S. R. Singhvi

The value of Education

In last two decades a great deal has changed in pattern of education. The most pervasive change has been the infusion of technology. Fortunately the Govt. has also realized that higher education and total literacy is the only way for development in all areas. In the fast changing world skill and know-how become outdated very fast.

The quality of human-resource of a nation is judged by literacy, skill and knowledge of the population living in. In other words the education is a must if nation aspires to achieve growth and development and more importantly sustain it.

With the rapid change in education a mere graduate degree like BA/B.Com. are not so important. The need of the time is specialization. In our day to day life we observe that a plumber or electrician earns more than a graduate. Thus, now it is essential that a student must decide early his objective about selection of courses and the areas he wishes to specialize. Skill and increased efficiency can be acquired by - host of courses, several instructional programs has been launched in last two decades such courses will instill confidence and at the same time increased reliability by employer. The advantage of these courses the students learns the same amount with less effort or time and to get a job is much easier.

A good education can give you many things -

1. First, with a good education you can build up your intelligence and become a lot smarter.

2. Second, with a good education you can get a better job and increase your compensation.

3. Third, with the money you earn from a good business the more good quality items you can purchase.

4. Fourth, a good education can build up your maturity level

5. Fifth, the money you earn from a good job can keep you from doing bad things from desperation.

6. Sixth, with the money you get from a job you can travel to other places.

7. Seventh, it can lower your level of ignorance.