a highly praiseworthy tone and a worthy outlook on life. 34) पायाहि=पाएहि (=पादेषु=पादयोः) ?

Page 266—lines: 1f.) He is addressing his children, then his father-in-law (l. 11), thereafter his mother, his mother-in-law (l. 17), and then his friend (l. 31).

Page 268—lines: 9) Here the references to Magadha, Rājagṛha and king Śreṇika bring us to a historical period. 20) सुत्तणणं=सूत्र- or श्रुतज्ञान. 25) Hereonwards some details of the निमित्तज्ञान are given. Some syllables are auspicious, while others are inauspicious. These topics, Dr. Nemichandra Shastri, Arrah, informs me, are discussed in Jaina texts such as अहंछूडामणिसार, आयज्ञान-तिलक, केवलज्ञानप्रश्नचूडामणि, चन्द्रोन्मीलनप्रश्न etc.

Page 269—lines: 7) The theoretical discourse about nimitta serves like a prelude and anticipates, as it were, the dream of Mahārathakumāra. 23) Here is a doctrinal discourse on the fourfold Ārādhana: ज्ञान, दर्शन, चरण and दीर्घ. 26) Compare Mūlācāra v. 72 and 170. The topic of Jñāna is dealt with in 269.26-270.4.

Page 270—lines: 5) The topic of Darśana is dealt with in lines 5-15, with reference to its eight āṅgas. 14) This verse is often quoted. May be that it is an old verse of traditional inheritance. 16) Hereonwards is discussed चारित्र्याराधना consisting of five Samitis and three Guptis, which are called Eight प्रवचनमातृका. 26) The last आराधना consisting of twelve penances is passingly referred to.

Page 271—lines: 1f.) Here is the offering of Sāmāyika, a good doctrinal discourse on its contents and mode of offering. Having accepted Saṃlehaṇā, on the eve of his career, one abandons all violations (in thought, word and act, and all that is committed, commissioned and consented to) of the six-fold vows (Five Mahāvratas and Rātri-bhojana-viramana), ll. 1-6; all notions of mineness in the context of possessions, relations and attachments ll. 7-15; and all passions (kaṣāyas), all activities, through words and deeds, which cause even remote pain to others: lastly, he forgives all or apologises to all and want all to forgive him.

Page 272—lines: 5f.) Likewise, the saint Vajragupta, on the eve of his career, recounts and offers repentance for his various irregularities in the practice of religion. He offers Sāmāyika, recollects fourfold Maṅgala and solicits fourfold shelter, the best of the four being Jinadharmā. Then either he abstains from or devotes himself to items, enumerated from one to thirty three, as well as those of the miscellaneous type connected with Jaina doctrine (ending with p. 273, line 22). This tendency along with the pattern of details is pretty old, see the Uttarādhyayana, Chap. 31 called Caranavihi; it is followed in the Dharmopadesamālā, pp. 67f. (Bombay 1949).

Page 273—lines: 6) Then Pratikramaṇa is offered with reference to various omissions and transgressions. 20) Here the author has the tenfold enumeration of Prāyaścitta. while another with nine varieties is also known, see the त० सू०. IX.22. The former has मूल, अनवस्थाप्य and पारार्चिक in the place of परिहार and उपस्थान of the latter. 25) Similarly Svayambhūdeva meditates on the nature and types of Death, namely, Pañḍita- and Bāla-marāṇa. Right from conception death might overtake one at various stages and in various forms. In this context see the आचाराङ्ग I. vii.8; भगवती आराधना (Sholapur 1935) which is mainly devoted to this; मरणसमाप्ति, one of प्रकीर्ण texts, deals with this topic.

Page 274—lines: 4) Within a few days after birth, the child may be offered as oblation or it may be affected by various diseases and ailments, the list of which is quite interesting. This list sheds some light on the contemporary practices like गुग्गुलु. 16) Here some weapons used for striking are mentioned. 22) After enumerating the types etc. of Death for human beings, the author deals with those of sub-human beings in their Sthāvāra (27f.) and Trasa forms (30f.).

Page 275—lines: 6) Death in hells and heavens is dealt with in the following lines. 16) Hereonwards we get a description of the nature and constituents of the body which is after all perishable being subject to various ailments. What is more important is Dharma for the practice of which one should take the maximum advantage of the body without undue infatuation for it.

Page 276—lines: 3f.) One is to reflect on the nature of Jīva and its fate in Samsāra—there are various kinds of death; but the Paṇḍita-marāṇa alone helps one to get rid of Samsāra and attain the status of Siddha.

Page 277—lines: 7) In the same manner, the saint Mahāratha accepts Samlehaṇā and offers salutation to Arahanta, Siddha, Ācārya, Upādhyāya and Sādhu in §§420-24. We get a good discourse on these five and their nature. The Arahantas, especially the Tīrthakaras of all times, of all places, in their different stages of varying careers, and endowed with great qualities are described: a salutation to them leads one to Mokṣa. 26) Hereonwards we have a salutation to Siddhas; their types and varieties are interesting. Compare in this context T. S. X. 9.

Page 278—lines: 7) It is the Gaṇadhara, to be included under the category of Ācāryas, who are responsible for incorporating in Sūtras the words of Jina which thereby have come down to us. Different Ācāryas knew the Aṅgas of varying extent. It is they who enlighten us in the Scriptural knowledge. Salutations are offered to them, of the various times and places. 24) The Upādhyāya is one who propounds the contents of the Aṅgas and Upāṅgas for the benefit of pupils.

Page 279—lines: 1) Here the Sādhu is saluted, and his outstanding qualities are incidentally mentioned. 12) जोक्कारो has obviously the meaning of गमोक्कारो and its etymology might be offered thus: जयकारः > जउक्कारो (in Apabhraṁśa) > जोक्कारो, the doubling is not in any way abnormal: सुगति is often represented by सोग्गइ. We get both the forms गमोयारो and गमोक्कारो. This paragraph (§425) glorifies the पञ्चनमस्कार in view of its religious sanctity, spiritual powers and miraculous force. A good deal of literature has developed round this पञ्चनमस्कार both in Prākṛit and Sanskrit, and a good bit of it is published in two volumes, नमस्कार स्वाध्याय, published by जैनसाहित्यविकासमण्डल, Villeparie, Bombay-56, 1961-62.

Page 280—lines: 1) In this paragraph is described the spiritual progress on the क्षपकश्रेणी (See the Doctrine of Karman, p. 73, Bombay 1942) culminating with निर्वाण or मोक्ष which is characterised by the highest Bliss (see lines 15-16). 17) Here ends the कुचलयसाला कथा elaborated and composed by the genius of दाक्षिण्यचिह्न. In the Śāntinātha Jaina Bhaṇḍāra, Cambay (G. O. S. 135: Catalogue of Palm-leaf Mss. in the S. J. Bha., Cambay, Baroda 1961) there is a Ms., Pañca-ārādhana-prakarana (No. 115-5, folios 88-110, Extent 339 gāthās, Language-Prākṛit, size 13.7 × 1.7 inches, Age of Ms., c. first half of the 13th Cent. V. S., condition-good), p. 189. It opens thus: मणिरहकुमारसाहू १ कामगयंदो वि मुणिवरो भयवं २ । वयरगुत्तो य मुणी ३ सयंभुदेवो महारिसि त्ति ४ ॥ १ ॥ महरहसाहू ५ य तहा पंच वि एए तवं च काऊण । वीरवरस्स भगवओ अंते आलयणं दाउं ॥ २ ॥ आराहेऊण तओ जिणोवइदुडेण चैव मग्गेण । म्पिटुविय-अट्टकम्मा अंतगडा केवली जाया ॥ ३ ॥ जह मुणिवरेहि एएहि झोसियं कम्मसेण्णमसुहं पि । तह अश्रेण वि मुणिणा झोसेअवं पयत्तेण ॥ ४ ॥ End—तत्थ न जरा न मच्चू नाविहिणो [न बाहिणो] नेय सन्वदुक्खाइं । अच्चंतसासयं चिय भुंजति अणोवमं सोक्खं ॥ १८ ॥ पंचमी आराधना सम्मत्ता । पंचैकत्र गाथाः ३३९ ॥ छ ॥ This shows how these characters from a tale, in course of time, were looked upon as Religious Heroes, great saints in flesh and blood, who attained liberation after practising penances etc. 18) The story proper ends with the paragraph §426. Hereonwards is more or less the concluding Upasamhāra, in which the author explains himself on certain items (§427-28), solicits sympathy from the readers (§429), then gives some personal information in what may be called a Prasasti (§430), then there is concluding Maṅgala (§431), and lastly the Granthāgra is given (§432). 19) For the description of the Nagari, see §14f. For the meaning अक्खेचणी see p. 4, l. 22. 22) For the episode of Ratnasekhara alias Jinasekhara, see pp. 117-120. 23) For the biography of Enikā, pp. 124-27. 24) For the account of the Bhilla chief, see pp. 138-149. 26) For the episode of the Citrapata, pp. 185-ff. 27) For the episode of the alchemists, see pp. 195f. 28) Here the reference appears to the context where the king meets various religious teachers holding different views, p. 203 ff. 29) जुयसमिलादिदृढतो, see §326. Then दियलोए घम्मफल possibly refers to the episode of the Bird pp. 261 ff.

Page 281—lines: 1) For the details about Kāmagajendra, see above pp. 232 ff. 2) For details about Vajragupta, see above pp. 244 ff. 3) About Svayambhūdeva, see above pp. 255 ff. 4) About Mahāratha, see above pp. 268 ff. 5) The topics of Ārādhana etc. pp. 269.23 f. 8) Rāga is attachment or attachment for the world and its ties. Rāga is acceptable (for treatment) or praiseworthy provided it leads finally to non-attachment or Vairāgya. 11) Two parts of the Vasudevahindī have appeared from Bhavanagar (Ātmānanda Sabhā). From the first part it is seen that the Dhammillahindī is included in the Vasudevahindī, but here Uddyotana by using plural हिंडीसु seems to indicate that the Vasudeva-hindī and Dhammillahindī are two works. 13) For the reference to गुग्गुल, see p. 13, l. 8. 14) This has possibly in view the conversation which the king had with the goddess, especially p. 15, line 9 etc. 15) For the context of पुरुषलक्षण, see p. 129. 18) These non-Jaina deities are referred to more than once in the text. 20) Some apparently unpalatable details can find a place in the वर्मकथा which ultimately gives rise to सम्यक्त्व. 23) देसीओ भासाओ, many speeches, dialects current in different देशs, territories, parts of the country. पढ possibly refers to recitation. From the mention in the preceding line and here, it is clear that the name of the work is Kuvalayamālā. 27) The author tells here that within three hours of the day he composed one hundred granthāgras (extent of one hundred anuṣṭubh units) and possibly went on writing (or having got written, note the reading of P) them on a slate as was the custom in those days. Muni Shri PUNYAVIJAYAJI tells me that generally the authors recited as they went on composing and some one else, if not the author himself, went on writing side by side on a slate with a soft-stone-piece (something like chalk). 28) On the position of ह्री, a deity of the महापद्महृद, in Jaina mythology, see the तत्त्वार्थसूत्र III, 14-9. She plays a significant role in Jaina rituals and Tantra. The author feels that it was due to the benign favour of ह्री-देवता that he could compose this work with such a remarkable speed.

Page 282—lines: 1) These two verses are really touching; and almost with paternal affection, Uddyotanasūri has presented Kuvalayamālā to the world of scholars. Some of the words have a double meaning. 3) This is a Dharmakathā. Various Kalās are described or shown here. Many kings have taken āikṣā in this Kathā. The author wishes that his work should live long like the fame of Ṛsabha, the first Tirthakara. 4) This paragraph gives personal details about the author, and as such it is a biographical Praśasti. The two Mss. J and P show great variations in the details of this Praśasti and they deserve careful study. J gives more details, and some of them are a second thought, and at least once intruding on the continuity of P. 4) P has not got first two gāthās. That means, it does not refer to two Pathas (Dakṣiṇā-patha and Uttarā-patha) and to the river Candrabhāgā or the Chinab—the Acesins of the Greeks or rather the united streams of the Jhelum and the Chinab. The Praśasti according to P., therefore, begins with line 6, which opens thus: अत्यि पयडा पुरीणं पञ्चदश्या etc. 6) The letters sa and ma are very much similar in P; so one is justified in reading सिरि-तोरमाणेण. 7) Ācārya Harigupta hailed from the Gupta-varṃśa; he was a Guru of Toramāna; he had his camp (possibly during the rainy season) at Pavvaiyā (on the bank of Candrabhāgā) from which capital Toramāna ruled the country (lit. enjoyed the sovereignty of the world). 8) The Ms. P does not specify the relation between Harigupta and Devagupta; J makes it, however, clear. This Devagupta is possibly the same as the one mentioned at p. 3, line 28; like his teacher Harigupta, he also hailed from the Gupta-varṃśa and is styled Rājaraṣi. He is mentioned earlier along with other literary figures; and here he is called a कवि or महाकवि; and in both the places there is a reference to his fame 'payado' or 'pāyado'. May be that he had written a work like सुपुरुस्तचरिय. P specifies his fame thus: अज्ज वि विज्जरए कित्ती. 8) Śivacandragani is called Mahattara, a well-known title; महहरो stands obviously for महहरो=महत्तरः. 9) Both J and P say that he came and stayed at Bhinnamāla or Bhillamāla. The reason why he came from the Pavvaiyā area to Bhinnamāla is that he wanted to pay respects to Jinās (in various temples on the way). 10) Śivacandra's pupil is Yaśadatta with the title Kṣamāśramaṇa. The Editor of the Rajasthan through the Ages (Bikaner 1966), p. 121, proposes that this Kṣamāśramaṇa Yakṣadatta might be identical with Yakṣadeva who was patronised by Nāgabhaṭa I. For details the reference is given to a paper 'Original Capital of the Imperial Pratihāras' in the Bhāratiya Vidyā, XVIII, parts iii-iv, pp. 74-80. He had many pupils, known for their austerities and gift of speech; and it is they who had got constructed many temples of Jina on account of which the Gurjara-deśa became attractive. 12) This gāthā is found only in J. It is amplificatory of bahuyā śisā and mentions six pupils of Śivacandra, namely, Nāga, Vṛnda, Mammaṭa, Durga, Agniśarman and Vaṭeśvara. 13) It is the sixth pupil, namely Vaṭeśvara, that is meant by teṇa. He had a Temple of Jina built at Ākāśa-vapra-nagara. A careful scrutiny of the variations seen in J and P in lines 11-13 clearly leaves the impression that the draft of J is subsequent to the draft of P. That is, J is rewriting what was already there in P, so far as this prabastī is concerned. The pronoun teṇa in singular refers only to Vaṭeśvara when six of the pupils are mentioned here. P reads वडैसरौ असि जो खमासमणो for which J has जिनालयं तेण जिम्मविद्यं रम्मं. The expression तस्य मुहूर्दसणे न्चिय is more appropriate with the reading of P, along with which it stood originally, than with the reading of J which came to be substituted in the revised draft. 14) The pupil of Vaṭeśvara is Tattvācārya. One can ever read णाम-भयङ्गुणी as a compound expression. 15) Among his contemporaries, not so quite laudable, he had an outstanding character. 16) The author of this work namely उद्द्योतन is a pupil of Tattvācārya; he composed the कुवलयमाला after having had a vision of and inspiration from ह्री देवी; and he was known as दाक्षिण्यचिह्न. 17) After giving his descent in the ascetic hierarchy (हरिसुत्त > देवसुत्त > शिवचन्द्र > यक्षदत्त > नाग—वृन्द—मम्मट—दुर्ग—अग्निशर्मन् and वटेश्वर > तत्त्वाचार्य > उद्द्योतन i.e., दाक्षिण्यचिह्न), he now gives some details about his instructors or teachers in different branches of learning. Ācārya Virabhadra (asthāvaraḥ kalpavṛkṣaḥ) was his Guru who taught him Siddhānta and Hariḥbhadra, a prodigy of manifold learning, taught him Yuktiśāstra or pramāna-nyāya (P reads पमाणनाएण). 18) After giving his ascetic and tutorial parentage or ancestors, Uddyotana gives his natural parents. In the town of Mahādvāra, there was a dutiful Kṣatriya, Uddyotana by name. This line is found only in J. सया for राया is a misprint in f. n. 19. 20) Samprati also can be taken as a proper name; in that case Vaṭeśvara is the popular (and alternative) name. P calls him राजा. In case samprati is not a proper name, the implication would be that Vaṭeśvara is a recent, if not contemporary, ruler. Our Uddyotana, the author of Kuvalayamālā, is the son of Vaṭeśvara. So his natural parentage is of a Kṣatriya ruling family: Uddyotana > Samprati alias Vaṭeśvara > Uddyotana. He had the name of his grand-father, not in any way unusual. Vaṭeśvara happens to be the name of his father as well as of his grand (ascetic) teacher. 21) The author mentions here the place where this work was composed. Jāvāliura or Jalor was rich in temples and Śrāvakas or Jaina laymen. It is there that Virabhadra (possibly the same as one, noted above, from whom the author received lessons in Siddhānta) got constructed a lofty temple dedicated to Ṛṣabha-Jinendra. While staying in that temple, Uddyotansūri composed this work and completed it on the 14th day of Caitra Kṛṣṇapakṣa. So far as P is concerned, the matter continues very well with line 5 on the next page. In Sain. 915, i.e., A.D. 858, just after 80 years after the completion of the Kuvalayamālā, Jayasimhasūri composed his Dharmopadeśamālā-vivaraṇa (Singhi Jain Series, No. 28, Bombay 1949, pp. 228 f.) at Nagaur (possibly then included in Gujjarattā, or Gujarāt) during the reign of Bhojadeva (to be identified with Mihira Bhoja, c. 840-90, whose dominions 'included the Cis-Sutlaj districts of the Punjāb, most of Rājputānā, the greater part, if not the whole, of the present United Provinces of Agra and Oudh and the Gwālior territory', see V. A. SMITH, The Early History of India, 4th ed., p. 393). He gives the genealogy of his ascetic predecessors. Devavācaka was succeeded by many teachers (sūri); then comes Vaḍasara (= Vaṭeśvara), styled Kṣamāśramaṇa; his pupil was Tattvācārya (who was suprasiddha); he was followed by Yakṣamahattara, Kṛṣṇamuni etc. These names remind us of Devagūpta, Vaṭeśvara and Tattvācārya mentioned by Uddyotana. It is not unlikely that they are identical. According to P Vaṭeśvara was styled Kṣamāśramaṇa.

Page 283—lines: 1) Lines 1-4 are found only in J: obviously they are an addition in the revised draft, supplementing a few new facts and ideas. When this work was completed at Jalor, Śri-Vatsa-rāja was the contemporary (jaiyā) king; he is called raṇa-hatthī. Dr. DASHARATH SHARMA in his address at the History Congress mentions that Vatsarāja's coins are available-

In this address he puts together some details from the Kuvalayamālā. Jalor was possibly within his jurisdiction. 4) Uddyotana calls himself Ācārya here; and tells us that he was a limb of or belonged to Candrakula. 6) Earlier only Caitra-kṛṣṇa-caturdaśī was mentioned; here more details are given. It was completed (the reading of P is more explicit) in the afternoon, when one day was less for the Śaka era to reach seven hundred. The year ends with Caitra-kṛṣṇa-amāvāsyā. This last day but one of the Śaka year 700, according to JACOBI, corresponds to the 21st March 779 A.D. He has an important note thus explaining चौद्सीए चेतस्स किण्हपवस्सिम्. i.e. Caitra ba-di 14 "This date is interesting from the point of view of the Calendar. As the Caitrādi-year invariably begins with the śuklapakṣa of Caitra, the date in question would seem to be recorded according to the pūrṇimānta scheme in which the dark fortnight precedes the bright one. But as KIELHORN (Ind. Ant. 1896, p. 271 f.) has shown from dates in inscriptions that in connexion with Śaka years almost always amānta months are used, the prima facie interpretation of our date becomes extremely doubtful. In the year under consideration, however, there was an adhika Caitra which precedes the nija month; therefore, in this adhika Caitra ba-di 14 is the last day but one of the preceding year, if the year began with nija Caitra, as it ought to do, since the new moon initiating true Caitra immediately preceded Mesasamkrānti. I, therefore, believe that SWAMIKANNU PILLAI's assertion (Indian Ephemeris vol. I, part I, p. 65), 'when there is an adhika Caitra, that begins the year', applies only to modern usage (Samarāiccakahā Intro., p. ii, Calcutta 1926). 9) This section presents what is called Pravacanamaṅgala. Such a maṅgala comes at the beginning and at the close of a discourse or treatise. It consists of salutations to all the worthy ones and to all those who deserve reverence and recollection of whom develops an auspicious mood (in the individual) as well as atmosphere (round about). What J presents is a different draft of the Maṅgala from that in P, though some of the contents are common; and these contents go back to ancient Maṅgala-sūtras. Some forty four of them are a part of the Maṅgala salutation at the beginning of the Vedanākhaṇḍa (Ṣatkhaṇḍāgama, Khaṇḍa 4, Bhāga 1, Book 9, pp. 2 f.; see also the editorial observations in the Viṣaya-paricaya, and Book 1 Prastāvanā p. 29 f.). The Dhavalā com. on this section explains fully all those expressions which are common to these Maṅgala salutations. The references to various ऋद्धि and लब्धि are interesting. 16) Perhaps सेय for सीय. 43) It may be noted that the Maṅgala in P refers to the Siddhāyatanas in the Sammedasāila. 44) The two Maṅgala passages drafted independently and added in Mss. P and J, using the same basic traditional material, might have been put at the end of the Mss. when they were completed and consecrated. किलि किलि अप्पडिचक्का is a better reading found elsewhere in the म. रः रहस्य.

Page 284—lines: 5) The expression किलि किलिय षडीचक्का is a bit elusive; the term हिलिहिलि-देवीओ is in plural: if it does not refer to श्री (सिरी > सिली > हिली in popular Apabh.) and ह्री-देवी. it has in view some local tutelary deities invoked in Tāntric rituals. See the formulas in the मन्त्रराजरहस्य. Muni Shri PUNYAVIJAYAJI kindly showed me an advance copy of what is called पवयणमंगलसारथयं printed in the मन्त्रराजरहस्य of सिंहिलकसूरि (in the Singhi Jaina Series). Some of the prose passages in this Collection have close correspondence with the matter in our paragraph 431. There are some significant various readings which need careful study. 7) The concluding verse clearly indicates that a Maṅgala of this type is to be recited every day. 8) This seems to be the author's approximate calculation recorded in the draft included in the Ms. P. Even after this calculation noted in the body of the text, it is interesting to observe that the Granthāgra noted by the copyist of the Ms. P is only 10,000. The subsequent reference to Uddyotana possibly belongs to the copyist. 11) Why it is a संकीर्णकथा, see ante p. 4, line 16. 16) The Ms. J plainly mentions the date when it was completed. It is Samvat 1139, Phālguna Vadi 1, Sunday.

Concordance of the Printed Text with the Mss. J & P

In the first column, the No. of the page of the printed text of the Prākṛit Kuvalayamālā is noted; then in the next column it is indicated where that page begins and ends in the Ms. J (leaf No., a or b, line and column); and in the last column, it is shown where that page begins and ends in the Ms. P (Page No., a or b, and line). This Table will enable the critical reader to spot the context of the printed text in the Mss. either J or P.
